ITALIANS REPORT HARDEST FIGHTING OF WAR TO DATE

Announce Blackshirt Division Withstood Day-Long Attack by 40,000 Ethiopians Near Makale.

WARRIORS CUT DOWN BY MACHINE-GUNS

Others Press Forward and Engage Fascists in Hand-to-Hand Combat Before Reinforcements Arrive.

(Copyright, 1936, by the Associated Press.)

ASMARA, Eritrea, Jan 25. — An Ethiopian force reported to number 40,000 made a terrific frontal attack on one Italian division Thursday in the heaviest fighting of the war on the northern front.

The fighting occurred about 15 miles west of Makale, key point of the Italian invasion. Italian authorities said the Blackshirts had resisted magnificently as apparently limitless numbers of Ethiopians with fanatical courage poured forward, paying no attention to casualties, although machine guns mowed them down with a terrific cross fire.

Time after time throughout the day the Italians were forced to meet steel with steel, so great was the pressure, the Italian announcement said. Reinforcements came up under terrific machine-gun protecting fire, took their places in line and charged, forcing the Ethiopians to retire.

(An Ethiopian communique said Thursday marked the end of a three-day battle on the Makale front, in which the Ethiopians were victorious.)

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Jan. 25.—Italians celebrated tonight what the Government announced as the second great victory in Ethiopia within 10 days.

A communique from Marshal Pietro Badoglio, commander of the Italian armies in Africa, said his troops on Tuesday and Wednesday had smashed an Ethiopian plan to attack west of Makale. It placed the number of Italian dead and wounded at 743 in the recent fighting on the northern front, and the Ethiopian casualties at 5000. Earlier the Italian dead had been estmiated at 1000, the heaviest since the war began.

Ethiopians Also Claim Victory, Say Makale Is Surrounded.

ADDIS ABABA, Jan. 25.—Ethiopia today claimed victory in "the biggest battle of the war" and said Makale, advance point of the Italian northern front, was surrounded.

Two Italian columns trying to save the troops in Makale were wiped out, the Government asserted, adding that thousands of Italians and Eritreans fell in the fighting.

A bloody three-day battle ended Thursday "with the Ethiopians driving the Italians out of two fronts after bitter hand-to-hand fighting," the communique said. It praised "the maneuvers of the armies of Ras Kassa and Ras Seyoum in closing in upon both sides of the Italian columns."

LANDON EXPECTED TO GIVE HIS VIEWS AT KANSAS RALLY

Address at Annual Meeting in Topeka Wednesday Night to Be Broadcast.

By the Associated Press.

TOPEKA, Kan., Jan. 25.—Gov. Alf M. Landon is expected to outline his views on national issues Wednesday night for the first time since mention of his name as a presidential possibility. He will address the annual Kansas day dinner rally. The speech will be broadcast.

The speech will climax a two-day round of Republican activities that also will mark celebration of the seventy-fifth anniversary of Kansas's admission to the Union.

It will be the Governor's first major speech since his appearance at Cleveland in November when he outlined what he called "the Kansas way of economical and effective government."

By the Associated Press.

TOPEKA, Kan., Jan. 25. — The Kansas Supreme Court today upheld constitutionality a statute passed by the 1933 Legislature reducing salaries of county officials about 10 per cent for a two-year period. The act was passed shortly after Gov. Alf M. Landon took office as an emergency measure because of the economic depression and a slump in tax collections.

White and Negro Sharecroppers Unite in Arkansas in Move To Improve Their Situation

Landlords Resort to Evictions and Other Repressive Measures to Combat Growth of Union.

By SPENCER R. McCULLOCH,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 25.—Something new in the South, the spectacle of Negro and "poor white" sharecroppers uniting to improve their common economic lot has aroused the active hostility of planters of Northeastern Arkansas against the Southern Tenant Farmers' Union—a hostility marked by evictions, beatings, summary trials and other repressive measures. But the union, organized about 18 months ago primarily to safeguard the tenant's rights, if any, under the now defunct Agricultural Adjustment Act always bobs up again. Broken up on one plantation, it rises on the next.

For the first time it is giving serious concern to the landholders, some of whom envision its potential strength, profess to see it now as an agency which may cause "an uprising" and racial strife. The sight of Negroes and "poor whites" making common cause together has evoked an interest which previous governmental investigations bearing on the sharecroppers' plight failed to arouse.

Union's Basic Principle.

Since the inception of the union its officers have patiently inculcated in its membership the doctrine that the only chance for an effective labor organization in the South is for white and Negro wage owners to forget racial prejudice and realize they are in the same economic boat, must wage a common battle to improve their status.

This principle is now bearing fruit for virtually the first time in the South. There have been isolated instances of unions of skilled trades in urban centers, but a mixed agrarian movement is something new in the cotton fields.

A survey by the writer among the union members in Poinsett, Cross and Crittenden counties, where the organization claims an enrollment of 6000, more than half of them Negroes, indicated the Negro and white sharecroppers are working amicably together, uniting against what they consider unfair practices by the landowners.

Planters Taking Notice.

The planters, who at first paid scant attention to the organization, regarding it as a movement "here today and gone tomorrow," are now denying the union the right to organize, are prompt to break up meetings, do not hesitate to say they will not have a union member on the place.

Union membership is sufficient ground for eviction, and those evicted from one plantation for such cause find difficulty in obtaining places on another. An informal but effective blacklist is making the rounds.

An example of repressive measures, now engaging the attention of union officials who have appealed to Washington for a congressional investigation and have succeeded in persuading Gov. Futrell to send investigators in the field, occurred recently near Earle when about 100 persons, half of them women and children, were evicted from the 540-acre plantation of C. H. Dibble.

Driven Out in the Snow.

Driven from their cabins by deputy sheriffs on a snowy day they were left by the side of the road, their furniture and other household possessions piled beside them. The union procured five tents, provided transportation to the nearby town of Parkin, where most of the women found lodging with friends and the men still maintain "an eviction camp."

A subsequent sharecroppers' meeting at Earle, attended by both Negro and white members and addressed by Howard Kester, a Socialist leader of Nashville, Tenn., was broken up by deputies and planters, who escorted Kester out of town.

Two Negroes, said by the deputies to have been armed pickets, were shot and slightly wounded. Four others were sentenced by a Justice of the Peace to a year and a day in jail for rioting and another bound over to the grand jury on a charge of assault with intent to kill.

Union Asks for Inquiry.

The union, which is endeavoring to obtain legal aid for the prisoners, conceded that some of its members were armed "as a matter of self-protection." It has asked for an investigation of the evictions at the Dibble plantation, declaring the tenants were evicted before a full settlement covering the past season's crop had been made with them. The eviction itself was conducted legally.

The viewpoint of the small planter was afforded the writer by Dibble, who gave the writer his version of the evictions and his views on

NO SKATING IN FOREST PARK; ICE NOT THICK ENOUGH YET

Art Hill Thronged by Coasters Following Heavy Snow; Bonfires Provided.

Skating on all lakes in Forest Park has been prohibited until further notice, Park Commissioner W. A. Miller announced last night. After Friday's heavy snowfall, park workmen began clearing the snow off the lakes yesterday, and it was thought that skating would be permitted on Sylvan and Round lakes, but an inspection of the ice showed that it was not of sufficient strength to support a large crowd of skaters, Miller said.

The heavy snowfall, however, made Art Hill a haven for coasters yesterday and last night, and it was possible to slide over the frozen lagoon at the bottom of the hill. The Park Department provided bonfires on the hill last night.

PLANE FINDS ICE FIELD WHICH DRIFTED WITH 1825 MEN ON IT

Russian Steamers Going to Rescue; Castaways Find Good Fishing, They Radio to Shore.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, Jan. 26. (Sunday)—An ice field on which 1825 fishermen have been marooned for 10 days was found by an airplane today 150 miles out in the Caspian Sea. The plane flew over the ice field and dropped medical supplies. The pilot reported the field had stopped drifting. The men were marooned when the ice broke away from shore Jan. 16.

The castaways confirmed his statement by a message from their small portable wireless set and reported the fishing was so good at the place they were taking advantage of it to increase their hauls.

Steamers are leaving to transport the men, who have 1400 horses with them, to shore. Airplanes are still searching for other ice castaways, estimated to number 41.

HUGE NIAGARA ICE BLOCKADE

American Falls All Icicles; Worst River Jam Since 1909.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 25.—The Niagara River was jammed with more ice tonight than in almost 30 years. As a result the American falls was so dry a person could walk from the American shore to Goat Island in midstream without getting wet feet.

The worst ice jam since 1909 blocked the lower river from Lewiston almost at its mouth, and the deep channel was so packed with ice that the water rose 12 feet today. In some places mounds of ice were pushed up 50 feet. Upstream, in the American channel, there was a dense quarter-mile jam which cut the flow over the American falls to a thin trickle. The face of the American falls glittered with thousands of icicles, some very large and the view from the foot of Prospect Point on the American side was unusual, as the entire face of the American falls, normally hidden under a sheet of sweeping water, was visible.

DEVALUED DOLLAR SUIT FOR $600,000 BY BEGGS ESTATE

Trustee Alleges Loss Was Sustained on Purchase of $2,156,000 in Government Bonds.

ABOUT 40 OTHERS SEEKING DAMAGES

Claims of $8,000,000 Filed Before Deadline for Litigation Based on Gold Clause Decision.

By MARQUIS W. CHILDS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—The St. Louis Union Trust Co., acting as trustee for the estate of the late John I. Beggs, wealthy utility operator, has instituted suit against the Government for $600,000, contending that President Roosevelt's devaluation of the dollar resulted in losses to the Beggs estate of that amount.

The suit is one of a number filed in the United States Court of Claims shortly before the deadline of Dec. 31, after which, under a law passed last August, the Government may not be sued for losses by reason of dollar devaluation. It is typical of about 40 suits by which owners of Government securities are seeking damages of about $8,000,000.

Under the law that was passed as a result of the Supreme Court's historic gold clause decisions, Congress allowed suits to be filed against the Government up to Dec. 31, but after that date all claims were barred. In the gold clause case, Chief Justice Hughes, speaking for the majority of five, said of the right to sue under the gold clause: "While Congress is under no duty to provide remedies through the courts, the contractural obligation still exists, and, despite the infirmities of procedure, remains upon the conscience of the sovereign."

'Loss' on Government Bonds.

Richard McCulloch of St. Louis, Beggs' son-in-law and one of the trustees, is also a party to the suit as is Lawrence A. Olwell of Milwaukee. The losses are claimed on $2,156,000 of Government bonds purchased for the estate in June and August of 1932 and February and November of 1933.

The trust company's brief declares that on Dec. 30, one day before the deadline, attorneys for the Beggs estate came to the Division of Securities in the Treasury here and demanded $423,281.25 in "gold dollars" or "legal tender currency" for Government bonds with a face value of $300,751.24. The Government offered to pay $300,751.24 in "legal tender currency."

In one of the famous gold clause cases the Government was sued for payment of Liberty bonds on a basis of $1693 for a bond of the face value of $1000. Under act of Congress of June 5, 1933, contracts calling for payment in gold were declared void, and under powers granted him by Congress, President Roosevelt reduced the gold content of the dollar from 25 4-5 grains to 15 5-21 grains.

The lengthy brief lists all the Government bonds purchased by the trust company for the Beggs estate. They vary in denomination from $5000 bonds to $100,000 bonds.

Void and Unlawful.

The Union Trust brief charges that the act of March 9, 1933, authorizing the President to devalue the dollar, is "unconstitutional and void and an unlawful delegation of legislative and judicial power." It charges that . . . "the damages your petitioners have suffered, measured either in terms of gold or in terms of purchasing power, are the sum of $600,000, which sum is now due and owing by the United States."

Claims brought against the government prior to the Dec. 31 deadline amount to more than $8,000,000, ranging in amount from a little over $1 to more than $4,300,000. The first gold clause case on the court of claims docket and the one involving the smallest amount is for $1.07 interest on a $50 liberty bond, filed by Robert A. Taft, son of the former President and Chief Justice of the United States, as head of the Dixie Terminal Co. of Cincinnati, Ohio.

Involved in the Taft suit, which may be heard by the court of claims within the next two months, is the right of the treasury to call bonds for redemption unless paid in undevalued gold or its equivalent in currency. This issue is regarded as of vital importance to many holders of gold clause obligations.

THREE CONVICTED AT TRIAL FOR FIRE ON MORRO CASTLE

124 LOST LIVES WHEN VESSEL BURNED

Sentence Deferred Until Tuesday — Corporation Also Liable to Fine — Trial Began Nov. 12.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25. — An executive of the company which owned the Morro Castle and two officers in charge when the vessel burned off the New Jersey Coast Sept. 8, 1934, with a loss of 124 lives, were convicted of negligence tonight by a jury in Federal Court.

They are Acting Capt. William F. Warms, Chief Engineer Eben S. Abbott, and Henry E. Cabaud, vice-president of the New York & Cuba Mail Steamship Co.

The maximum penalties for the offense are fines of $10,000 each and prison terms of 10 years. The corporation also faces a possible fine of $10,000.

Bail of $2500 for the defendants was continued until Tuesday morning when sentence will be imposed.

The trial began last Nov. 12.

Capt. Robert Wilmot of the Morro Castle died on the voyage and Chief Officer Warms took command. The vessel was bound from Havana to New York with 318 passengers on a vacation cruise and a crew of 240 when fire broke out at night.

A board of inquiry of the U. S. Steamboat Service on Oct. 16 charged Warms, Abbott, Second Officer Clarence Hackney, Third Officer Harold Hansen and Assistant Engineer Anthony Bujia with negligence.

The board cited the rapid spread of fire in a vessel equipped with all the modern safety mechanisms and systems; delay in giving the alarm, ineffectiveness of the alarm, failure to mark exits properly and delay in sending an SOS.

Later, Warms and Abbott were arrested and charged with negligence, misconduct and inattention to duty. Witnesses testified that Abbott had taken away one of the first boats while many passengers were still stampeding on the seared decks.

Subsequently the Steamboat Inspection Service announced that Warms had received a Chief Mate's license and Abbott's Chief Engineer's ticket had been restored to him. Then on Dec. 3, 1934, the Federal Grand Jury returned the indictments.

COLLATERAL FOR SOME RFC RAILWAY LOANS DEFICIENT

Jones Says This Is Based on Present Market Prices and Is Hopeful of Collecting in Fall.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25. — An apparent deficiency of $32,500,000 on the basis of present market quotations, in the collateral securing certain railroad loans was disclosed today by Chairman Jesse H. Jones of the RFC.

Jones said, however, that "securities that will come to us from reorganizations will in all probability, with few exceptions, be worth the amount of the loans."

He said the corporation had disbursed $8,197,376,669 of which $2,366,728,506 was to meet allocations made by Congress. Of the remaining $5,830,648,163 authorized by directors of the corporation, $3,237,092,716, or 55.5 per cent, had been repaid.

Interest and dividends collected and accrued exceeded RFC expenses by $115,844,219, the report said.

SNOWBOUND VILLAGE GETS AID

Fuel and Food Taken to Town Isolated Nearly a Week.

By the Associated Press.

SHERRARD, W. Va., Jan. 25. — Fuel, food and medicine reached this mountain town today behind rescue crews which cleared paths through towering snow drifts. The community of 300 population had been isolated since Sunday. Many were ill. One woman had been without medical attention since she broke her arm Sunday.

Road commission maintenance crews, WPA workmen and volunteers made up crews which pushed through four miles of blocked highway, digging away 15 foot drifts in some places.

EX-GOV. SMITH DENOUNCES NEW DEAL AND DEFINITELY BREAKS WITH ROOSEVELT

TO 'TAKE A WALK' IF CONVENTION SHOULD INDORSE THE EXECUTIVE

In Speech at Liberty League Dinner Charges Administration Has Thrown Most of 1932 Platform Into Waste Basket.

NOT A CANDIDATE HIMSELF, HE SAYS

Supreme Court Throwing Out Present Policies Three Letters at a Time, He Declares, While 2000 Cheer.

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York, Democratic presidential candidate in 1928, at an uproarious Liberty League dinner tonight, definitely broke with the Roosevelt administration by predicting that after the next Democratic convention millions of Democrats "will probably take a walk," meaning that they will probably leave the party.

The prediction was made in a characteristically slashing address which ended with a peroration that the voters of today were confronted with a choice as to whether they wanted a Government with headquarters in Washington or Moscow.

The alternatives, he said, were whether the American people wanted to breathe the fresh air of a free America or the foul air of Communistic Russia.

Never Names Roosevelt.

At no time during his speech did he mention the name of President Roosevelt, but there was no mistaking his direct attack on the man whom he passively supported in 1932 after he himself had been rejected at the Chicago convention. He specifically charged that the present administration had flouted the Chicago platform and he urged his friends in Congress to "read it, study it and follow it."

"Even Bryan, with all the destruction he wrought on the party," Smith declared, "had the nerve and courage to put into the platform just what the leaders stood for, and the voters could make an intelligent choice. This administration not only refuses to carry out the platform, but it does exactly the opposite to what it was pledged to do."

"It is pretty tough for me to have to go at my own party," Smith said, "but I submit that there is a limit to blind loyalty."

Six Points for Democrats.

1. Take their minds off the next election.
2. Follow the 1932 platform in legislative and executive action, in short, make good its promises.
3. Stop compromising with the fundamental principles laid down by Jefferson, Jackson and Cleveland.
4. Stop attempting to alter the structure of the Federal Government without recourse to the people themselves as provided by the Constitution.
5. Read their oath of office.
6. Read the parable of the Prodigal Son and follow his example by stop wasting substance in a foreign land, and come back to their father's house.

Threat to Leave Party.

Smith's threat to leave the Democratic party was contained in the following words: "Now what is worrying me—where does that leave me as a Democrat? My mind is now fixed upon the convention in June, in Philadelphia. The Committee on Resolutions is about to report, and the preamble to the platform is: 'We, the representatives of the Democratic party in convention assembled, heartily indorse the Democratic administra-

Army Officer Facing Trial

COL. JOSEPH I. McMULLEN.

LINER'S CHIEF ELECTRICIAN SHOT TO DEATH; OFFICER HELD

Killing Occurs When Grace Line Ship Is Going Through Panama Canal.

COLON, Panama, Jan. 25. — The chief electrician of the Grace liner, Santa Elena, was shot and killed aboard ship today and second officer Frank Boyd of the vessel was arrested and placed in jail at Cristobal.

The victim was Alfred Thomsen, 37 years old, a native of Denmark. Authorities said they understood he and Boyd had quarreled after visiting a night club last night. He was shot 10 times. Schedules through the Panama Canal were disrupted when police held up the crossing of the Santa Elena toward Balboa for three hours while two detectives investigated the shooting.

The three material witnesses held were Ronald D. Richardson of San Francisco, chief radio operator; Fred Crummey of San Jose, Cal., chief watchman, and Thomas W. Griffith of Seattle, a freight clerk.

THREE KILLED IN HOSPITAL FIRE

Bodies Sought in Ruins at Rochester, Pa.

By the Associated Press.

ROCHESTER, Pa., Jan. 25. — Three patients were killed in a fire in a hospital here today and firemen sought their bodies in the ruins. The dead: Miss Nora Schweitzer, 40 years old, of Pittsburgh; Miss Maude Miller, 50, of New Castle, Pa., and Miss Edna Joyce of Carnegie.

Eight women, all middle-aged, occupied the building, part of the Passavant Memorial Home for Epileptics, which has 75 male and 38 female patients. Firemen confined the flames to the 12-room, three-story brick bungalow in charge of Sister Alice Ott. The nun escaped with four other women.

3 KILLED, PLANE FALLS IN FOG

Crashes on Texas Farm; Two of Victims From Dallas.

By the Associated Press.

ITASCA, Tex., Jan. 25. — Three men were killed today in an airplane that fell in a dense fog on a farm six miles southeast of here. The dead: Ralph C. Kirk, Grand Prairie, Tex., pilot; Albert H. Boren, Dallas; George W. Carter, Dallas.

A farmer said he heard the plane pass over his house and start sputtering. Then the motors stopped. "I didn't think anything about it," he said, "but a few minutes later a neighbor came running up and said a plane had crashed in my pasture."

PLANES AID DUCK CENSUS

Biological Survey Sponsors Count on Both Coasts.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Army and Navy aviators, the Coast Guard in cutters and several thousand paid and volunteer workers were busy today counting ducks and geese. It was a part of the second annual inventory of migratory water fowl designed to aid the Bureau of Biological Survey in preserving wild life. The duck census was conducted along the Atlantic and Pacific coasts.

MISCONDUCT CHARGE AGAINST ARMY OFFICER

Col. J. I. McMullen to Be Tried by Court Martial; Contracts Involved.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—The second court martial within a year to try a high army officer for misconduct in connection with War Department contracts will meet Feb. 17 to try Col. Joseph I. McMullen of the Judge Advocate-General's office.

The department disclosed today that McMullen, whose home is in Palo Alto, Cal., was arraigned Jan. 9 before a military court on charges of accepting compensation for legal services to a civilian interested in army contracts.

The trial was postponed to Feb. 17 to permit legal preparation. No details of the arraignment were divulged beyond that the court martial is composed of 17 of McMullen's fellow officers, headed by Major-General Upton Birnie Jr., chief of the Field Artillery.

Col. McMullen was indicted last June by a District of Columbia grand jury on charges of accepting fees from a firm lobbying against a tax bill. He has not yet been tried on this count.

A few weeks before, he was reprimanded by the Secretary of War, who alleged McMullen acted as attorney for a private company while on active duty and giving Government business to a company in which a member of his family was interested.

At about the same time, Col. Alexander E. Williams, former Assistant Quartermaster General, was tried and convicted by a court martial of accepting a loan from an automobile tube salesman who sought to interest the Quartermaster Corps in his product.

Col. McMullen is accused under the ninety-sixth article of war, relating to "offenses to the prejudice of good order and military dicipline." He is charged specifically with accepting reward for legal advice and assistance given to Joseph Silverman Jr., a dealer in army supplies, while the latter was seeking concessions and new contracts from the War Department. Dismissal from the army is the maximum penalty provided for conviction.

Although still formally assigned to the Judge-Advocate General's department, Col. McMullen has not been on active duty for several months because of illness. He recently was discharged from Walter Reed Hospital, where the court-material conducted the arraignment. The charges developed from an inquiry by a House military subcommittee into War Department expenditures and business practices.

Schooner Towed In After Collision.

By the Associated Press.

PORTLAND, Me., Jan. 25. — The four-masted schooner Alvena, which hove to off Halfway Rock last night after colliding with the Portland lightship, was towed into the harbor today by the Coast Guard cable boat Pequot. The Alvena's port side was damaged, but damage to the lightship was slight.

TEXT OF ALFRED E. SMITH'S ADDRESS BEFORE AMERICAN LIBERTY LEAGUE

Administration Just Where It Started After Three Years Despite Its Spending, He Says

"Rich Ain't Got Enough to Pay Huge Debt," He Declares, Asserting Middle Class Will Do It—'Dig Up 1932 Platforms.'

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25—The official stenographic text of Alfred E. Smith's address before the American Liberty League tonight follows:

Mr. Chairman, members and guests of the American Liberty League and my friends listening in, as I have been told by the newspapers, from all parts of the United States:

At the outset of my remarks let me make one thing perfectly clear. I am not a candidate for any nomination by any party at any time, and what is more I do not intend to even lift my right hand to secure any nomination from any party at any time.

Further than that I have no ax to grind. There is nothing personal in this whole performance insofar as I am concerned. I have no feeling against any man, woman or child in the United States.

Happy and Comfortable.

I am in possession of supreme happiness and comfort. I represent no group, no man, and I speak for no man or no group, but I do speak for what I believe to be the best interests of the great rank and file of the American people in which class I belong.

Now I am here tonight, also, because I have a great love for the United States of America. I love it for what I know it has meant to mankind since the day of its institution.

I love it because I feel it has grown to be the great stabilizing force in world civilization. I love it above everything else for the opportunity that it offers to every man and every woman that desires to take advantage of it. No man that I know of or that I probably ever read of has any more reason to love it than I have.

"Kept the Gateway Open."

It kept the gateway open for me; it is a matter of common knowledge throughout the country, and I do not state it boastfully, because it is well known, that, deprived by poverty in my early years of an education, that gateway showed me how it was possible to go from a newsboy on the sidewalks of New York to the Governorship of the greatest state in the Union.

Now listen: I have five children and I have 10 grandchildren, and you take it from me, I want that gate left open not alone for mine. I am not selfish about it, not for the minute, but for every boy and girl in the country, and in that respect I am not different from every father and mother in the United States.

Now, think it over for a minute. Figure it out for yourself. It is possible for your children's successes to be your successes.

I remember distinctly my first inauguration as Governor of New York. I am not sure that the young folks understand it thoroughly, but there were three people at that inauguration that did understand it, and one was my mother, the other was my sister, and the third was my wife. They understood. They were with me in all of the early struggles.

"Not Easy; It Hurts Me."

Now, I am here for another reason. I am here because I am a Democrat.

I was born in the Democratic party and I expect to die in it, and I was attracted to it in my youth because I was led to believe that no man owned it. Further than that, that no group of men owned it, but on the other hand, that it belonged to all the plain people in the United states.

Now I must make a confession. It is not easy for me to stand up here tonight and talk to the American people against the Democratic administration. That is not easy. It hurts me.

But I can call upon innumerable witnesses to testify to the fact that during my whole public life I put patriotism above partisanship.

And when I see danger—I say danger, that is, the "stop, look and listen" to the fundamental principles upon which this Government of ours was organized—it is difficult for me to refrain from speaking up.

"These Dangers I see."

Now, what are these dangers that I see?

The first is the arraignment of class against class. It has been freely predicted that, if we were ever to have civil strife again in this country, it would come from the appeal to passion and prejudice that comes from the demagogue that would incite one class of our people against the other.

In my time I have met some good and bad industrialists; I have met some good and bad financiers, but I have also met some good and bad labor, and this I know, that permanent prosperity is dependent upon both capital and labor alike.

And I also know that there can be no permanent prosperity in this country until industry is able to employ labor, and there certainly can be no permanent recovery upon any Governmental theory of soak the rich or soak the poor.

Even the children in our high schools—and let it be said to the glory of our educational institutions that even the children in our high schools know that you can't soak capital without soaking labor at the same time.

Quotes the President.

The next thing that I view as being dangerous to our national well-being is government by bureaucracy instead of what we have been taught to look for, government by law.

Just let me quote something from the President's message to Congress: "In 34 months we have built up new instruments of public power in the hands of the people's Government. This power is wholesome and proper, but in the hands of political puppets of an economic autocracy, such power would provide shackles for the liberties of our people."

Now I interpret it to mean: If you are going to have an autocrat, take me; be very careful about the other fellow. There is a complete answer to that, and it rises in the minds of the great rank and file, and that answer is just this: We will never in this country tolerate any laws that provide shackles for our people.

We don't want any autocrats, either in or out of office. We wouldn't even take a good one.

The next danger that is apparent to me is the vast building up of new bureaus of government, draining resources of our people in a common pool and redistributing them, not by any process of law, but by the whim of a bureaucratic autocracy.

"That 1932 Platform."

Well, now, what am I here for? I am here not to find fault. Anybody can do that. I am here to make suggestions. Now, what would I have my party do?

I would have them re-establish and re-declare the principles that they put forth in that 1932 platform.

Even our Republican friends, and I know many of them; they talk to me freely—we have our little confidences among ourselves—they have all agreed that it is the most compact, the most direct, and the most intelligent political platform that was ever put forth by any political party in this country.

The Republican platform was ten times as long as it; it was stuffy, it was unreadable, and in many points, not understandable, and no administration in the history of the country came into power with a more simple, a more clear, or a more inescapable mandate than did the party that was inaugurated on the fourth of March in 1933.

And listen, no candidate in the history of the country ever pledged himself more unequivocably to his party platform than did the President that was inaugurated on that day.

Well, here we are. Millions and millions of Democrats just like myself, all over the country, still believe in that platform. And what we want to know is why it wasn't carried out.

And listen. There is only one man in the United States of America that can answer that question. It won't do to pass it down to an undersecretary. I won't even recognize him when I hear his name. I won't know where he came from. I will be sure that he never lived down in my district.

Covenant With the People.

Now, let us wander for a while and let's take a look at that platform, and let's see what happened to it. Here is how it started out:

"We believe that a party platform is a covenant with the people, to be faithfully kept by the party when entrusted with power, and that the people are entitled to know in plain words the terms of contract to which they are asked to subscribe. The Democratic party solemnly promises by appropriate action to put into effect the principles, policies and reforms herein advocated and to eradicate the political methods and practices herein condemned."

My friends, these are what we call fighting words. At the time that that platform went through the air and over the wire, the people of the United States were in the lowest possible depths of despair, and the Democratic platform looked to them like the star of hope; it looked like the rising sun in the East to the mariner on the bridge of a ship after a terrible night. But what happened to it?

Governmental Expenditures.

First plank: "We advocate immediate and drastic reduction of governmental expenditures by abolishing useless commissions and offices, consolidating departments and bureaus, and eliminating extravagance to accomplish a saving of not less than 25 per cent in the cost of the Federal Government."

Well, now, what is the fact? No offices were consolidated, no bureaus were eliminated, but on the other hand the alphabet was exhausted.

The creation of new departments—and this is sad news for the taxpayer—the cost, the ordinary cost, what we refer to as housekeeping cost, over and above all emergencies — that ordinary housekeeping cost of government is greater today than it has ever been in any time in the history of the republic.

Our National Credit.

Another plank: "We favor maintenance of the national credit by a Federal budget annually balanced on the basis of accurate Federal estimate within revenue."

How can you balance a budget if you insist upon spending more money than you take in? Even the increased revenue won't go to balance the budget, because it is hocked before you receive it. What is worse than that?

We have borrowed. We owe something. We have borrowed so that we have reached a new high peak of Federal indebtedness for all time.

Well, that wouldn't annoy me so very much ordinarily. When I was Governor of New York they found a lot of fault with me because I borrowed a lot of money. That wouldn't worry me if it solved our problem and we were out of trouble. I would say, "All right, let 'er go." But the sin of it is that we have the indebtedness and at the end of three years we are just where we started.

And the farmers and the farm problem we still have with us.

About the Rank and File.

Now here is something that I want to say to the rank and file. There are three classes of people in this country; there are the poor and the rich, and in between the two is what has often been referred to as the great backbone of America, that is, the plain fellow.

That is the fellow that makes from one hundred dollars a month up to the man that draws down five or six thousand dollars a year. Now, there is a great big army.

Forget the rich; they can't pay this debt. If you took everything they have away from them, they couldn't pay it; they ain't got enough.

Now there is no use talking about the poor; they will never pay it, because they have got nothing.

This debt is going to be paid by that great big middle class that we refer to as the backbone and the rank and file, and the sin of it is they ain't going to know that they are paying it.

It is going to come to them in the form of indirect and hidden taxation. It will come to them in the cost of living, in the cost of clothing, in the cost of every activity that they enter into, and because it is not a direct tax, they won't think they're paying it.

But take it from me, they are going to pay it.

Unemployment Relief.

Another plank: "We advocate the extension of Federal credit to the states to provide unemployment relief where the diminishing resources of the state make it impossible for them to provide for their needs."

That was pretty plain. That was a recognition in the national convention of the rights of the states. But how is it interpreted?

Employment Policy.

The Federal Government took over most of the relief problems, some of them useful and most of them useless. They started out to prime the pump for industry in order to absorb the ranks of the unemployed, and at the end of three years their employment affirmative policy is absolutely nothing better than the negative policy of the administration that preceded it.

"We favor unemployment and old age insurance under state laws."

Now let me make myself perfectly clear so that no demagogue or no crack-pot in the next week or so will be able to say anything about my attitude on this kind of legislation. I am in favor of it. And I take my hat off to no man in the United States on the question of legislation beneficial to the poor, the weak, the sick, or the afflicted, or women and children.

Because why? I started out a quarter of a century ago when I had very few followers in my state, and during that period I advocated, fought for, introduced as a Legislator, and finally as Governor for eight long years signed more progressive legislation in the interest of men, women and children than any man in the State of New York.

And the sin of this whole thing, and the part of it that worries me and gives me concern, is that this haphazard, hurry-up passage of legislation is never going to accomplish the purposes for which it was designed. And bear this in mind.

Constitutional Measures.

Follow the platform: Under "state laws." Here is another one: "We promise the enactment of every constitutional measure that will aid the farmers to receive for their basic farm commodities prices in excess of cost."

Well, what is the use of talking about that? "Promise every constitutional measure." The Supreme Court disposed of that within the last couple of weeks, and according to the papers the other day some brilliant individual has conceived the idea of how to get around the Constitution. We are going to have 48 AAA's, one for each state.

"They Don't Function."

The day that the United States Supreme Court decided that case I left my office to attend a meeting of a board of trustees of a hospital downtown that I am interested in, and as I stepped into the taxicab the driver was reading the extra: "Supreme Court declares AAA unconstitutional."

We rode along for a few minutes and we got about three blocks from my office and we got caught by a red light, and the taxi driver turned around and looked at me and he said, "Governor, ain't there any lawyers in Congress any more?"

Just then the light changed and I was afraid to answer him for fear I might disconcert him. But I was already to say, "yes, son, but they don't function."

We have got another plank! "We advocate strengthening and impartial enforcement of the anti-trust laws." What happened?

Why, the NRA just put a gas bag on the anti-trust laws and put them fast asleep and nobody said anything about it. I don't know whether they are good or whether they are bad, but I know they didn't work.

Another one: "We promise the removal of Government from all fields of private enterprise except where necessary to develop public works and national resources in the common interest."

NRA, a vast octopus set up by the Government, paralyzing big business, and choked little business to death.

"A Breathing Spell."

Did you read in the papers a short time ago where somebody said that business was going to get a breathing spell? What is the meaning of that? And where did that expression arise?

I'll tell you where it comes from: It comes from the prize ring. When the aggressor is punching the head off the other fellow he suddenly takes compassion on him and he gives him a breathing spell before he delivers the knockout wallop.

Here is another one: "We condemn the open and covert resistance of administrative officials to every effort made by congressional committees to curtail the extravagant expenditures of Government and improvident subsidies granted to private interests." Now, just between ourselves, do you know any administrative officer that has tried to stop Congress from appropriating money? Do you think there has been any desire on the part of Congress to curtail appropriations?

Why, not at all. The fact is that Congress threw them right and left—didn't even tell what they were for. And the truth, further, is that every administrative officer sought to get all that he possibly could in order to expand the activities of his own office and threw the money of the people right and left.

And as to subsidies—why, never at any time in the history of this or any other country were there so many subsidies granted to private groups, and on such a huge scale.

The fact of the matter is that most of the cases now pending before the United States Supreme Court revolve around the point of whether or not it is proper for Congress to tax all the people to pay subsidies to a particular group.

"I'll Let You In."

Here is another one: "We condemn the extravagance of the farm board, its disastrous action which made the Government a speculator of farm products, and the unsound policy of restricting agricultural products to the demand of domestic markets."

Listen. I'll let you in on something. This hasn't leaked out yet, so kinda keep it to yourself until you get the news. On the first of February we are going to own 4,500,000 bales of cotton. It cost $270,000,000.

And we have been such brilliant speculators that we are paying 13 cents a pound for it, when you add storage and carrying charges, and it can be bought at any one of the 10 cotton markets of the South today for 11.50—some speculators!

What about the restriction of our agricultural products and the demands of the market? Why, the fact about that is that we shut out entirely the farm market, and by plowing under corn and wheat and the destruction of foodstuffs, food from foreign countries has been pouring into our American markets—food that should have been purchased by us from our own farmers.

In other words, while some of the countries of the old world were attempting to drive the wolf of hunger from the doormat, the United States flew in the face of God's bounty and destroyed its own foodstuffs. There can be no question about that.

Now I could go on indefinitely with some of the other planks. They are unimportant, and the radio time will not permit it. But just let me sum up this way.

Regulation of the Stock Exchange and the repeal of the eighteenth amendment, plus one or two minor planks of the platform that in no way touch the daily life of our people, have been carried out, but the balance of the platform was thrown in the wastebasket. About that there can be no question.

"Test for Yourself."

Let's see how it was carried out. Make a test for yourselves. Just get the platform of the Democratic party and get the platform of the Socialist party, and lay them down on your dining room table, side by side, and get a heavy lead pencil, and scratch out the word "Democratic" and scratch out the word "Socialist," and let the two platforms lay there.

Then study the record of the present administration up to date. After you have done that, make your mind up to pick up the platform that more nearly squares with the record, and you will put your hand on the Socialist platform. You don't dare touch the Democratic platform.

And incidentally, let me say that it is not the first time in recorded history that a group of men have stolen the livery of the church to do the work of the devil.

Now, after studying this whole situation, you will find that that is at the bottom of all of our troubles. This country was organized on the principles of a representative democracy, and you can't mix Socialism or Communism with that. They are like oil and water. They are just like oil and water; they refuse to mix.

And incidentally, let me say to you, that is the reason why the United States Supreme Court is working overtime throwing the alphabet out of the window three letters at a time.

Now I am going to let you in on something else. How do you suppose all this happened?

Here is the way it happened. The young brain trusters caught the Socialists in swimming and they ran away with their clothes.

Now, it is all right with me. It is all right with me if they want to disguise themselves as Norman Thomas or Karl Marx, or Lenin, or any of the rest of that bunch. But what I won't stand for is to let them march under the banner of Jefferson, Jackson, or Cleveland.

"We Can Take a Walk."

Now what is worrying me, where does that leave me as a Democrat? My mind is now fixed upon the convention in June in Philadelphia.

The committee on resolutions is about to report, and the preamble to the platform is: "We, the representatives of the Democratic party in convention assembled, heartily indorse the Democratic administration."

What happens to the disciples of Jefferson and Jackson and Cleveland when that resolution is read out?

Why, for us it is a washout. There is only one of two things we can do. We can either take on the mantle of hypocrisy or we can take a walk, and we will probably do the latter.

Now leave the platform alone for a little while. What about his attack that has been made upon the fundamental institutions of this country? Who threatens them, and did we have any warning of this threat?

"You Don't Have to Read."

Why, you don't have to study party platforms. You don't have to read books. You don't have to listen to professors of economics. You can find the whole thing incorporated in the greatest declaration of political principle that ever came from the hands of man, the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States.

Always have in your minds that the Constitution and the first ten amendments to it were drafted by refugees and by sons of refugees, by men with bitter memories of European oppression and hardship, by men who brought to this country and handed down to their descendants an abiding fear of arbitrary centralized government and autocracy.

And listen, all the bitterness and all the hatred of the old world was distilled in our Constitution in the purest democracy that the world has ever known.

There is just three principles, and in the interest of brevity I will read them. I can read them quicker than talk them.

"First, a Federal Government, strictly limited in its power, with all other powers except those expressly mentioned reserved to the states and to the people, so as to insure state's rights, guarantee home rule, and preserve freedom of individual initiative and local control."

That is simple enough. The difference between the State constitutions and the Federal Constitution is that in the state you can do anything you want to do provided it is not prohibited by the Constitution. But in the Federal Government, according to that document, you can do only that which that Constitution tells you that you can do.

"What Is the Trouble?"

What is the trouble? Congress has overstepped its bounds. It went beyond that constitutional limitation, and it has enacted laws that not only violate that, but violate the home rule and the state's right principle.

And woh says that? Do I say it? Not at all. That was said by the United States Supreme Court in the last 10 or 12 days.

Secondly, the Government, with three independent branches; Congress to make the laws, the executive to execute them, the Supreme Court, and so forth. You know that.

In the name of heaven, where is the independence of Congress?

Why, they just laid right down. They are flatter on the congressional floor than the rug on the table here. They surrendered all of their powers to the executive, and that is the reason why you raed in the newspapers refernces to Congress as the rubber stamp Congress.

"Drafted by Brain Trusters."

We all know that the most important bills were drafted by the brain trusters, and sent over to Congress and passed by Congress without consideration, without debate, and without meaning any offense at all to my Democratic brethren in Congress, I think I can safely say without 90 per cent of them knowing what was in the bills, what was the meaning of the list that came over, and besides certain bills were "must." What does that mean?

Speaking for the rank and file of American people, we don't want any executive to tell Congress what it must do, and we don't want any Congress or the executive jointly or severally to tell the United States Supreme Court what it must do.

And further than that, we don't want the United States Supreme Court to tell either of them what they must do. What we want, and what we insist upon, and what we are going to have is the absolute preservation of this balance of power which is the keystone, the arch upon which the whole theory of democratic government has got to rest, and when you rattle it, you rattle the whole structure.

"Once by Mistake."

The third one is methods of amending the Constitution. Of course, when our forefathers wrote the Constitution of the United States it couldn't be possible that they had it in their minds that it was going to be all right for all time to come, so they said, "No, we will provide a manner and method of amending it."

That is set forth in the document itself, and during our national life we amended it many times. We amended it once by mistake, and we corrected it.

What did we do? We took the amendment out. Fine, that is the way we want to do it, by recourse to the people.

But we don't want an administration that takes a shot at it in the dark, and that ducks away from it and dodges away from it, and tries to put something over in contradiction of it upon any theory that there is going to be a great public howl in favor of it and it is possible that the United States Supreme Court may be intimidated into a friendly opinion with respect to it.

What I have held all during my public life is that Almighty God is with this country, and he didn't give us that kind of Supreme Court.

"This Is Pretty Tough."

Now this is pretty tough for me to have to go at my own party this way, but I submit that there is a limit to blind loyalty.

As a young man in the Democratic party I witnessed the rise and fall of Bryan and Bryanism, and I know exactly what Bryan did to our party. I knew how long it took to build it after he got finished with it.

But let me say this to the everlasting credit of Bryan and the men that followed him, they had the nerve and the courage and the honesty to put into the platform just what their leaders stood for. And they further put the American people into a position of making an intelligent choice when they went to the polls.

Why, the fact of this whole thing is, I speak now not only of the executive but of the Legislature at the same time, that they promised one set of things; they repudiated that promise, and they launched off on a program of action totally different.

Well, in 25 years of experience I have known both parties to fail to carry out some of the planks in their platform. But this is the first time that I have known a party upon such a huge scale, to not carry out the plank, but to do the direct opposite thing to what they promised.

Smith's Suggestions.

Now, suggestions — and I make these as a Democrat anxious for the success of my party, and I make them in good faith.

Number 1: I suggest to the mem

HOSPITAL INQUIRY PUT IN HANDS OF NEW GRAND JURY

Judge Nolte Also Orders County Body to Investigate Handling of Public Money.

CALLS ATTENTION TO SCHOOL FUND LOANS

Suggests Duty to Find Out Why Gambling Law Is Not Enforced — Hugo F. Buder Named Foreman.

Investigations of the St. Louis County Hospital and of county officials in charge of public funds were ordered by Circuit Judge Julius R. Nolte in his instructions to the new county grand jury, sworn in at Clayton yesterday.

Hugo F. Buder of Overland, vice-president of the Title Insurance Corporation, was named foreman.

"The citizens of St. Louis County established the hospital as a sanctuary for the sick," Judge Nolte told the jurors. "Current reports brand it as a political plum tree and the plaything of politicians. St. Louis County expects an unbiased, fair and impartial examination of this institution at your hands.

"In making this investigation the Court suggests that you confine it to your legal objective, bearing in mind the element of expense of the investigation, not, of course, at the sacrifice of thoroughness."

Management of the hospital recently has been criticised due to political turmoil growing out of the fight for jobs. Ouster proceedings were filed by Prosecuting Attorney C. Arthur Anderson against Superintendent Edwin L. Sheahan last month after 24 members of the hospital medical staff resigned. A grand jury last year described the institution as a "menace to the public health of the county."

Public Funds Inquiry.

In addition to the usual instructions relating to investigation of crimes, the Court called attention "specifically" to the grand jury's duty to investigate "failure or refusal of county or municipal officials to do their duty and the official acts of all officers having charge of public funds."

"Charges of laxity in law enforcement and misfeasance or malfeasance of officials have been made," Judge Nolte said. "Yours is the duty to maintain the supremacy of the law by indicting the guilty, if any, and protecting the innocent."

Prosecuting Attorney Anderson, in asking for a special grand jury last November, had requested an investigation of the offices of County Clerk Miller, Collector Willis W. Benson, Sheriff Philip G. Heuser and the office of Assessor during the period it was held by George M. Herpel.

Judge Nolte called attention of the grand jury to the fact that the law prohibits judges of the County Court from borrowing public funds and from becoming securities on loans from these funds. A recent audit of school loans showed many had been made to politicians and were delinquent.

Gambling Situation.

Referring to the gambling situation, the instructions said, "St. Louis County, due to its population of more than a million, is a fertile field for organized gambling. Rumor has it that slot machines are numerous. Owners and keepers are subject to indictment and it is the grand jury's duty, if possible, to determine the owners and promoters of this illegal traffic and why the law is not enforced."

Members of the grand jury were selected by three elisors appointed by the Circuit Court after it had disqualified the Sheriff, Coroner Luke B. Tiernon and the County Court from picking the jury. Anderson had asked that the Coroner be designated for the purpose, but the four Circuit Judges, sitting en banc, decided to follow the seldom used procedure of naming elisors. Mayor David L. Millar of University City, James L. McQuie of Kirkwood and Raymond E. La Driere of Ladue were the elisors.

HUMANE SOCIETY SCATTERS CRUMBS DONATED BY BAKERS

Director Says Snow Has Made it Almost Impossible for Birds to Find Food.

Bread crumbs donated by bakers were distributed by the Humane Society of Missouri in public parks yesterday to feed birds.

Eric H. Hansen, director of the society, said the snow had made it almost impossible for birds to find food, and urged persons in residential districts to scatter crumbs in their yards.

That is set forth in the document itself, and during our national life we amended it many times. We amended it once by mistake, and we corrected it.

What did we do? We took the amendment out. Fine, that is the way we want to do it, by recourse to the people.

But we don't want an administration that takes a shot at it in the dark, and that ducks away from it and dodges away from it, and tries to put something over in contradiction of it upon any theory that there is going to be a great public howl in favor of it and it is possible that the United States Supreme Court may be intimidated into a friendly opinion with respect to it.

What I have held all during my public life is that Almighty God is with this country, and he didn't give us that kind of Supreme Court.

"This Is Pretty Tough."

Now this is pretty tough for me to have to go at my own party this way, but I submit that there is a limit to blind loyalty.

As a young man in the Democratic party I witnessed the rise and fall of Bryan and Bryanism, and I know exactly what Bryan did to our party. I knew how long it took to build it after he got finished with it.

But let me say this to the everlasting credit of Bryan and the men that followed him, they had the nerve and the courage and the honesty to put into the platform just what their leaders stood for. And they further put the American people into a position of making an intelligent choice when they went to the polls.

Why, the fact of this whole thing is, I speak now not only of the executive but of the Legislature at the same time, that they promised one set of things; they repudiated that promise, and they launched off on a program of action totally different.

Well, in 25 years of experience I have known both parties to fail to carry out some of the planks in their platform. But this is the first time that I have known a party, upon such a huge scale, to not carry out the plank, but to do the directly opposite thing to what they promised.

Smith's Suggestions.

Now, suggestions — and I make these as a Democrat anxious for the success of my party, and I make them in good faith.

HOSPITAL INQUIRY PUT IN HANDS OF NEW GRAND JURY

Judge Nolte Also Orders County Body to Investigate Handling of Public Money.

CALLS ATTENTION TO SCHOOL FUND LOANS

Suggests Duty to Find Out Why Gambling Law Is Not Enforced — Hugo F. Buder Named Foreman.

Investigations of the St. Louis County Hospital and of county officials in charge of public funds were ordered by Circuit Judge Julius R. Nolte in his instructions to the new county grand jury, sworn in at Clayton yesterday.

Hugo F. Buder of Overland, vice-president of the Title Insurance Corporation, was named foreman.

"The citizens of St. Louis County established the hospital as a sanctuary for the sick," Judge Nolte told the jurors. "Current reports brand it as a political plum tree and the plaything of politicians. St. Louis County expects an unbiased, fair and impartial examination of this institution at your hands.

"In making this investigation the Court suggests that you confine it to your legal objective, bearing in mind the element of expense of the investigation, not, of course, at the sacrifice of thoroughness."

Management of the hospital recently has been criticised due to political turmoil growing out of the fight for jobs. Ouster proceedings were filed by Prosecuting Attorney C. Arthur Anderson against Superintendent Edwin L. Sheahan last month after 24 members of the hospital medical staff resigned. A grand jury last year described the institution as a "menace to the public health of the county."

Public Funds Inquiry.

In addition to the usual instructions relating to investigation of crimes, the Court called attention "specifically" to the grand jury's duty to investigate "failure or refusal of county or municipal officials to do their duty and the official acts of all officers having charge of public funds."

"Charges of laxity in law enforcement and misfeasance or malfeasance of officials have been made," Judge Nolte said. "Yours is the duty to maintain the supremacy of the law by indicting the guilty, if any, and protecting the innocent."

Prosecuting Attorney Anderson, in asking for a special grand jury last November, had requested an investigation of the offices of County Clerk Miller, Collector Wil[illegible] W. Benson, Sheriff Philip G. [illegible] and the office of Assessor during the period it was held by George M. Herpel.

Judge Nolte called attention of the grand jury to the fact that the law prohibits judges of the County Court from borrowing public funds and from becoming securities on loans from these funds. A recent audit of school loans showed many had been made to politicians and were delinquent.

Gambling Situation.

Referring to the gambling situation, the instructions said, "St. Louis County, due to its population of more than a million, is a fertile field for organized gambling. Rumor has it that slot machines are numerous. Owners and keepers are subject to indictment and it is the grand jury's duty, if possible, to determine the owners and promoters of this illegal traffic and why the law is not enforced."

Members of the grand jury were selected by three elisors appointed by the Circuit Court after it had disqualified the Sheriff, Coroner Luke B. Tiernon and the County Court from picking the jury. Anderson had asked that the Coroner be designated for the purpose, but the four Circuit Judges, sitting en banc, decided to follow the seldom used procedure of naming elisors. Mayor David L. Millar of University City, James L. McQuie of Kirkwood and Raymond E. La Driere of Ladue were the elisors.

HUMANE SOCIETY SCATTERS CRUMBS DONATED BY BAKERS

Director Says Snow Has Made it Almost Impossible for Birds to Find Food.

Bread crumbs donated by bakers were distributed by the Humane Society of Missouri in public parks yesterday to feed birds.

Eric H. Hansen, director of the society, said the snow had made it almost impossible for birds to find food, and urged persons in residential districts to scatter crumbs in their yards.

British and U. S. Jewish Leaders Arriving in St. Louis

—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.

FELIX WARBURG (left) and SIR HERBERT SAMUEL

PHOTOGRAPHED at Union Station last night. They will confer with Jewish leaders here on plans for removing Jews from Germany.

Problems of Resettling Jews From Nazi Germany Described

Sir Herbert Samuel and Felix Warburg Speak at Dinner Opening Jewish Assembly in City.

Sir Herbert Samuel, first British High Commissioner to Palestine, and former Cabinet Minister, and Felix M. Warburg, New York banker, told of the great problem of settling Jewish refugees from Germany in other countries, to a dinner audience of 600 at Hotel Statler last night. The dinner opened the general assembly of the National Council of Jewish Federations and Welfare Funds, embracing 54 American cities, which will be in session today and tomorrow at Hotel Chase.

Sir Herbert quoted the recent report of James G. McDonald, High Commissioner appointed by the League of Nations to examine the condition of the German Jews. The official report told of the "relentless" exclusion of Jews from professional life and public office, and stated that more than one-half the Jews of Germany have been deprived of their livelihoods, and that systematic attempts at starvation of the Jewish population are being made in some parts of the country.

Head Softening Creed.

"Germany itself will suffer from the emigration of the Jews," Sir Herbert said, "but this seems of little importance to the rulers of Germany, for the Nazi creed hardens the heart and softens the head.

"The German Jewish community is driven to the conclusion that its younger members must leave the country, and go to lands where they will not be subjected to such inequalities and degradations.

"Some misunderstandings have arisen here. It has been reported that as part of a plan for removal of Jewish properties from Germany, we would favor exporting of German goods, and would advise cessation of the boycott and purchase of German products. That is not our plan, and never has been. We have never even contemplated making such an effort.

"Also, it has been reported that we aimed at relief of the wealthier Jews. That is a misapprehension. We are more concerned with the human than the economic aspects. We desire to assist those leaving Germany to go out with as much property as possible, rather than that they should enter other lands empty-handed; but we desire to rescue the largest number possible, whether they have means or not.

Loans Made to Some.

"We desire to make the German Jews entering other countries self-dependent; it is not their wish or ours that they should be parasitic. Our program will be to help them in some cases with loans, which they will be helped to repay.

"Since the German refugees began entering Holland, 85 new industrial enterprises have been built up by them, which employ 4500 of the men and women of Holland. Instead of adding to unemployment in that country, the German refugees have lessened it. They will do the same in other lands to which they go.

The main refuge will be in Palestine, and the speaker praised the American givers who have helped largely to make possible the present upbuilding of Palestine as a Jewish homeland. The Jews of England, he said, have given $2,500,000 in the last three years for the relief of Jews in Germany, and they are preparing to do much more for the constructive task of establishing the refugees in new homes.

"The Jewish people," Sir Herbert said, "are faced again with one of those terrible situations such as our history has contained before." He appealed for support, in the United States, of plans which he said would call for larger gifts than any previous appeal.

Warburg Urges Aid in U. S.

Warburg spoke more definitely of the German Jewish refugees, mostly young men and women, who have come to the United States, and urged not only money gifts, but help in placing "these fine youngsters" in employment in this country.

"New York," he said, "has an influx of 7000 splendid, self-respecting, self-supporting people who in the past gave more for relief than some of our Jewish communities of equal size give. They have left Germany because all their former vocations were closed to them, and they cannot get the education their parents wished to give them. Thousands have been shut out of the high schools.

"Only luck has placed us on this side of the ocean. All we can do is to open all the doors we can for them in this and other nations.

"What we can and must do is to provide funds which can be advanced to these young people, to establish them. And money alone will not do it. You must help in placements. Hardly anyone here has not some relationship or business connection through which employment could be found for some of these young people. They do not expect as much as our college boys and girls.

"As for the money part, it is not a question of income, or income tax and deductions. Leave your children less money, and leave them an interest in these splendid youngsters who are entitled to a fair show. Get committees organized, and shake the sleeping beauties out of the beauty parlors and into this vitally needed work."

Situation in Poland.

Warburg spoke of the situation of Jews in Poland as critical, and said the problem there had been rendered more difficult by the fact that Polish Jews had been less able to accumulate savings than those in Germany. "If the Jewish people of Poland have to move," he said, "God knows what will happen."

William J. Shroder of Cincinnati, president of the national organization, preceded the visitors with an address dealing in detail with the problems of relief in this country, and the new demands from abroad. He also mentioned the needs of the Polish Jews, saying:

"We are apt to forget the plight of the Jews in Poland, in many of the Balkan States, in Eastern Europe generally, because of the dramatic intensity of the German situation. But many times the number of German Jews are involved; they are suffering as great, if not greater, hardships and economic discriminations; many more are without hope, save in us.

"We did not win the war by 'buying a chicken for France,' nor will we meet the foreign situation by whittling at fractional instead of total needs. We must have a well-rounded program. It must demonstrate the probability of its accomplishment; all doubts of efficiency must be removed; the country must be taken into confidence and partnership. Then we shall be in a position to say, and to be heeded, that the time is here for gifts from capital, not merely income; the call is now for sacrifice, not merely generosity; the need is here and now; we cannot, as Jews, fail our suffering brothers."

Dean Loeb Presides.

Dean Isidor Loeb of Washington University presided at the dinner, and others at the speakers' table were former Gov. Julius Meier, Portland, Ore.; former Judge M. C. Sloss, San Francisco; William Rosenwald, Moses A. Leavitt, Solomon Lowenstein, Ira M. Younker and H. L. Lurie, New York; Sidney Hollander, Baltimore, and Leo C. Fuller, Rabbi Julius Gordon, Aaron S. Rauh, Charles M. Rice and Rabbi F. M. Isserman, St. Louis.

TEXT OF SMITH'S ADDRESS BEFORE LIBERTY LEAGUE

bers of my party on Capitol Hill here in Washington that they take their minds off the Tuesday that follows the first Monday in November. Just take their minds off it to the end that you may do the right thing and not the expedient thing.

Next, I suggest to them that they dig up the 1932 platform from the grave that they buried it in, read it over, and study it, breathe life into it, and follow it in legislative and executive action, to the end that they make good their promises to the American people when they put forth that platform, and the candidate that stood upon it, one hundred per cent. In short, make good.

Next, I would suggest that they stop compromising with the fundamental principles laid down by Jackson and Jefferson and Cleveland.

Fourth, stop attempting to alter the form and structure of our Government without recourse to the people themselves as provided in their own Constitution. This country belongs to the people, and it doesn't belong to any administration.

Next, I suggest that they read their oath of office to support the Constitution of the United States. And I ask hem to remember that they took that oath with their hands on the Holy Bible. Thereby calling upon God Almighty himself to witness their solemn promise. It is bad enough to disappoint us.

Six, I suggest that from this moment on they resolve to make the Constitution the civil bible of the United States, and pay it the same civil respect and reverence that they would religiously pay the Holy Scripture, and I ask them to read from Holy Scripture the parable of the prodigal son and to follow his example.

Stop! Stop wasting your substance in a foreign land, and come back to your father's house.

"This Solemn Warning."

Now, in conclusion, let me give this solemn warning. There can be only one capital, Washington or Moscow.

There can be only one atmosphere of government, the clear, pure, fresh air of free America, or the foul breath of Communistic Russia.

There can be only one flag, the stars and stripes, or the red flag of the godless union of the Soviet.

There can be only one national anthem, the Star-Spangled Banner or the Internationale.

There can be only one victor. If the Constitution wins, we win. But if the Constitution—stop!

Stop there. The Constitntion can't lose. The fact is, it has already won, but the news has not reached certain ears.

16 ROUTED, FIVE HURT, IN FIRE AT ROOMING HOUSE

Two Children and Three Women in Hospital After Blaze at 5603 Bartmer Avenue.

Two children and three women were seriously burned in escaping from a fire which swept through a three-story rooming house at 5603 Bartmer avenue yesterday morning, routing its 16 occupants from their beds.

About 10 of the occupants of the brick and stone house were trapped on the second and third floors. Some made their way to the snow-covered roof of a sun porch from which they were taken by firemen and several others were taken down ladders from second and third-floor windows. All were in night clothing. The injured:

Mrs. Fay Deitz, 30 years old, a widow, burns on the chest, back, shoulders, hands and face, and sprained back.

Elaine Deitz, 10, her daughter, burns on the arms, hands and upper part of body.

Diana Kemp, 38, a divorcee, burns on the shoulders and arms and lacerations of the forehead.

Mildred Kemp, 10, her daughter, burns on arms, hands and upper part of body.

Miss Catherine Mastaglia, 22, housemaid at the rooming house, burns on the face and hands.

Mrs. Deitz was taken to City Hospital, the others to St. Luke's Hospital.

Rescued From Porch Roof.

Mrs. Dietz, a WPA worker employed on a sewing project, told a Post-Dispatch reporter that she and her daughter were trapped in their third-floor room, their escape cut off by smoke and fire. After making an attempt to leave by the stairs, they returned to their room. Mrs. Deitz let the child out a window and dropped her to the sun-porch roof, then hung from the window and dropped, herself. From there both were rescued, along with other roomers, by firemen.

Michael Giuliano, 54, who operates the rooming house with his wife, said he had fired the furnace about 6 o'clock and was cleaning snow from a backyard sidewalk about 7:20 o'clock, when he turned and saw smoke and flames coming from a cellar window. He phoned in a fire alarm from a neghboring house, then ran into his own house and assisted his wife and their 24-year-old daughter, Dorina, in rousing the roomers. Miss Dorina, who had awakened a few minutes before, had walked into a smoke-filled hall as she left her second-floor room, and had made her way to the first floor, where she, too, telephoned a fire alarm.

William Ziff and his wife, Chloe, occupying a third-floor room, were unable to get downstairs because of smoke and flames, and waited at a window in their bedroom until firemen put up a ladder and took them down.

Arrival of Firemen.

The first firemen to arrive found a group of roomers shivering on the sun porch roof and others shouting from windows for help. Second and third alarms were sounded at once, bringing police cars and ambulances to the scene. It was estimated by firemen that 10 persons were taken down ladders.

Within 20 minutes after the first streams had been put on the fire it was under control, and 20 minutes later it was out. Fire Chief John J. O'Boyle estimated damage to the building at $4000 and to contents at $1000. He said he was unable to determine the cause of the fire, which appeared to have originated in the basement.

Those in the building at the time the fire was discovered, in addition to those already named, were Miss Josephine Giuliano, who occupied the room with her sister; William E. McMahan, 75, and his wife, Mrs. Vera McMahan, 70, who lived on the first floor; Leo Hafner, 32, and his wife, Hilda, 29; Mrs. Lillian Bonstell, 43, and her daughter, Miss Gladys Malone, 19.

Harry Morey, Once Featured in Films, Succumbs at 63.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25. — Harry Morey, 63 years old, featured player of villain roles in the silent movies, died last night after two weeks' illness.

He was born in Charlotte, Mich., and made his stage debut during his second year at the University of Michigan, taking parts in New York musical comedies before turning to the motion pictures. He had been a Brooklyn resident 25 years. His wife, Clara, survives.

260,800 IN TWO DAYS PASS BIER OF KING GEORGE

Many Women Faint With Fatigue Waiting to Pay Tribute to Monarch at Westminster Hall.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 26. (Sunday) — When Westminster Hall was closed for the night at 12:15 a. m. today, a total of 260,819 persons had passed by the bier of King George.

No sooner were the doors shut than a line composed mostly of women, began to form for the opening again at 8 a. m. today.

On Saturday 150,777 mourners passed the bier, and on Friday the first day the body lay in state, 110,042 persons walked past it, four abreast. Many women fainted from fatigue but recovering insisted on resuming their places in the line.

Prince Ernst Rudiger von Starhemberg, Vice-Chancellor of Austria, visited the hall this evening.

A blind holder of the Victoria Cross, Capt. Sir Ernest Beachcroft-Towse, took a place among the bodyguard watching over the catafalque in Westminster Hall.

The memory of King George was honored at football games throughout the country. Spectators stood and sang "Abide With Me," the late monarch's favorite hymn, which will be sung at his funeral Tuesday, and then the national anthem was played.

Thousands of school children used the Saturday holiday to pay homage to the late King.

The doors of Westminster Hall were closed only once yesterday to permit the royal family to escort Queen Maud of Norway, only surviving sister of George V. to his bier. She and her husband, King Haakon VII. of Norway, were the first of the visiting members of royal houses to arrive.

Most of the royalty and other delegations will arrive Monday, including Kings Boris of Bulgaria, Carol of Rumania and Leopold, King of the Belgians. King Edward will give a private dinner at Buckingham Palace Monday night for the foreign delegations.

Workmen were busy erecting stands and barriers along the route the funeral procession will follow Tuesday from Westminster Hall to Paddington Station, where the coffin will be placed aboard a train for Windsor. Burial will take place in the tomb section of St. George's Chapel, which was restored by Queen Victoria.

Some windows have been barricaded against the jostling of the crowds. Many shopkeepers converted their windows into grandstands and tiers of seats were sold for as high as $50.

Funeral Plans.

The procession will leave Westminster Hall at 9:45 a. m. Tuesday and is expected to reach Paddington Station at 11:45 a. m. At noon the funeral train will leave for Windsor, arriving at 12:35. At 12:50 p. m. the cortege will leave Windsor Station, to reach St. George's Chapel 25 minutes later.

There the simple services to be conducted by the Archbishop of Canterbury will begin immediately. At 1:30 two minutes of silence will be observed throughout the United Kingdom.

Hitler Sends Word He Will Attend King's Funeral.

BERLIN, Jan. 25.—Adolf Hitler advised the British Embassy today that he intended to participate in memorial exercises for the late King George Tuesday in St. George's Church here. This is the second time Hitler has paid this sort of tribute to a foreign leader. The other occasion was his attendance at memorial exercises last May for Marshal Pilsudski of Poland.

EDWARD F. HUTTON, 58, WEDS MRS. DOROTHY METZGER, 28

Both Recently Divorced; Ceremony Takes Place at Ritter, S. C. Honeymoon in Florida.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

RITTER, S. C., Jan. 25.—With only a few friends in attendance, Edward F. Hutton, prominent New York banker, and Mrs. Dorothy Dear Metzger of Orange, N. J., were married late today by the Rev. R. G. Wickersham, pastor of Bethel Presbyterian Church of Waterboro, S. C.

The marriage took place in the plantation home of Cleveland Sanders, an intimate friend of Hutton, near here. The bride was given in marriage by her father, William Y. Dear, who arrived yesterday with the bride from Florida. The pair have taken a residence at Palm Beach, Fla., and will spend their honeymoon there. He is 58 years old and she is 28.

The bride, divorced Homer P. Metzger in October. She has a daughter. The bride is a niece of Judge Joseph Dear of New Jersey.

Hutton and the former Marjorie Post Close Hutton, heiress to the Post Cereal fortune, were divorced last September. The former Mrs. Hutton was recently married to Joseph Davies. Hutton, owner of the world's largest sailing yacht, the Hussar, is the uncle of the former Barbara Hutton, now Countess Kurt Haugwitz-Reventlow.

BOY ACCIDENTALLY SHOT BY ANOTHER WHILE AT PLAY

Richard Patton, 10, Wounded in Face by Weapon in Hands of Thomas Giles, 14.

Accidental discharge of a revolver while three boys were at play yesterday resulted in the serious injury of one of them. Richard Patton, 10 years old, 6105 Pershing avenue, was shot in the right side of the face. The weapon was being handled by Thomas Giles, 14, 6030 Washington avenue, at whose home the lads were playing cards. The other boy present was James Heuchan, 12, 6019 Washington.

The revolver was fired when the Giles boy, son of Mrs. Laura Giles, a widow, picked it up from a dresser. Why he moved it was not learned by police, but they were convinced, after talking with the boys, that the shooting was accidental.

The Patton boy, son of William J. Patton, vice-president of the Economy Products Co., was taken to St. Luke's Hospital. The revolver belonged to an older son of Mrs. Giles.

DRIVER, 75, KILLED WHEN AUTO UPSETS

Machine Skids and Turns Over After Hitting Telephone Pole in Belleville.

Charles Morgan, 75 years old, of Belleville, a retired railroad mechanic, was killed yesterday when an automobile he was driving skidded, crashed into a telephone pole and turned over at Ninety-ninth and West Main streets, Belleville, late yesterday afternoon. His neck was broken.

His wife, Mrs. Cora Morgan, escaped with bruises and George Flayhan, 15, of Belleville, was uninjured.

Persons living nearby heard the crash, righted the machine and helped Mrs. Morgan out. The Morgans were on their way to East St. Louis from their home at 24 South Ninety-seventh street. Flayhan resides near the Morgan home.

The body was taken to the Kurrus undertaking parlors, Twenty-fifth and State streets, East St. Louis. Morgan was formerly employed by the Illinois Central Railroad. He is survived also by a daughter.

Man on Curb Hit By Car Dies of Injuries.

Struck by an automobile as he stood on the curb at the northwest corner of Arsenal street and Gravois avenue last Tuesday, Francis J. Vogel, 59 years old, died at City Hospital yesterday of a compound fracture of the left arm and leg and internal injuries.

The driver, Kenneth W. Richey, 4101 Wilmington avenue, a printer, said he apparently dozed and lost control of the car after working 27 hours almost without interruption. His machine, after jumping the curb and hitting Vogel, broke an automatic traffic signal and hit a traffic sign standard.

Vogel told police he saw the automobile, but was unable to jump out of its path in time. He resided at 3121A Arsenal street and was manager of a plumbing supply company.

WHAT LEADERS AT CAPITAL SAY OF SMITH'S TALK

Administration Supporters Assail Address Which Wins Praise From Republicans.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25. — Sharp criticism from administration Democrats, but an outpouring of praise from those critical of its activities tonight greeted the speech of Alfred E. Smith before the American Liberty League.

Here are some of the comments made almost as soon as he finished speaking:

Senator Byrnes (Dem.), South Carolina who got up from his bed to comment: "I just want to express my regret that he can't forget his defeat at the Chicago convention."

Former Gov. Ely of Massachusetts: "I don't see how any Democrat can disagree with him. I don't think that any Democrat who subscribed to the 1932 platform could disagree with him if he puts the principles of his party above its organization."

Senator Thomas, Oklahoma Democrat, who attended the dinner: "The Democrats can afford to hire Al Smith to make that speech everywhere. If he makes this often enough Roosevelt is sure to be reelected."

Fred J. Shoyer, Republican, lawyer and city treasurer of Philadelphia: "I can only say that Al once again has demonstrated the courage of his convictions. He is all by himself."

Pierre S. du Pont: "It was perfect."

"Nothing New," Says Doughton.

Chairman Doughton (Dem.), North Carolina, of the House Ways and Means Committee: "That was just what we hear from the press agents of the Republican party every day. There was not a thing new in it. It was what I call a loose harangue from a sour, disappointed has been."

Chairman McReynolds (Dem.), Tennessee, of the House Foreign Affairs Committee: "I thought it was about the worst effort I ever heard Al Smith make. And I could see no reason for a comparison of the American flag and the Moscow flag. That's tommyrot."

Representative Millard (Rep.), New York: "A very sound Americanism."

Representative Martin (Rep.), Massachusetts: "A great patriotic speech admirably delivered."

Former Gov. Albert Ritchie of Maryland: "A great speech."

"Spoke as Good Democrat."

David A. Reed of Pittsburgh, former Republican United States Senator: "He spoke as a good Democrat and not as a turncoat. He was sufficiently restrained, but did not pussyfoot in making his points."

Judge Charles Dawson of Louisville, Ky., who held the NRA unconstitutional: "A great speech. I wish he'd had more time."

Senator Lewis (Dem.) Illinois: "I felt that Gov. Smith expressed his objections to the program of the administration just as he has often before, and was merely consistent in continuing his opposition to the policies of the administration and President Roosevelt."

Senator Robinson (Dem.), Arkansas, the majority leader, who will reply Tuesday night to Smith's talk, went to bed immediately after hearing it over the radio.

Representative Koppelmann (Dem.), Connecticut: "In one part, Smith cried putting class against class which I deny has been done and, in closing, he set up as Communists and Socialists those administering our Government. That, I call setting class against class and it borders on demagoguery."

Chairman Rayburn (Dem.), Texas, of the House Interstate Commerce Committee: "Oh, pshaw. It was a rehash of what we've been hearing for three years."

For "Over-Privileged Men."

Senator Connally (Dem.), Texas: "He was introduced as devoting his thoughts to under-privileged children. He spent his time talking about over-privileged men."

Senator Capper (Rep.), Kansas: "It was a great speech and showed a lot of courage. My guess is Smith has a lot of followers in the Democratic party."

Senator Costigan (Dem.), Colorado: "Former Gov. Smith's attack on the New Deal contributes nothing to ex-President Hoover's. They speak the same language of disappointment and defeat."

GUESTS AT LIBERTY LEAGUE'S DINNER

Smith, Raskob, John W. Davis, Republican Leaders, Bankers, R. L. Lund, 12 du Ponts.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
201-205 Kellogg Building.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—The $5 a plate dinner was the Liberty League's answer to the Democratic National Committee's $50 a plate Jackson day celebration at the same hotel about two weeks ago. The Democrats claimed slightly more than 2000 guests. The League claimed an even 2000, but boasted that applications had been received for 9000 more tickets.

The "non-partisan" nature of the occasion was exemplified at the speakers' table. Borden Burr of Birmingham presided. On his right was Smith, Shouse and Neil Carothers of Lehigh University. On his left was Mrs. Charles S. Sabin, formerly Republican national committeewoman for New York, and former Federal District Judge Charles I. Dawson of Louisville.

Directly in front of the speaker's table sat former Senator David A. Reed of Pennsylvania and John W. Davis, Democratic presidential nominee in 1924. At nearby tables, in choice spots, were Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth, Mrs. Jouett Shouse and former Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland. Two other influential Marylanders, Howard Bruce, Democratic national committeeman, and Robert B. Ennis of Baltimore, also attended the Jackson day dinner.

Former Senator Reed of Pennsylvania headed the list of Republicans present along with former Senator Bingham of Connetcicut.

Twelve members of the du Pont family of Delaware, including Pierre S. and Irenee and their wives, which has contributed a large part of the Liberty League's income, sat near the speaker's table.

NEW FEDERAL RESERVE BOARD WILL BE NOMINATED MONDAY

Speculation on Whom Roosevelt Has Chosen; President Consults Senator Glass.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Nominations of members of a new Federal Reserve Board, chosen by President Roosevelt after frequent conferences with Senator Glass (Dem.), Virginia, will be sent to the Senate Monday for confirmation. The new board will manage the Reserve System after Feb. 1.

Only two members of the present board are likely to be retained—Marriner S. Eccles, the governor, and M. S. Szymczak. Others expected to be appointed are Joseph P. Broderick, former superintendent of New York banks; Ronald Ransom, vice-president of the Fulton National Bank of Atlanta; John K. McKee, chief bank examiner of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation; Ralph W. Morrison, Texas rancher, to represent agriculture, and William T. Foster, Harvard professor. J. C. Persons, Alabama banker, has been mentioned as a possible alternate to Ransom.

This lineup would exclude four of the present board members: J. J. Thomas, Charles S. Hamlin, Adolps C. Miller and George R. James. The new board will have seven members instead of six and will drop the Secretary of the Treasury and Comptroller of the Currency as ex-officio members.

DIRECTED VERDICT FREES FATHER IN BABY'S DEATH

Judge Acts After Two Relatives Testify Against Defendant at Whitesburg, Ky.

By the Associated Press.

WHITESBURG, Ky., Jan. 25.—Robert Mahan, 24 years old, was freed on a directed verdict here today of the charge of murdering his nine-month-old son, Thomas. Circuit Judge A. Monroe Fields sustained a defense motion to free the man after the commonwealth had concluded its evidence in an attempt to show the baby died from severe disciplinary measures.

Mahan's brother-in-law testified the defendant hit the baby with sufficient force "to knock me over." The defendan'ts sister-in-law, said he offered to give the child away because he objected to its blue eyes.

Two defense witnesses gave brief evidence before the Judge acted.

PETITIONS FILED TO OUST TWO STODDARD OFFICIALS

Sheriff and Treasurer Accused of Fraud in Sale of Land for Delinquent Taxes.

DEXTER, Mo., Jan. 25.—Ouster petitions against Sheriff George M. Barham and Treasurer R. Kip Briney of Stoddard County, alleging fraud in connection with sale of land for delinquent taxes, were filed in Circuit Court at Bloomfield today by Prosecuting Attorney Henry M. Phillips and Assistant Attorney-General Franklin E. Reagan.

Barham was charged with paying, or agreeing to payment of, excessive tax attorney fees to Briney, and with buying Stoddard County warrants at less than par and selling them at a personal profit. Briney was charged with receiving the tax fees and speculating in county warrants and also with violation of the county budget act. Neither would comment.

Arkansas Sharecroppers Unite to Improve Their Lot

the union and the sharecropper situation generally.

A Planter's Point of View.

Dibble, who lives in a plain one-story frame house by the roadside, expressed surprise that he had found it necessary to evict his tenants legally, ascribed this circumstance to "some more of the union's doings." Usually, he said, it was only necessary to tell a tenant to move on.

"I've got nothing against the union," Dibble insisted, "unless it interferes with my business. And the union surely made the Negroes on my place worthless. Some of them had been with me several years, too.

"You see, you have to have system on a place. When a tenant isn't working the crop—that only takes about four months out of the year—he's supposed to be available to work around the place, cut wood and so on. Of course, he's paid extra for that—75 cents a day. But my Negroes just naturally got worthless. They just piddled around.

"Negro Like a Saddle Horse."

"No, I just wanted to get rid of them. A Negro is a lot of trouble, requires a lot of care. When a child is born, you have to furnish a doctor, and another doctor when they get sick, and maybe a Negro will just naturally lay down and die. Then you've got to bury him.

"A Negro is just like a saddle horse. It's only good business to take care of him, but he's a dependent, and when he gets the idea he's the equal of white people—well, that makes him dangerous."

Dibble, denied the union's contention he had not made full settlement with his tenants, but conceded that he had not paid them the Government subsidy representing the difference between the market value of cotton and a Government pegged price of 12 cents. He said he would do so when he received the Federal allotment. He painted a glowing picture of the tenants' prosperity, said they cleared from $125 to $350 last year, over their living expenses, and owned horses, cows, besides "more hams" and barrels of flour than I have." He has had no trouble, he said, in replacing the union members with other tenants although he indicated he regretted the necessity of feeding them until they may realize on the next crop.

At the "Eviction Camp."

A visit to the "eviction camp" did not bear out the picture of comparative affluence painted by the planter, nor, be it said, did it correspond to the dire description advanced by union sympathizers. Some of the Negroes, who had anticipated trouble and laid in supplies, possessed stores of flour and meat. Others had nothing, were being rationed by the union.

Although ignorant and illiterate, the men evinced a dogged determination to stand by the union and indicated an utter dependence on its leadership. They said Dibble was "a tolerable man to work for—until we joined the union," but said no one of them had made more than $120 a year, "and that means me and my wife and son all working."

"I reckon all the union has done is to put us on the road," said one man, "but we don't care. We have faith in it.

"Yes, sir, we are Local No. 1," another said, "the first all on one farm and the first to hit the road. But the white men are working with us. They say they will stand back of us. The day of jubilee is coming sure."

They'll Vote as Ordered.

Asked whom they would vote for at the next election in view of the Socialist leadership of the union they replied: "Whoever Mr. Goldberger tells us to vote for," referring to H. I. Goldberger, one of the union's attorneys. H. L. Mitchell, a former tailor, is executive secretary of the organization. A Negro, E. B. McKinney, is vice-president, and Negroes are represented on the executive board.

Dr. William R. Amberson, professor of physiology at the University of Tennessee Medical School, who was among those who prompted an investigation last year by Mrs. Mary C. Myers, an attorney on the staff of the general counsel of the Agricultural Administration, is active now in urging investigations of repressive measures adopted by planters. The Myers report, incidentally, was suppressed in Washington, despite union demands for its publication.

Dr. Amberson, who in common with the other union leaders, lacks now a specific program for definite demands other than the general objective of "bettering conditions," envisions the ultimate abandonment of the plantation system, replacing it with a system of small farms operated by the tenants of today.

Still Fighting to Organize.

Just now, however, the union is still fighting to perfect its organization. It is making progress, despite the antipathy of landowners. Secret meetings are held in lonely cabins, groups of union members may meet for months on a plantation before the planter is aware of it.

Floyd F. Roberts, a planter near Earle, who witnessed the breaking up of the meeting, told the writer that the manner in which the deputies made the speaker return to Memphis was "one of the politest things I ever saw."

"Why, when that agitator asked for an explanation," Roberts, who operates 1300 acres, said, "they just told him 'what you are saying is not beneficial to this community and no explanations are necessary.'"

Roberts said that the "union just sort of grew on us" and added that the planters would not recognize it "unless we have to and that day has not come—nor will we knowingly employ union labor."

Fear of "an Uprising."

Union leaders he said, exploit the Negroes and the presence of armed Negroes at meetings creates a danger of "an uprising in a community where the Negroes outnumber the whites 10 to 1."

The union request that tenants be allowed to sell their cotton when they please and to whom they please is not practical, Roberts said, partly because the landholder is often financed by a cotton factor and is obligated to sell his crop through that factor.

If "mixed meetings" continue, he added, "there is bound to be bloodshed."

Howard Curlin, the Sheriff of Crittenden County, was frank to say the authorities would not tolerate such meetings, said it was "necessary to face conditions as they are, rather than theories." Had one of the Negroes at the Earle meeting fired on the deputies, the Sheriff said, "about 50 innocent men might have been lynched."

Curlin, whose office is under a facade bearing the inscription "Obedience to the Law Is Liberty," said it was a prevalent practice among landholders to allow from a cent to three-fourths of a cent less than the market price of cotton to tenants. This deduction on the price per pound, the Sheriff said, is regarded by the planter "as a sort of seller's commission, a reward for getting the best price."

Landlord the Only Law.

In point of fact, this writer has observed, what the average tenant gets is exactly what the planter wants to give him, no more or no less. His earnings depend on the character of the individual landlord. Many tenants have no written contract, practically all are illiterate. The landlord is the only law they know and when any other law is invoked it is invariably on the side of the planter.

But gradually, the union, despite handicaps within itself, is awakening people generally to the plight of the sharecropper. Last summer, on several plantations, it conducted a strike of cotton pickers, in some cases obtained advances. Both sides claimed the victory.

Regardless of its material progress, it has set the South thinking about an economic problem within its borders that has persisted since the Civil War. And in uniting Negro and white workers on the land it is presenting what amounts to a social phenomenon south of the Mason and Dixon Line.

Smith Breaks With Roosevelt

tion.' What happens to the disciples of Jefferson and Jackson and Cleveland when that resolution is read out? Why, for us it is a washout. There is only one of two things we can do. We can either take on the mantle of hypocrisy or we can take a walk, and we will probably do the latter."

This was greeted by prolonged applause.

Smith Keeps Audience Chuckling and Cheering.

By the Associated Press.

Smith was in one of his best speaking moods. He kept the audience chuckling or cheering as he railed at the administration and its asserted failure to carry out the Democratic platform.

At the outset he said: "I am not a candidate for any nomination by any party at any time. I put patriotism above party."

Smith provoked laughter when he asserted the "young brain trusters caught the Socialists in swimming and ran away with their clothes."

He said the American system was built upon representative government "and you can't mix Socialism with that."

"That is why," he said, "the Supreme Court is working overtime throwing the alphabet out of the window three letters at a time."

"Platform in Wastebasket."

With the exception of regulating the stock market and repealing the eighteenth amendment, he said the New Deal had thrown the Democratic platform of 1932 into the wastebasket except for one or two planks.

He referred to the first plank in the Democratic platform promising reduction of Government expenditures by 25 per cent and went on to add that instead, "no offices were abolished, no bureaus were consolidated, but the alphabet was exhausted."

So frequently was he interrupted that others on the speakers' stand attempted with upraised hands to suppress the applause, realizing that his time on the air was limited.

NRA "a Vast Octopus."

Smith then read planks from the Democratic platform and cited what had been done to carry them out.

Quoting the plank for removal of the Government from competition with private enterprise, Smith asserted NRA was a "vast octopus set up by the Government which paralyzed big business and choked little business to death."

Declaring there were three classes in America, the poor, the rich and the in-between, which class he called the "great backbone of America," Smith said the rich could not pay the administration's debts because "there ain't enough of 'em and furthermore they ain't got it."

Smith went on to say that the "debt is going to be paid by that great big middle class, the rank and file, and the sin of it is they are not going to know they are paying it," because it will be in the form of indirect taxes.

Cheered at Conclusion.

In closing he said: "If the Constitution wins, we win. The Constitution has already won, but the news has not reached certain ears."

As Smith concluded the audience rose in a body to cheer and applaud. The ovation lasted several minutes.

Borden Burr of Birmingham, Ala., the presiding officer, attempted to restore quiet by urging the audience to make this "a history making occasion." As the crowd began moving toward the exits of the ballroom Burr called: "God bless you all."

Smith in Evening Dress.

Former Gov. Smith arrived at the dinner at 7 o'clock, promptly on the minute. He was in evening dress, with a high collar. He smiled as photographers clustered about the head table loosed flashlights as he reached the speakers' table.

An American flag was stretched across part of the balcony over the speakers' table. At one end of the ballroom was the state flag of Smith's native New York.

A crowd in the middle of the room sang "Sidewalks of New York."

Farley Out for the Evening.

Postmaster-General Farley, who lives in the hotel where the dinner was held, was "out for the evening," a telephone switchboard operator reported.

The ballroom in which the Liberty League dinner was held was the same in which a few weeks ago Democrats held a $50-a-plate Jackson day dinner.

Shouse started the speech making with an assertion that unlike the recent Jackson day dinner the speakers tonight would "make no suggestions that those who don't agree with our point of view are crooks."

Apparently he referred to castigation of the league in the Senate Thursday by Schwellenbach (Dem.), Washington.

"This dinner," Shouse continued, "offers a very definite contrast to an important dinner very recently given."

Unlike that dinner, Shouse added, obviously referring to the $50-a-plate Jackson day meal, tonight's seats cost five dollars and "there has been no raid made upon Government employes or any attempt to compel them to be present."

"Unlike that dinner," he continued, "there has been no need to go into the highways and byways to try to get an audience."

Shouse introduced Burr, the presiding chairman. Smith, sitting next to the Southerner, smiled and clapped his hands as Burr made a plea for Government within constitutional limits.

Burr then presented Dr. Neall Carothers, professor of economics and director of the College of Business Administration at Lehigh University, as "a good Southern Missippi Democrat who is up at Lehigh teaching proper ideas to hand-headed Yankees."

The first mention of Smith's name by Carothers brought the longest burst of applause up to that point. Smith refrained from joining in the applause for the assault on the administration by former Federal Judge Charles I. Dawson, Louisville, a Republican. When on the bench Dawson held the first Frazier-Lemke farm mortgage act and the administration's slum clearance plan unconstitutional.

Body of Man Thrown From Auto; Girl Sought in Killing.

LONDON, Jan. 25.—Scotland Yard men were searching tonight for a girl in a leopard skin coat, reported to have been seen at a roadside cafe near St. Albans, Hertfordshire, chatting with a man whose body was found later nearby, apparently having been dumped from an automobile.

The victim was identified today as Emil Allad, 55 years old, a French-Canadian dealer in jewels. Police expressed the theory that Allad, whose body was pierced with bullets, had been "taken for a ride," and that it was the first crime of the kind in England.

G. W. WICKERSHAM DIES IN CAB IN NEW YORK CITY

Attorney-General in Taft Cabinet, 77 Years Old, Succumbs Apparently to Heart Attack.

BODY IDENTIFIED BY PARTNER, H. W. TAFT

Chairman of Hoover Law Enforcement Commission That Reported on Prohibition.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—George W. Wickersham, Attorney-General in President Taft's Cabinet, and Chairman of the Hoover commission which recommended continuation of national prohibition, died suddenly today in a taxicab. He was on his way to a club luncheon with old friends.

Henry W. Taft, his law partner, identified the body of his colleague at a police station. Mr. Wickersham was Attorney-General in the Cabinet of President Taft from 1909 to 1913. He was 77 years old.

Henry P. Cunningham, the cab driver, told police Mr. Wickersham did not appear ill when he entered the cab. Cunningham had driven the lawyer about the city for more than three years. At the intersection of Fifth avenue and Forty-third street, he spoke over his shoulder to ask Mr. Wickersham at what corner he wished to be let out. There was no answer. Cunningham turned and saw Wickersham lying across the seat.

Taft said Wickersham was taken ill two years ago. "Two weeks ago," Taft continued, "while we were standing talking in our office, he suddenly fainted and fell to the floor. We brought him around but he was warned at that time by his family physician that he should take things easy."

A heart attack is thought to be responsible for his death.

His most recent activity was as one of the guardians of 11-year-old Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt's property, during the litigation over the child's custody.

Wickersham is survived by his widow, three children, Cornelius Wendell Wickersham, Constance Wickersham and Mrs. Henry Ives Cobb.

Bishop William T. Manning will conduct funeral services for Wickersham at noon Tuesday in St. George's Episcopal Church here.

George W. Wickersham's Career; Taft's Attorney-General, 1909.

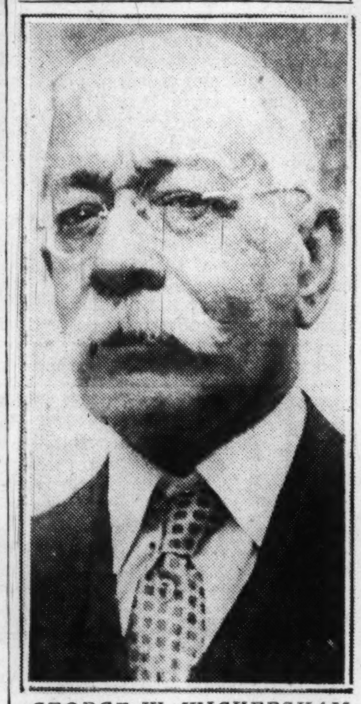
GEORGE WOODWARD WICKERSHAM was born at Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 19, 1858, the son of Samuel Morris and Elizabeth Cox (Woodward) Wickersham. His earliest ancestor in the United States was Thomas Wickersham, who emigrated from England and settled in Chester County, Pa., in 1700. His grandfather, Thomas Wickersham, was the founder and first president of the Philadelphia Board of Trade.

Ex-Cabinet Member Dies



GEORGE W. WICKERSHAM

After studying at the Western University of Pennsylvania at Nazareth, Pa., Mr. Wickersham attended Lehigh University, where he took the course in civil engineering. He then entered the law department of the University of Pennsylvania, where he received his law degree in 1880 . For two years thereafter he practiced in Philadelphia, during which time he also served as editor of "The Weekly Notes of Cases," a publication devoted to the various courts of Pennsylvania.

Attorney-General in 1909.

In 1882 he went to New York and entered the office of Chamberlain, Carter & Hornblower. At the beginning of the next year he became managing clerk for Strong & Cadwalader and in 1887 was made a member of the firm. He continued in that capacity until he assumed the duties of Attorney-General in the Cabinet of President Taft, March 5, 1909.

At the close of the Taft administration, he resumed his law practice in New York as a member of the firm of Cadwalader, Wickersham & Taft, the last named being Henry W. Taft, a brother of the former President.

He was a delegate to and chairman of the Judiciary Committee of the New York Constitutional Convention of 1915, and in war years served as vice-chairman of the New York Draft Board and as special commissioner of the War Trade Board to Cuba.

Wickersham was a member of President Wilson's Second Industrial Conference Board in 1919, and from 1924 to 1929 served on the Commission on Progressive Codification of International Law, named by the League of Nations.

It was seldom that he was not engaged actively in civic, national and international affairs in official or semi-official capacity. He interested himself in nearly every question affecting the relations of the United States with foreign governments. For many years he devoted much time to charitable movements. He also was an advocate of the League of Nations and the World Court and he made several addresses in favor of this country affiliating with both.

The Wickersham Report.

His reputation as a student of and his interest in national affairs led to his appointment by President Hoover in 1929 as chairman of the National Law Enforcement Commission. The commission was charged with making a study of the shortcomings of law enforcement and the failures of judicial proceedings.

Mr. Wickersham concluded that if Federal and state agencies would co-operate in prohibition enforcement, the dry laws "might be modifield so as to become reasonably enforceable." He suggested a division of authority, the Federal Government to prevent importation and transportation of liquor in violation of interstate commerce regulations and the states to handle enforcement within their own borders.

The commission's report of brutality in prisons evoked criticism from prison Wardens of many states.

For several years prior to entering the Cabinet of President Taft, Mr. Wickersham served as vice-president and trustee of the New York Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor and as a trustee of the New York Institute for the Blind. He was president of the American Prison Association in 1920 and also served as chairman of the Executive Committee of the New York Prison Association and the American Law Institute. From 1925 to 1929 he was chairman of the commission on International Justice and Goodwill of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ. He was a trustee of Barnard College, the Carnegie Institution and the University of Pennsylvania.

Honorary degrees were conferred on him by the University of Pennsylvania, Harvard University, Lehigh University and Hobart College. The French Government awarded him the decoration of officer of the Legion of Honor.

On his twenty-fifth birthday, Sept. 19, 1883, Mr. Wickersham married Miss Mildred Wendell of Washington, daughter of Cornelius Wendell, who was Government printer during the administration of President Andrew Johnson. They celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on his 75th birthday.

SILK FABRIC DESIGN EXHIBIT AT CITY LIBRARY AND SCRUGGS

Prize-Winning Work of New York High School Students on Display Tomorrow.

An exhibit of prize-winning designs for silk fabrics, created by high school students of New York City, will be shown in the Art room of the St. Louis Public Library, beginning tomorrow. While the contest was open to boys and girls alike the winning designs were created by girls with the first prize going to Hilda Jones, a student at Girls' Commercial High. Flower motifs predominate though the range of designs includes geometric patterns and adaptations of plants seen under a microscope.

The contest was sponsored by the International Silk Guild. Twelve of the designs, executed in silks and chiffons, will be on display at Scruggs-Vandervoort-Barney during the week. The exhibit which is under the patronage of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, mayors and presidents of the boards of education of various cities, will be shown until Feb. 3.

RETAILERS FROM 41 STATES EXPECTED AT CONVENTION

Merchandising "Clinics" to Be Feature of Association Meeting Feb. 3 to 17.

The twenty-fifth semi-annual convention of the American Retailers' Association will be held here from Feb. 3 to 17. The principal feature will be merchandising "clinics," intended to assist members in working out problems of advertising, personnel, fashions and display.

Members are expected to be present from 41 states, according to Scott R. de Kins, secretary-treasurer of the association. Hundreds of merchants answered questionnaires sent from the St. Louis headquarters to ascertain the problems of greatest concern to retailers. Registration headquarters will be at Hotel Jefferson and the "clinics" and other sessions will be held at Hotel Statler.

SECOND MAN GETS LIFE FOR TORTURE ROBBERY

Calvin S. Harper Pleads Guilty at Fulton — Third Defendant Got 99 Years.

By the Associated Press.

FULTON, Mo., Jan. 25.—Calvin S. Harper, 30 years old, of St. Louis pleaded guilty this afternoon of the "torture robbery" of Bill Howe, aged Negro, in August, 1934, and was sentenced by Circuit Judge W. M. Dinwiddie of Columbia to life in prison. He was the third St. Louisan to be sentenced. The robbers burned Howe's feet in a futile effort to make him tell where $400 they believed he had was hidden. John Simmons was given a life sentence and John Abner White a 99-year term when convicted last summer.

Howe's screams attracted neighbors and the robbers fled. The Negro, who lives eight miles south of here, had been robbed about a month previously.

The robbers who tortured him insisted he had other money hidden in his home.

Harper was taken to the penitentiary at Jefferson City immediately. He was arrested in Arizona after serving a jail sentence for robbery there.

DR. GEORGE GELLHORN DIES IN HIS SLEEP

Funeral Services to Be Held in Sheldon Memorial Tomorrow Morning.

Dr. George Gellhorn, professor of clinical obstetrics and gynecology at Washington University School of Medicine, died of heart disease yesterday at St. Luke's Hospital where he underwent an abdominal operation Jan. 1.

He had appeared to be recuperating from the effects of the operation. Death occurred as he slept, shortly after 7 a. m.

Dr. Gellhorn, who was 66 years old, had practiced in St. Louis for 35 years. His home was at 4336 McPherson avenue and he had offices in the Metropolitan Building.

Born in Breslau, Germany, he received his medical diploma from the University of Wurzburg in 1894, after which he spent six years as assistant in clinics in Berlin, Jena and Vienna. He came to St. Louis in 1900.

Before joining the faculty of Washington University in 1932 Dr. Gellhorn for 10 years was professor of obstetrics and gynecology and head of that department at St. Louis University School of Medicine.

He was a member of the American Gynecological Association and served as its president in 1931. Membership in the association is limited to 100 specialists. Dr. Gellhorn also retained his membership in the German gynecological association to which he belonged before coming to this country.

He was on the staffs of Barnard Free Skin and Cancer Hospital, Barnes, St. Luke's, Maternity, Jewish and the City Hospitals.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock at Sheldon Memorial, 3646 Washington boulevard.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Edna Fischel Gellhorn; three sons and a daughter. George Gellhorn Jr., a graduate of the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis, lives in New York. Another son, Walter, is associate professor at the Columbia University School of Law. The third son, Alfred, is a medical student at Washington University. Dr. Gellhorn's daughter, Martha, a writer, who lives in New York, is the wife of the Marquis Bertrand de Jouvenel.

Mrs. Gellhorn has been active in civic affairs and formerly was president of both the St. Louis and Missouri Leagues of Women Voters. At present she is national chairman of the campaign promoted by the American League of Women Voters for trained personnel in government.

KNOXVILLE KIDNAPING DEFENDANTS TO PRISON

45 Years Each for Cletus Stone, Mrs. Basil Banghart; 20 Years for Carl Stone.

By the Associated Press.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 25.—Cletus Stone, escaped convict from Southern Illinois prison, and Mrs. Mae Banghart, wife of Basil (The Owl) Banghart, gangster, were convicted and sentenced to 45 years each in prison today for kidnaping Rufus Costner and Costner's wife last October. The jury also convicted Carl Stone, brother of Cletus, and sentenced him to 20 years.

During the trial the defense contended that Costner, the prosecuting witness, had knowledge of $85,000 still missing from a $105,000 mail truck robbery in Charlotte, N. C., in 1933. He is a brother of Ike Costner, who is serving a 30-year sentence in Alcatraz prison for participating in the Charlotte hold-up.

Attorney-General J. Fred Bidd had asked for the death penalty for Mrs. Banghart and Cletus Stone under the State's new kidnaping law, and a prison term for Carl Stone.

Cletus Stone denied the kidnaping charge, testifying that Costner went with them willingly.

Mrs. Banghart testified that her husband, who is now serving 99 years in the Illinois prison at Chester for the kidnaping of John (Jake the Barber) Factor of Chicago, gave Costner $10,000 in 1932 to give her "in case anything happened to him."'

She said she and the Stone brothers came to Knoxville from St Louis to collect the money. Costner, she testified, "willingly accompanied" them to Cocke County, where she said he told them he had the money "buried." Near Newport, Tenn., he jumped from their car and escaped in the dark.

Costner and his wife testified the Stone brothers abducted them from their home in Knoxville after binding them and taping their eyes.

Early in October Cletus Stone and Banghart escaped from the Southern Illinois prison by driving a truck through a prison gate. Banghart was captured soon after the break.

Costner denied having any knowledge of the missing money or of the mail truck robbery.

Three Defendants Captured in St. Louis County After Break.

The Stone brothers and Mrs. Banghart were arrested in southern St. Louis County by Deputy Constable Russell Latta on the night of Oct. 30, slightly more than two weeks after Cletus Stone had escaped from the Southern Illinois penitentiary.

Latta, acting as escort for a hay wagon of Hallowe'en merrymakers, noticed an automobile pass him on the Meramec River bridge near Sylvan beach, which bore a license plate whose number had been broadcast as that of the car in which the escaped convict was riding.

He followed the car into a filling station and forced its occupants out. With the brothers and Mrs. Banghart was a young woman who said she was Helen Barkley of Knoxville, Tenn. Cletus Stone was armed with a .45 caliber pistol and in the automobile were two more of the same caliber and two high-powered rifles.

10 YEARS FOR KILLING WOMAN

Lester Frisch, Kansas City, Sentenced in Death of Mrs. Harlass.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 25.—Lester Frisch, 32 years old, was sentenced today to 10 years in prison for killing Mrs. Florence Harlass, whose nude body was found in an apartment here last Nov. 1. Frisch, a former packing company employe, pleaded guilty of second degree murder and was sentenced by Circuit Judge Emory H. Wright.

Kansas City police had subjected Frisch to a drug sometimes used by physicians to alleviate pains of child birth. Under the influence of the drug Frisch told of events leading up to the fatal beating of Mrs. Harlass. Frisch said they quarreled when she absented herself from the apartment in which they had been living here.

SOLICITOR-GENERAL ON THE CONSTITUTION

"A Guide, Not a Gaoler to Preserve Status Quo," Says Stanley Reed.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—In a discussion of the Supreme Court, Solicitior-General Stanley Reed said today "no constitution can endure whose provisions cannot be accommodated to the developing needs of the people to whom it guides."

Addressing the judicial section of the New York State Bar Association, Reed remarked on the rallying around the Constitution of "those who have profited from the opportunities of the present status."

"Great values are at stake," he said. "Those who have profited from the opportunities of the present status combat change with all their might. It is not unnatural that they, as the opponents of legislation in the past, have raised the cry of unconstitutionality. It is to be expected that, in extensions of Federal legislation, they should sincerely envisage the breakdown of constitutional government."

Defending New Deal legislation, he continued: "Until we can hear the voice of final authority, we must reach conclusions upon constitutionality on which normal life must proceed. Desirable as certainty undoubtedly is, it is impossible without a complete abandonment of every prospect for progressive legislation. This, of course, is to purchase certainty at a cost beyond reason. Our legislation must keep pace with economic and social requirements."

He credited the makers of the Constitution with a desire to lay foundations for "a great and enduring nation," and not with attempts to prescribe regulations which would limit the types of legislation "undertaken by the coming generations."

"The Constitution," he said, "is a guide for our progress, not a gaoler to preserve the status quo."

To Lecture on German Tactics.

The German advance through Belgium during the World War will be discussed from the standpoint of military tactics by Lieut. Col. R. Talbot Jr. of the Command and General Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kan., in a lecture before the St. Louis chapter of the Reserve Officers' Association at 7 o'clock tomorrow evening at St. Louis University Medical School.

"TRADER HORN" ACTOR FREED

Renaldo Ends Prison Term and Will Be Deported.

TACOMA, Wash., Jan. 25.—Duncan Renaldo, veteran of Hollywood Klieg lights and featured player in the film "Trader Horn," has just been released after serving two years in McNeal Island prison on a charge of using a fraudulent pass when he went to Africa, where "Trader Horn" was filmed.

The Rumanion actor, who will be deported from Seattle to Rumania and whose real name is Vasile Dumitree Cughienas, said he did not contemplate a return to the movies and did not know whether United States law would allow him to return to this country by legal means.

USE POWDER

DR. LYON'S TOOTH POWDER

100% Cleansing Properties
Twice that of tooth paste
No Grit—No Pumice
Cannot possibly scratch the softest enamel
Lasts Longer—Costs Less
Outlasts tooth paste 2 to 1

THERE is nothing known that will clean and polish teeth so quickly and leave them so gleaming white—as POWDER.

That is why your dentist, when cleaning your teeth, as you know—always uses powder.

As it is only the powder part of any dentifrice that cleans, a dentifrice that is ALL POWDER—just naturally cleans best.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is ALL POWDER—100% cleansing properties. This is more than twice the cleansing properties of tooth pastes.

Do as your dentist does—
when he cleans your teeth

Dentists everywhere recommend Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder, because—teeth simply cannot remain dull and film coated when it is used. Dr. Lyon's cleans off all stains and polishes the teeth in a harmless and practical way that leaves them sparkling—many shades whiter.

Free from all grit or pumice, Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder cannot possibly scratch, or injure the softest enamel.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder keeps your teeth REALLY CLEAN and clean teeth mean—firm, healthy gums and the least possible tooth decay.

Once you use powder you will never go back to tooth paste. Powder leaves your teeth feeling so much cleaner, your mouth so refreshed, and your breath so sweet and pure.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is not only doubly efficient, but it costs only half as much to use. Even a small package lasts twice as long as a tube of tooth paste.

NEW FARM BILL HELD UP BY FIGHT OVER VALIDITY

Senate Committee Asks Wallace to Appear Tomorrow With Legal Advice on Measure.

BANKHEAD SATISFIED, SMITH SKEPTICAL

Other Senators Doubtful; Soil Improvement and Federal Aid to Farmers Provided.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Attempts to construct a temporary AAA replacement program, with subsidies for "economic" use of land, through the Jones-Bankhead bill, as modified by the Agriculture Department, met with opposition today on the score of constitutionality.

The bill was debated at a stormy closed session of the Senate Agriculture Commiittee, and so strong were objections on constitutional grounds from both Democrats and Republicans that Chairman Smith (Dem.), South Carolina, deferred action until Secretary Wallace could appear Monday.

Wallace will be asked for legal advice as to whether the redrafted bill would stand up under the Supreme Court's AAA decision. Senator Bankhead (Dem.), Alabama, co-sponsor of the legislation, appeared to be virtually alone among committeemen in contending it was constitutional and feasible. He was "satisfied with the bill."

As made public by Smith, the revamped measure's policy declaration was broadened to include as one of the objectives a continuous and stable supply of agricultural commodities adequate to meet domestic and foreign consumer requirements "at prices fair to both producers and consumers."

This change was described as increasing the constitutional doubts by Senator Murphy (Dem.), Iowa, a member of the all-Democratic subcommittee that reported the new measure to the full committee today.

Another evidence of attempted crop production control was seen by some interested persons in a revised section giving the Secretary of Agriculture virtually unlimited authority to subsidize farmers after taking into consideration "the productivity of the acreage affected by the farming practices adopted during the year with respect to which such payment is made."

Provisions of Measure.

The new bill provides that the individual farm-aid plan would be operative only until Jan. 1, 1938. After that grants would be made "by assistance to and co-operation with the states in state action calculated to effectuate" the objectives in the statement of policy.

"Funds available after Dec. 31, 1937, to carry out the purposes of Section 7 (policy aims)," a new section reads, "shall be expended in any state only through grants to such state for such purposes pursuant to Federal law to be enacted, except for payments in connection with farming operations carried out prior to Jan. 1, 1938, and administrative expenses in connection therewith."

Senator Smith, who termed the original bill unconstitutional, said there were "certain features" of the new edition which in his opinion "sail pretty close, if they do not cross, the constitutional line."

"The full committee," he said, "decided to meet Monday and ask Secretary Wallace and any legal aides he desires to bring as to whether the bill will conform to the decision of the Supreme Court. I believe that practically all of those who expressed themselves are determined that whatever measure comes from the committee will be in accord with the decision of the court. I hope we may be able to help agriculture as efficiently as the case demands in accordance with the Constituton and the rights reserved to the states."

Republican Leader McNary of Oregon described the philosophy of the bill as "practically the same" as that of the first draft and added that in its present form it was merely a "restatement of the principles contained in the AAA act."

"I'm not impressed with this proposition," McNary asserted. "It voids the constitutional objections raised by the court." While McNary was reported to have urged the export debenture plan of subsidizing exports as more workable, Senator Frazier (Rep.), contended for a guarantee of cost of production.

Referring to the state aid declaration for the future, Senator Murphy said the Washington and Oregon State Supreme Courts already had held unconstitutional "Little AAA's within their borders," so we merely appear to be beating the thing around the bush.

Power to Help Farmers.

The new text emphasizes at the outset the emergency nature of the proposal, declaring it is to "promote the conservation and profitable use of agricultural land resources by temporary Federal aid to farmers and by providing for a

Referring to the state aid declaration for the future, Senator Murphy said the Washington and Oregon State Supreme Courts already had held unconstitutional "Little AAA's within their borders," so we merely appear to be beating the thing around the bush.

Power to Help Farmers.

The new text emphasizes at the outset the emergency nature of the proposal, declaring it is to "promote the conservation and profitable use of agricultural land resources by temporary Federal aid to farmers and by providing for a permanent policy of Federal aid to states" later.

Retained are secretarial powers to subsidize farmers for:

1. Their acreage of soil-improving or erosion-preventing crops.
2. Their acreage of crop land.
3. Changes in the use of their land.
4. A percentage of their normal production of any one or more agricultural commodities designated by the Secretary of Agriculture which equals that percentage of the normal national production of such commodities required for domestic consumption.

Also retained is a provision making the Secretary the sole reviewer of payments to farmers, leaving out the Comptroller-General, who keeps a check on most other Federal outlays.

Another original provision left untouched would permit the use of existing AAA personnel without regard to civil service requirements in the 1935 soil erosion act which the bill amends and expands.

Declaration of Policy.

The text of the revised declaration of policy follows:

"The purpose of this act shall also include the promotion of the preservation, improvement and economic use of soil fertility and the diminution of the exploitation and unprofitable use of national soil resources.

"Depletion of the soil and the improper use of the soil resources of the nation impede the orderly flow of agricultural commodities in the channels of trade, endanger the assurance of an adequate supply of such commodities at a fair price to producers and consumers, endanger the re-establishment and maintenance of farm purchasing power, and otherwise adversely affect the national welfare, and, therefore, it is hereby declared to be the policy of this act also to secure, and the purposes of this act shall also include:

"(a) Preservation and improvement of soil fertility, (b) promotion of the economic use of land, (c) diminution of exploitation and unprofitable use of national resources, (d) provision for maintenance of a continuous and stable supply of agricultural commodities adequate to meet domestic and foreign consumer requirements at prices fair to both producers and consumers thereof, (e) re-establishment and maintenance of farm purchasing power; and the furtherance of such policy and purposes by direct Federal action during the temporary period prior to Jan. 1, 1938, and thereafter by assistance to and co-operation with the states in state action calculated to effectuate such purposes."

ACTRESS IN COURT

JOAN MARSH,

WHO figured in a legal fight at Los Angeles between her mother, Mrs. Lolita Rosher Barr, and her father, Charles G. Rosher, cameraman. Mrs. Barr contended her former husband owed $4800 in alimony and payments for his daughter's support. The court found in her favor.

VERMONT FARMER ENDS 601 DAYS IN JAIL FOR $350 DEBT

Debtor's Oath Saves Him From Life Term; Neighbors, Who Had to Pay His Board, Relieved.

By the Associated Press.

RUTLAND, Vt., Jan. 25.—A 37-year-old farmer, Edward Mjngo of West Haven, Vt., left jail today 601 days after his commitment for failure to pay a $350 judgment. He took a bus for a sister's home in Ticonderoga, N. Y.

Mingo, who had been in jail since June 4, 1934, was arrested because he sold cattle on which Deputy Sheriff Clarence F. Wiley held a lien, and was jailed when he couldn't satisfy judgment.

County commissioners approved release after he proved he had no resources, and permitted him to take a poor debtor's oath.

By the ancient Vermont statute under which he was committed, the State could have held him in jail for the rest of his life if the commissioners had refused to permit him to take the oath.

Before he left the State, Mingo had to assign to Wiley any interest he had in a farm he operated when arrested. Mingo's confinement caused much concern to fellow townsmen in West Haven for they had to pay his board, and long ago had paid more than the judgment which confined him.

PASSAGE OF BILL FOR RIVER FRONT BONDS PROBABLE

Schweppe and Byrne for It, and Lietchen, Also of Anti-Dickmann Faction, Said to Favor It.

It appeared certain from statements made to a Post-Dispatch reporter yesterday by some of the Aldermen in the group opposed to Mayor Dickmann that the pending bill to authorize immediate sale of $2,250,000 city bonds for the river front Jefferson Memorial will be passed.

The bill, now in the hands of the Aldermanic Ways and Means Committee, is sponsored by Mayor Dickmann, who is counting on the favorable votes of the 12 Aldermen who have been friendly toward him in the factional fight which has divided Democratic city officials and party leaders.

As 15 votes are required for passage, the support of the bill by three of the 17 anti-Dickmann Aldermen would assure enactment. Two of that group, Joseph B. Schweppe of the Sixth Ward and George A. Byrne of the Eighteenth, told a Post-Dispatch reporter they would vote for the bill. Another, Otto Lietchen of the Third Ward, has been quoted by his friends at the City Hall as having said he would vote for it. Lietchen is in Florida with four other Aldermen and could not be reached. All of the five are expected to return before the bill comes up for a vote.

Nolte Opposed.

The Board of Estimate and Apportionment approved the bond sale ordinance, Mayor Dickmann and President William L. Mason of the Board of Aldermen voting for it, over the protest of Comptroller Louis Nolte.

The bill has been held in the Ways and Means Committee for more than two weeks, although Mayor Dickmann sought its prompt passage. There is some opposition to it among the seven members of the committee, the chairman of which is Alderman Nick Reidy, member of the group opposed to the Mayor. The committee has announced a public hearing on it for 1 p. m. next Tuesday in one of the halls of the Municipal Auditorium.

The Chamber of Commerce yesterday appointed a special committee to appear in support of the bill at the hearing. The chairman is R. S. Hawes, vice-president of the First National Bank, and other members are Leo C. Fuller, Charles H. Morrill, Carl Sommer and E. J. Russell.

Action Can Be Forced.

If the committee should not report the bill within 30 days from the time it received it the board, by majority vote, could recall it from the committee and pass it.

The $2,250,000 bonds proposed to be sold now are part of the $7,500,000 authorized at a special election last September as the city's contribution toward a proposed $30,000,000 river front memorial for which the Federal Government was expected to provide $22,500,000. Under a State enabling act, the city is authorized to expend only one-fourth of the total cost, or one dollar for each three dollars contributed by the Federal Government. President Roosevelt has allotted $6,750,000 from work relief funds, to be available when the city has turned over $2,500,000 to the Government agency which is to have charge of the project.

Whether any additional Federal funds will be available is one of the questions raised by opponents of the bill.

The latest suit intended to enjoin the city from proceeding with the project, an amended petition filed by Harry L. Rothschlaeger, was dismissed in Circuit Judge Hogan's court Friday. There are no other opposition suits pending.

APPEAL TO SUPREME COURT ON STOCKYARDS FEE ORDER

Kansas City Commission Men Oppose Reduction in Their Charges by Wallace.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Operators at the Kansas City (Mo.) stockyards carried to the Supreme Court today their dispute with Secretary of Agriculture Wallace over service charges. Fifty commission firms and individuals asked the court to set aside orders issued by the Secretary June 14, 1933, reducing the maximum fees for handling livestock.

Filed in the name of the Fred O. Morgan Sheep Commission Co. and 49 others, the petition appealed from a ruling by a three-Judge Federal District Court which upheld Wallace's order.

The reductions followed hearings by the Department of Agriculture under the Packers and Stockyards Act of 1921. The Kansas City operators said that they did not question the validity of that act.

TWO MORE DIE IN SYRIAN RIOTS

Police Seize 250 in Aleppo—Shops Closed in Beirut.

By the Associated Press.

BEIRUT, Syria, Jan. 25.—Two persons were killed in Nationalist riots in Syria today, bringing to eight the number of deaths occurring in disorders during the last four days.

The latest two fatalities occurred at Aleppo, where 250 persons were placed in jail. In Damascus business was at a standstill. Shops were closed in Beirut.

WIFE GETS DIVORCE AND SHARE OF POTTER PALMER'S INCOME

Testifies Chicago Heir to Late Society Dowager's Millions Struck Her.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 25.—Maria Eugenia Martinez de Hoz Palmer won a divorce today from Potter D'Orsay Palmer, heir to the millions of his grandmother, the late Mrs. Potter Palmer, society dowager of the 90's. Judge Oscar F. Nelson of Superior Court signed an order entitling Mrs. Palmer to a share of Palmer's fortune and income. The amount was reported to be one-third.

Mrs. Palmer testified that Palmer struck her, once on June 15, and again on July 10, 1933. The Thomas Wheelocks both supported Mrs. Palmer's testimony, and add that on other occasions Palmer's language was not of the best.

Maria Eugenia, the Argentine, was Palmer's second wife. He is 31 years old. They met in Paris in 1930 and were married shortly afterward. The year before, Potter and his first wife, Eleanor Goldsmith, daughter of a Sarasota, Fla., truck driver, were divorced. Their marriage was an elopement in 1928. She was 16.

NEGRO PRISONERS DENY ALABAMA OFFICERS' STORY

SHERIFF TALKS OF PLOT BY OTHERS

Grand Jury Inquiry Pending Into Shooting, Latest Development in Scottsboro Case.

By the Associated Press.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Jan. 25.—Conflicting versions of a knife and pistol fight in which a defendant in the Scottsboro case and a deputy sheriff were wounded were told today with a grand jury investigation pending.

While state authorities conducted their own inquiry, Solicitor Melvin Hutson of Morgan County directed the grand jury to meet at Decatur, Feb. 17, to investigate events leading to the fight.

The clash occurred as the nine Negro defendants, accused of a mass attack on two white women in 1931, were being brought here by automobile yesterday from Decatur, scene of their trials.

Ozie Powell, Negro, shot in the head, was in serious condition at a hospital here. Deputy Edgar Blalock, whose throat was slashed, was under case of a physician at his home. Powell was shot by Sheriff J. Street Sandlin of Decatur.

"Not a Word for 10 Miles."

A statement by Clarence Norris, one of the prisoners, that trouble started after Deputy Blalock slapped Powell was contradicted by Sheriff Sandlin of Morgan County, who said "not a word had been said for 10 miles" during the 90-mile trip.

"There's not a word of truth in any statement that any officer made threats against the Negroes."

Sandlin said "the Negroes didn't plan the attack on us" and added he was looking for others who, he thinks, might have put the young defendants up to the attack.

Roy Wright and Norris, who were manacled to Powell, denied officers' statements that Wright participated in the fight.

"We didn't plan to try to escape," Wright said, "we wouldn't try now, that things look better for us. We don't believe we'll ever get sentenced to death in these cases, but we believe we will be turned loose."

Ozie Sassed Him.

Norris said he was in the middle, handcuffed to Powell and Wright, when the fight started near Cullman, Ala.

"Ozie and Mr. Blalock had been talking about the case, and Ozie 'sassed' him." Norris said, "and Mr. Blalock slapped him. A few minutes later Ozie reached his hand into his pocket and got his knife. He opened it and then reached over and cut Mr. Blalock's throat. We thought they were going to kill us, but they didn't hurt any of us but Ozie."

Powell said he bought the knife from a Negro delivery boy in the Decatur jail.

The different accounts today were added to the original statement by Powell that he started the fight "because Deputy Blalock and another white man said they were going to kill us."

Because of the Negro's condition, no effort was made to question him further.

Despite Wright's assertion he had no part in the affair, Sheriff Sandlin was holding two knives as evidence. Both, of the common variety, are blood stained.

Gov. Bibb Graves ordered protection for the Negroes "at all costs." The Governor was advised there were no signs of trouble here.

"Every Precaution" Taken.

Replying to statements by Norman Thomas, Socialist; the Scottsboro Defense Committee and the International Labor Defense, criticising Alabama officers, Graves said "the State took every precaution possible."

The Scottsboro defendants have spent most of their time in the county jail atop the courthouse here since their arrest five years ago on a charge of attacking Mrs. Victoria Price and Ruby Bates aboard a freight train near Scottsboro.

They were taken to Decatur last week for resumption of their trials after a Supreme Court reversal of a previous conviction on grounds Negroes had been "systematically" excluded from juries in Alabama.

Heywood Patterson, convicted three times and sentenced to death, was convicted a fourth time Thursday and sentenced to 75 years imprisonment.

Samuel S. Liebowitz of New York, chief of defense counsel, arrived today to make an independent investigation.

Later he issued a statement regarding Sheriff Sandlin to give "all the facts."

Leibowitz's statement, given out after he had conferred with the Negroes in jail and had seen Powell in the hospital, follows:

"Does the Sheriff of Morgan County claid that three Negroes shackled together in the rear seat of a rapidly moving automobile with only two doors leading to the front compartment, with two men in that automobile armed to the teeth, this car preceded in front by an automobile carrying two other armed officers of the law and followed by still another car with armed guards and with State highway patrolmen as an escort, did attempt to escape by using a pen knife?

"If that is the contention of the Morgan County Sheriff, we dare say that the public will demand further enlightenment.

"Ift it was not an attempt to escape perhaps the Sheriff will be kind enough to give the public all the facts that provoked this unfortunate occurrence."

SWASTIKA BARRED AS EMBLEM BY BOY SCOUTS IN ENGLAND

Executive Says Reason Is to Keep Politics and Religion Out of Movement.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 25.—The Nazi swastika is no longer to be used by Boy Scouts in Great Britain. A Scout executive explained that a decision to remove the emblem from the "thanks" badge and the "medal of merit" was due to the Council's desire to keep political and religious controversy out of the movement.

The swastika design for these badges was chosen by Lord Baden-Powell, chief scout, long before the Nazi movement was introduced in Germany. Holders of the badges may exchange their emblems for the redesigned badge if they wish.

Decision to abandon the swastika recalls a similar step taken by British Army authorities last summer. The swastika was used on some motorized equipment of the royal artillery, but when civilians greeted the brigade's appearance on parade with the Nazi salute, the signs were replaced with a four-leafed clover.

Accused of Mine Bombing.

By the Associated Press.

BENTON, Ill., Jan. 25.—A Franklin County grand jury today returned indictments charging Mitchell McDonald and Robert Robertson, Valier coal miners, with the bombing of the engine room at the Valier mine last October. The mine, operating under a United Mine Workers' contract, was forced to close down several weeks to make repairs in the damaged engine room.

KATTELMAN'S PLEA FOR RELEASE DENIED

U. S. Appeals Judge Refuses to Free Owner of Bankrupt Brokerage Firm.

Harold J. Kattelman's appeal from the order of Federal Judge George H. Moore, sentencing him to jail at Bowling Green, Mo., for contempt of court, was denied yesterday by Presiding Judge Kimbrough Stone of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

Kattelman, owner of the bankrupt stock selling firm, H. J. Katteman Co., was sent to jail Jan. 15 by Judge Moore, who directed that he be held in custody until he had complied with an order of the court directing him to deliver $39,205 in cash and certain other assets and records to the receiver for his firm.

The United States Supreme Court, before Judge Moore issued his order of commitment, had refused to consider the contempt case on a writ of certiorari. Kattelman's attorneys now expect to seek his release by applying to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for a writ of habeas corpus.

Another contempt action pending against Kattelman, based on his refusal to file schedules of assets and liabilities as a bankrupt, is under advisement by Judge Moore. Kattelman has contended that he was within his rights in refusing to file the schedules, because they would contain information which might incriminate him.

It became known recently that Federal income tax agents are investigating Kattelman's affairs. He is under State charges of embezzlement and operation of a bucket shop.

SAYS HE WAS ROBBED OF $37

Harry Nolte, Messenger, Reports Two Men Entered His Car.

Harry Nolte, 21-year-old telegraph messenger, was held up at Grand and Lindell boulevards about 11 a. m. yesterday, he reported to police, by two armed men who drove him in his automobile by a circuitous route to Grand boulevard and Market street where they took $37 from him and forced him from the machine. The money, except for $3 of his own, represented collections from branch offices.

Nolte said he parked his car facing north of Grand at Lindell boulevard, and crossed the street to the telegraph company's branch office at Hotel Melbourne. When he returned to the machine, he reported, two men crowded in, threatened him with revolvers, and one took the wheel and drove away. The automobile was recovered later at Spring and Forest Park avenues.

Water Too Costly for Use on Fire.

By the Associated Press.

SYDNEY, Australia, Jan. 25.—Four shops and four Australian homes were allowed to burn down in the town of Mungindi on the border of New South Wales and Queensland because water was too valuable to use on them. The district had suffered from a drouth for so long that no water from tanks could be spared. Water to meet the population's essential needs is carted to the town from a river at half a cent a gallon.

M'ADOO CHALLENGES EPIC FORCES TO POLITICAL FIGHT

Replies to League's Demand That Roosevelt Support "Production for Use" Program.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Senator William G. McAdoo called on California Democrats today to "repudiate those warring chieftains who are dominated by selfish ambitions, and who would rule or ruin the party." He spoke over a telephone-radio hookup to a Democratic gathering in Los Angeles.

Asking for a showdown with the "End Poverty in California" forces of State Chairman Culbert L. Olson, McAdoo said he was willing to "fight it out" in the May presidential primary "so that by November, 1936, we shall have a united and cohesive Democratic party" capable of delivering the State's electoral vote to President Roosevelt.

Olson delivered to President Roosevelt yesterday an ultimatum from the EPIC League that the Chief Executive name a national convention slate from California favorable to Upton Sinclair's "production for use" program. "This is the first time in the history of America," McAdoo said, "that any group of individuals has delivered an ultimatum in such offensive terms to any President of the United States."

5 ADMIT VIOLATING SECURITIES ACT; FRAUD IS CHARGED

24 Plead Not Guilty in Federal Prosecution at Dallas, Tex.; Investors Lost $3,000,000.

By the Associated Press.

DALLAS, Tex., Jan. 25. — Four men and a woman pleaded guilty today of violating the Federal Securities Act. Twenty-four other defendants pleaded not guilty.

Sentences will be passed Monday on the five, Lee I. Starling, Dallas attorney; B. C. Mead, Houston; S. H. Mead, Dallas; W. M. Vick and Clara Mitchell.

The Government charged that investors were defrauded of nearly $3,000,000 through activities of the Midwest Mortgage Corporation, the Securities Service Corporation, El Oro Mines Co. and El Presidio Hotel Syndicate.

Pin Point Saturation . . .
Millions of tiny bubbles—pin point in size rush up through 7-Up on pouring into a glass. No big foamy bubbles to waste the gas.
The water is saturated with gas that expands 5 times in the stomach, dilating every fold so nature can do its work properly.

Hauls 10,000-Pound Load 3511 Miles at Operating Cost Under Third of Cent Per Ton Mile.

Harry Hartz, famed for his speedway records, arrived in St. Louis Monday driving the Chevrolet 1½-ton truck in which he recently completed the first trans-continental truck economy run ever held under the sanction of the American Automobile Association. Hartz was a guest of C. E. O'Meara, local zone manager, and the St. Louis dealers. His truck is hauling a pay load of 10,000 pounds on a semi-trailer that he used in the test.

Covering a route of 3511 miles between Los Angeles and New York City, the Chevrolet delivered a 10,000-pound block of cement at a cost of less than one-third of a cent per ton mile. The distance was covered on 308.6 gallons of gasoline, and with the addition of only two quarts of oil to the crankcase, or at a total operating cost of $37.59. The gasoline mileage was 11.378 per gallon.

Under A. A. A. Supervision.

The test was conducted under A. A. A. sanction No. 3300. The official certificate issued by the A. A. A. contest board certifies that the Chevrolet truck was standard in every respect. The above figures are from the report of the contest board, establishing them as official for the run. Stanley Reed, official of the A. A. A. contest board, accompanied Hartz on the drive, and in his report supplied the contest board with the facts on which the figures for distance and economy were based.

The route from Los Angeles to New York traversed California, Arizona, Texas, Arkansas, Illinois, Indiana and Ohio to Ashtabula, thence across Northern New York by way of Syracuse and Albany to New York City. It thus encountered a wide variety of road surface and traffic conditions, a great variation in altitude and extremes of winter, the last third of the trip being through winter storms and over roads covered with snow and ice. Between Gila Bend and Douglas, in Arizona, a single grade climbing to Mule Pass required a continuous use of low gear for 50 minutes.

The run was arranged by the Chevrolet Motor Co. as a demonstration of the benefits of safe driving as a means of promoting economy and truck operation. Legal speed limits and all traffic regulations of the states and municipalities along the route were observed, and the speed was never permitted to exceed 35 miles an hour.

W. E. Fish, manager of the Chevrolet truck department, Detroit, said that the low cost of the long truck run was due not only to the improved design of the 1936 Chevrolet engine and chassis, but also to the economy that resulted from driving within reasonable speed limits.

Truck Taken From Assembly Line.

"We believe that the results of this run," said Fish, "will be of interest to every long-distance truck operator. In fact, it will be a revelation to many of them that the modern truck has reached a state of such perfection that it can complete a 3500-mile trip with the expenditure of only two quarts of motor oil while averaging 11.37 miles per gallon of gasoline.

"The cost per ton mile, less than one-third of a cent, is, of course, reckoned only on the actual pay load of five tons. The total weight of the semi-trailer load was 12,360 pounds.

"The truck used in the run was picked from the Chevrolet assembly line at Flint by Eric von Hambach and Stanley Reed, official representatives of the A. A. A. They immediately checked the truck to certify that it was of standard construction, covering bore and stroke, gear ratio, carburetor, cooling system, etc. They then sealed the engine and chassis and affixed locks to the gasoline tank and crankcase. The keys were kept by the official observer on the trip, so that he could certify to the quanities of oil and gasoline used on the run."

Studebaker Cars Win Yosemite Economy Run in Price Classes

In the annual Yosemite Economy Sweepstakes held recently in California both the Studebaker Dictator and the Studebaker President defeated all competitors in their price classes.

The sweepstakes, held under A. A. A. supervision, attracted a field of 30 cars. The competition was based entirely upon gasoline consumption, with the results recorded in ton miles per gallon. The mountainous course was 352 miles long.

The Studebaker Dictator six won first place in its price class with a score of 50.9, figured on a per ton mile basis, which, expressed in the average motorist's language, means that the car delivered 24.27 miles per gallon of gasoline.

The President eight rated a score of 48.65 on a per ton mile basis, or 20.34 miles per gallon of gasoline.

The Fuel Oil Co., distributer of Skelly gasoline in the St. Louis territory, held a banquet and meeting Monday night at the Broadview Hotel, East St. Louis. The meeting was attended by 75 Skelly dealers.

W. F. Schierholz, president of the Fuel Oil Co., was toastmaster. The guest of honor was Embry Kaye, vice-president of the Skelly Oil Co. He discussed the production of gasoline and oil and outlined plans for 1936 business.

Trans-Continental Truck Here

Harry Hartz, the Indianapolis Speedway driver, and the Chevrolet truck, with semi-trailer carrying a 10,000-pound cement block, that he drove 3511 miles from Los Angeles to New York at a cost of less than a third of a cent per ton mile. The photograph was taken in St. Louis Monday when Hartz drove the truck and trailer to the Chevrolet plant, at Union and Natural Bridge to visit Zone Manager C. E. O'Meara.

Civic Groups Called to Meeting to Plan Traffic Safety Drive

Ways to Insure Statewide Action to Be Considered Tuesday Night.

Representatives of St. Louis civic, safety, commercial, labor, religious and fraternal organizations, will attend a meeting Tuesday night called by Oliver T. Remmers and John C. Tobin, general chairman and vice-chairman, respectively of Missouri Safety Mobilization. The purpose will be to stimulate public support for a movement by citizen groups to foster traffic accident prevention and co-operate with public officials in the reduction of automobile accident deaths and injuries.

The meeting will be a dinner at Hotel Kings-Way. Invitations to speak have been sent to Edward A. Kayser, president of the St. Louis Safety Council; Mrs. Joseph E. Davis, president of the Missouri Federation of Women's Clubs; the Rev. C. Oscar Johnson, president of the Ministerial Alliance of Greater St. Louis; Mrs. Norman M. Windsor, president of the Child Conservation Conference; John S. Leahy, president of the Catholic Club of St. Louis; J. Harry Pohlman, president of the St. Louis Public School Patrons Alliance; John C. Vogel, chairman of St. Louis American Legion posts, and W. M. Brandt, secretary of the Central Trades and Labor Union of St. Louis.

Following the addresses an open forum will be conducted by Remmers, who will preside. Suggestions will be sought as to how public opinion, aroused over the automobile accident situation, may be directed toward prevention of accidents, city and State.

"Safety Mobilization is not an attempt to form a new organization," Remmers said, "but, rather, a statewide movement to assist local groups of all kinds to take part in a swing toward better and safer driving. The practical way in which these citizen groups can participate in a constructive accident prevention program will be stressed."

The movement was started by the Automobile Club of Missouri. Gatherings representative of local groups are being held in cities throughout the State under the leadership of local chairmen and the club's State vice-chairman, Hugh Stephens of Jefferson City.

La Salle Brakes Capable of Stopping Effect of 450 H. P.

Exceptional ease of control of the new LaSalle cars is cited by Guy W. Oliver of the Oliver Cadillac Co.

"Several factors," he says, "contribute toward this. One is LaSalle's high ratio of power to weight, reflected in rapid acceleration in traffic and in effortless performance.

"The application of this power is rendered easy by synchro-mesh transmission gears, a development which Cadillac pioneered. It prevents clashing of gear teeth during shifting. Another factor is LaSalle's shock-proof steering and steering ratio that permits the car to be turned within a radius of 20 feet.

"Probably the control factor of most importance in the new LaSalle is the super-hydraulic braking system. These brakes multiply a light foot pressure on the pedal into a retarding force of 450 horsepower.

Lions Ignore Autos.

Lions in Kruger National Park in the Eastern Transvaal, South Africa, have become so accustomed to automobiles that they seldom notice a car. Park officials are instructing visitors that if they see the beasts lying in the middle of the road, to slow down until they move away. Visitors should remain calm if the lions stare at the machine.

Chevrolet Mechanics to Receive Badges at Banquet Tomorrow

C. W. Wood, national director of service for the Chevrolet Motor Co., R. C. Clark, chief service school instructor, and several other central office executives will speak at a banquet at Hotel Statler tomorrow evening at which approved mechanics' badges will be presented to 75 Chevrolet service mechanics in the St. Louis zone who qualified during the past year.

The presentation will be made by Clark, who has had charge of the service training work through which the men have gone.

R. C. Andrews, service manager for the St. Louis zone, said that the banquet is part of a national program started in 1935 by Chevrolet as a means of maintaining service on a par with the quality of the car.

"The entire undertaking," he said, "is based on the recognition that, regardless of the factors which determine the buyer's original choice of a given make of car, it is the service he receives that decides whether he will buy that make again.

"To assure the necessary emphasis on the service end of the business, Chevrolet is operating year-round service schools all over the United States. The course is designed to insure expert knowledge of the car and to promote the type of customer relations which make for continued patronage. There are frequent quizzes and written examinations, and the 'students' are graded on their papers. The result of this grading is the basis of the badge presentation."

Practices in Driving That Increase 'Gas' Cost Noted in Test

Ninety million dollars in gas and oil expenses would be saved each year if only half the motorists in the United States observed nine simple driving practices evolved on the General Motors proving ground by the Pontiac Motor Co. after a series of mileage tests.

That slow driving pays was shown by the tests, made with eight leading makes of cars priced below $850, each one scientifically checked at every 10-mile speed from 20 to 70.

At 20, the best mileage delivered by any of the eight makes of cars was 24 miles to the gallon, while at 70 none of the eight could do better than 13.9, or 56 per cent less, indicating that the 70-mile driver pays out almost twice as much for gas and oil to cover one mile as does the slower driver.

The least mileage delivered by any of the eight cars was 19.7 at 20 miles per hour, and 10.7 at 70.

The nine practices which Pontiac engineers discovered contributed most to unnecessary high gasoline consumption were:

Starting unnecessarily often; driving with choke on; tramping on the accelerator; too much second gear driving; accelerating on hills; fast driving against wind; sustained high speed driving; idling motor, and too fast driving on slippery road.

These practices result in astonishingly large extra cost for gasoline.

Six Per Cent Plan for New Dodge Trucks

Dodge now offers the low-priced 6 per cent time-payment plan to buyers of its new 1936 trucks and commercial cars. The arrangement is the same as that under which passenger cars are being sold.

"Teh 6 per cent plan represents a radical departure from the conventional interest charges on the deferred payments on trucks and commercial cars," the Dodge Brothers Corporation says. "There is no reason why trucks should not be sold on the low per cent time-payment plan, the same as passenger cars."

General Motors Truck Co. Models for 1936 Announced

New Styling, Engine and Chassis Betterments and Improved Braking Featured.

The General Motors Truck Co. announces for 1936 the most complete line of trucks and trailers in its history. New and distinctive front end styling of radiator, fenders, cab and hood, give a streamlined appearance to all models.

The 1936 line leads off with a new one-half ton model T-14, followed by a new one and one-half to two ton unit with many improvements. Three new engines with important features for truck service are introduced. The T-18 and T-18-H have the "239"; T-23 and T-23-H have the "257," and T-33 and T-33-H have the "286" engines. The "331" and "400" series engines remain unchanged. Both the T-61 and T-61-H, which have the "400" engine, may be fitted with the standard "450" at extra cost.

Improved Braking.

The "H" series models listed this year indicate companion models having the same chassis features, but using the rear end assembly—axle, springs—of the next larger model, thus increasing load-carrying capacity.

All models in the line, except the T-14, T-16 and T-16-H, now have set-back front axles, giving standard SAE loading spaces within relatively shorter wheelbase lengths. Dual performance rear axles are available at extra cost on models T16 and T-46, inclusive, giving increased power in the low range and fasted speeds in high range.

Improved brakes are a feature of all models. Hydraulic brakes are found on the lighter jobs, T-14 to T-18-H, inclusive; hydraulic brakes with vacuum power on T-23 to T-46, inclusive, and air brakes on the T-61 and T-61-H.

Governors are standard on all models from T18 on. The new Leibing velocity governor has been adopted for models T-18 to T-33-H, inclusive, while the Handy governor is continued on T-46, T-61 and T-61-H.

Other Features.

A new rubberencased propeller-shaft center bearing is now on every model in the line above the T-14. The heart of this unit is a permanently greased and sealed self-aligning ball-bearing mounted in a rubber ring. The rubber mounting prevents the telegraphing of axle and transmission noises and is said to be trouble-free, not requiring lubrication or inspection during the life of the vehicle.

Rear axles have flange stud construction. All the studs transmitting torque are fitted with tapered dowels. This is said to give a permanent, non-loosening connection.

There is an unusual variety of color options at no extra cost, comparable to passenger car practice, giving 12 colors for a color scheme on any model without extra cost or delay. In addition, there is a special choice of seven de luxe color combinations on any model which specifies any of the de luxe options. This, too, at no extra cost.

Terraplane Does 23.9 M. P. G. in Run, Hudson Eight, 22.86

A stock Terraplane brougham traveled 23.95 miles on a gallon of gasoline and a stock Hudson eight, 22.86 miles per gallon, in the Gilmore-Yosemite Economy Run just concluded. The run, held under rules and sanction of the Contest Board of the American Automobile Association was from Los Angeles to Yosemite, Cal., a distance of approximately 335 miles.

The last 250 miles of the run, much of which is at high altitude through mountainous country was made in a high wind with rain at the lower levels and snow at the higher. Well-known race drivers piloted the cars, Babe Stapp being at the wheel of the Terraplane and Wilbur Shaw driving the Hudson. Complete equipment was carried by the cars, including spare tires and all catalogued accessories in accordance with stock car rules which prevailed. No changes in timing, axle ratios or other material units were permitted.

Graham Supercharger Wins Sweepstakes Award in Economy Run

A Graham supercharger sedan won the sweepstakes award in the Los Angeles-to-Yosemite Valley Economy Run, according to the findings of American Automobile Association officials who supervised the test.

A gasoline mileage of 26.66 miles per gallon for the 352 miles was scored by the Supercharger to win the event.

Driving a Graham Supercharger, "Cannonball" Baker, veteran race driver, made another fuel economy record with an average of 28.74 miles per gallon for the 1426 miles between New York and Miami, Fla.

Site-Pannell Tire Co. Appointed Distributer of Majestic Batteries

The Site-Pannell Tire Co., Inc., has been appointed distributor in Missouri and Illinois of Majestic batteries. These batteries are manufactured by the Majestic Battery and Equipment Co., of Chicago, Philadelphia and Dallas, Tex.

Three thousand of the batteries are made daily in the company's Chicago plant, 1000 a day in Philadelphia and 700 a day in Dallas, W. C. Pannell, of the distributing firm, says.

Al Mayer continues as zone manager for the Majestic factories, which have 375 dealer accounts in this territory.

1000-Pound Moose Brought From Woods On Top of Auto

MR. AND MRS. PERLEY JONES of South Portland, Me., killed a thouasnd-pound moose in the Maine woods in the recent hunting season, then brought it out lashed on top of their Terraplane coupe.

The moose was shot in a ravine five miles from the nearest road. Jones went back to the car and drove it across the unbroken woodland, through thick underbrush to the gully. A tackle was rigged from a tree and the animal hoisted on top of the car, where it was lashed in place.

Then came the task of driving out through the brush and over rough ground with the additional load. The car was then driven eight miles over a tow road to the highway and then 225 miles to Portland.

New "Winter Gas" Said to Be Help in Making Driving Safer

"Concern for safer automobile driving is one of the reasons for the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana's new winter gasoline, which starts and warms engines 35 per cent quicker and reduces the time and distance during which engine failure is the cause of accidents," a statement by the company says.

"Realizing the danger of accidents when a driver is diverting his attention from the road to the choke lever and other controls to warm a cold motor, Standard engineers have developed the new motor fuel to start a properly operated and conditioned engine instantly at any temperature down to 30 degrees below zero, and to warm the engine so that it will operate dependably at ordinary winter temperatures in less than half the time formerly necessary for such operation.

"While 10 years ago as much as two miles were needed to warm an automobile engine, and last year nearly a mile was required, this season a motor using the new Standard winter gasoline can be running properly within less than four blocks.

"Compare the new winter gasoline to a well-laid lot of fuel in a fireplace, where there would be paper to provide the first flash of fire, some kindling to get the fire going steadily, and finally the wood or coal to do the real work. This winter the new Standard gasoline not only has better flash material, but also better kindling material. The 'fire' starts faster, and gets the heavy fuel going, in fewer seconds. That means shortening of the danger period when a cold engine may fail to respond properly to controls. It means safer driving!"

Army of Drivers for Standard Brands Pledged to Safe Driving

An "I Drive Safetly" pledge adopted by the 3500 drivers for Standard Brands, Inc., is displayed on stickers on their vehicles in all parts of the United States and Canada. The idea is to encourage safety precautions on the streets and highways, according to an announcement by Joseph Wilshire, president of the concern, received by J. J. McCarthy, local representative.

The stickers bear the slogan in large letters. The company cars, wagons, sleighs and motorcycles are said to compose the largest industrial delivery system in the world, devoted to the distribution of fresh foods.

This army of drivers, according to Wilshire, has always been carefully schooled in safe driving and continuous efforts are made to lessen the number of accidents. The report for the first half of 1935 showed a five per cent decrease over the same period of the preceding year, and a reduction of 10 per cent is expected this year. An annual contest between divisions for low number of accidents has been an aid in the drive for safety.

New Light Mack Jr. Trucks and Buses Added to Mack Line

Mack Trucks, Inc., will enter into the light truck and bus field with a line of light Mack Jr. trucks and buses in seven models, A. C. Webb, local branch manager, announces.

The new line of Mack Jr. trucks will comprise four models ranging from a one-half ton job to a two-third ton job. There will be three designs of buses. Two of these will be of the transit type, one with a front-mounted engine, the other with the engine mounted longitudinally at the rear. The third will be of the conventional type with the engine in front. Both the trucks and the buses will be serviced at the factory branch, 2350 Chouteau avenue.

Hitherto the company has manufactured only heavy-duty trucks.

The trucks will have engines with chrome-nickel cylinder blocks, Stellite valve inserts, full pressure lubrication, aluminum pistons, die cast bearings and crankshafts of the highest grade steel.

Pontiac Central Office Appointment Made

Three appointments in the central office personnel of the Pontiac Motor Co. are announced by A. W. L. Gilpin, vice-president and general salesmanager.

F. H. Fenn has been named manager of sales promotion and group selling; W. I. Gibson, assistant to both the general manager and the general salesmanager and E. R. Pettingill, car distributer.

General Motors Special Showings Set for February

Cars and Trucks Made by Its Divisions to Be Featured Here and in 44 Other Cities.

General Motors will hold its 1936 special showings of motor cars, automotive and household products earlier than usual this year, Alfred P. Sloan Jr., president, announced today, due to the early introduction of new models in November of last year. These showings are usually held from two to three months after the national automobile show, previously held early in January at New York.

The shows, to be held in the principal exhibition halls of 45 cities on varying dates this year, will start Feb. 1 and will be concluded May 2, the majority of shows lasting a week, as in the past.

Featuring the exhibits will be the latest models of General Motors cars, showing the current advances in engineering and style, with special reference to Fisher body turret top, all-steel bodies, no-draft ventilation and streamlined styling, in addition to knee action wheels, hydraulic brakes and other mechanical features.

Among other General Motors products to be shown will be some of the latest developments for making life more livable, more comfortable.

Each showing will have the same decorative background, consisting of sateen wall panels, broken by light columns and decorative trees. In the center of each hall, mounted on an oblong platform, surrounded by a railing 12 by 20 feet, will be a replica of an automobile plant with two sets of minature trains entering and leaving the factory. In the evening, the factory will be lit from within and the synchronized flashing of lights behind black silhouette figures will provide the illusion of men at work.

For entertainment a prominent orchestra will furnish music in each city, afternoons and evenings, while in many cities amateur contests and style shows will be staged.

In many of the larger city showings, General Motors and Chevrolet trucks will be on display. In all, representative models of Chevrolet, Pontiac, Oldsmobile, Buick, La Salle and Cadillac cars will be shown as will a GMCA display.

The showing will be held in St. Louis Feb. 8-15.

American Car Rolls Over Rough Ethiopian Trails on Daily Trips

Dr. Arthur Torrance, an American expert on tropical medicine, was called to Ethiopia from Borneo, where he was conducting a leprosy survey. He went to Addis Ababa, conferred with Ethiopian war lords and visited Emperor Haile Selassie. Plans for organizing Red Cross units to minister to soldiers wounded or stricken with diseases on the Ethiopian front lines near Harar were evolved.

Dr. Torrance left for Harar in his American-built Plymouth sedan soon after the conferences and, according to a letter from Addis Ababa, has been using the car over the "unbelievably rough" terrain of the Ethiopian front near Harar on daily trips from the several Red Cross bases. The doctor had taken his American car with him to Ethiopia from Borneo.

Dr. Torrance reported seeing "a number of Plymouths being driven wherever an Ethiopian trail is wide enough to enable a car to travel."

Motor Taxes Exceed Amount Paid for New Cars.

Automobile taxes in the United States in 1934 (including gasoline taxes) amounted to $1,200,000,000. That was more than all American motor manufacturers received for new cars.

Average Price of Automobile.

Ninety-five per cent of all automobiles sold in the United States are marketed for less than $750 wholesale.

Chevrolet Produces Its Six-Millionth Six-Cylinder Auto

Chevrolet's six-millionth six was built in the Flint plant Jan. 16. The company introduced the six-cylinder engine in the low price field with its 1929 models and built 1,328,605 units in that year.

The second million-car year was 1935, with a total of 1,066,196. Since its inception in 1912 Chevrolet has built over 11,000,000 cars, more than half of them being six-cylinder models.

The 1929 models had 46 horsepower, and today's have 78.

General Motors Truck Co. Half-Ton Delivery Coming Soon

A light delivery vehicle from the General Motors Truck factory is about to go into production of quality half-ton delivery unit.

The 126-inch chassis will accommodate bodies more than seven feet long. Weatherproof hydraulic brakes will be used.

Highways in National Parks.

Recent improvement of almost 100 miles of roads has brought the total of efficient highways in the national parks of the United States up to 930 miles.

Dodge Announces Convertible Sedan Model in Production

The Dodge Division of Chrysler Corporation has begun production of a two-purpose or convertible sedan model.

The new convertible is mounted on the 116-inch wheelbase, 87 h. p., 1936 Dodge chassis, and comes with a commodious trunk built into the streamlined slope of the body rear. A subframe extends along the lower edges of the body and, in front, rises around the cowl section with the effect of making the latter virtually a part of the body structure proper.

Interior dimensions are generally those of the season's closed Dodge models. Front and rear doors, all swinging forward, are considerably wider than its usual width, making for comfortable entry and exit. The windows are set in chromium frames and, when raised, give the passengers weather protection.

NIGHT FORMATION FLYING BLAMED IN ARMY AIR CRASH

Flyers at Hawaiian Base Assail Practice — Pilots Under 'High Tension' in Darkness.

SIX KILLED WHEN TWO PLANES COLLIDE

Two Jump and Reach Ground Safely — Ships Fall in Flames From More Than 500 Feet.

By the Associated Press.

HONOLULU, Jan. 25.—Army authorities began an investigation today into the collision last night of two big fighting planes, flying in night formation, in which six men were killed.

Army flyers who refused to be quoted directly, said night formation flights, familiar to Honolulu residents, probably are the most unpopular of any sort with military flyers. The pilots declared officers and men often return from night formation flights in "high tension." They said also the planes usually used are noted for their slowness and "laziness."

With a roar heard 10 miles away in Honolulu the two planes came together last night somewhere between 500 and 1200 feet above Ford Island, Hawaii's military air base. They fell in flames.

The Dead.

Two men jumped and came out alive.

The dead, all badly burned, were: Lieut. William G. Beard, 28 years old, San Francisco, pilot of one of the planes; Staff Sergeant Bernard F. Jablonowsky, 33; Private John B. Hartman, 27, Chicago; Private Bruce Taylor, 26, Puyallup, Wash.; Private Truman J. Gardner, 27, Olney, Ill., and Private Gordon M. Parkhurst, 43, Yorkville, N. Y.

Reserve Lieut. Charles E. Fisher of Asheville, N. C., pilot of the other craft, jumped out but his parachute did not open. It caught on ropes attached to a tank 150 above ground. The ropes checked his fall and he emerged with cuts and bruises.

Planes Bought in 1932.

The planes involved were Keystone biplane bombers purchased by the army in 1932. Each had two 550-horsepower motors and carried a crew of four—a bombing gunner in the nose far in front of the wings; two pilots behind him and a machine gunner in the rear fuselage.

They were among a group of nine planes flying in echelon, with three planes in each of the three elements of the formation. Whether they locked wings or collided directly was not apparent.

Mrs. Mary Ransom, who saw the collision from nearby Pearl City, said the first sign of trouble was a streak of light against the sky.

"Then it flared out like a big ball of fire. The light started to fall very slowly. It came down in a long, gradual arc. Pretty soon it began to break up and little points of light fell off to each side.

"As the ball of flame neared the earth it seemed to travel faster and faster. It hit the earth with a big noise. The fire flared bigger than ever, lighting up the sides of tanks and hangars."

Account by Lieut. Fisher.

Lieut. Fisher, in a hospital, described his experience tonight.

"I was piloting one plane," said Fisher. "Both motors were wide open and we were up about 500 feet. Suddenly there was a terrific impact. I turned and saw a mass of flames toward the rear of the plane. There was a violent explosion.

"My plane nosed downward in a breath-taking dive. The man next to be dived first. I never saw him again. I was unable to climb toward the tail because of the flames. I stood in a seat and dived through the propellors which were still whirling. I don't know how they missed me.

"I crossed my arms on my chest and waited till I was clear of the plane. No sooner had I pulled the rip cord than my parachute hit the ladder of a Navy oil tank and jerked back with a tremendous snap. The pilot 'chute and main 'chute dropped to the ground and I crawled on all fours to the tank. I thought the entire tank was aflame and feared it would explode. I never saw so much fire in all my life."

Other Survivor's Story.

Lanigan told his story as follows:

"We were flying nicely when the crash came. A terrific explosion of our plane which was piloted by Lieut. William G. Beard, knocked me to the floor of the cockpit.

"I straightened up to find the cockpit opening and the fire singed my eyebrows. I don't know how or where I dived over the side.

"At once, I hit something and was cut in the face. I think it was the wreckage of Fisher's plane. I doubled up and waited until I was clear and pulled the rip cord of my 'chute.

"The 'chute opened and I descended rapidly, heading straight for the flaming wreckage on the ground. I thought I was a goner. Within 100 feet of the wreckage, a sudden upcurrent of hot air tossed my upward and the wind carried me clear. I landed 25 feet from the wreckage."

KILLED IN COLLISION OF ARMY PLANES

One of Victims Credited With Killing 26 of Enemy in War.

By the Associated Press.

UTICA, N. Y., Jan. 25.—Private Gordon Michael Parkhurst, 42, one of six army fliers killed in Hawaii in an air crash, was credited by friends and relatives at Yorkville, near here, with having killed 26 Germans with a hand grenade during the World War.

He was turned down when he tried to enlist in the United States Army, but went to Montreal and enlisted in the 13th Royal Black Watch, Canadian Army, relatives said. Discharged from the service in 1919, he enlisted in the U. S. Army. His mother and father said today they had been informed that he was not assigned to yesterday's flight, but merely went along for the ride.

BONUS TO PASS IN SENATE OVER VETO TOMORROW

Congress Apparently Certain to Hand the Government a Bill for $2,491,000,000.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25. — Sharp argument over possibility of new taxes or inflation spread in Congress today with the apparently certain Senate overthrow of President Roosevelt's bonus veto, Monday.

The "Baby Bond" measure presents the Government with a bill for $2,491,000,000, but the most conservative leaders predict the Senate will override the Executive's veto. The House overrode the veto yesterday, 324 to 61.

Majority chiefs in both the House and Senate definitely moved today to build a backfire against talk of new levies to foot the bill.

Chairman Harrison of the Senate Finance Committee, one of the authors of the bond bonus bill, replied to reports that the President and his aids had some tax proposal in mind with comment that "they haven't called me in."

Speaker Byrns denied knowledge of any "downtown" tax suggestions, adding his view that there was little possibility of new income taxes. He felt the income tax base should not be lowered and that taxes on higher brackets brought less money than "commonly thought." He said: "You can't soak the rich and get any money by it." Asked about any possible alternative tax, the Speaker said: "Ask Morgenthau."

"I don't think it will take any increased taxes," insisted Harrison, who said the increased debt would be met by increased revenue generated by improving business.

"I think tax legislation is possible," said Chairman Doughton of the House Ways and Means Committee, "but I hope it isn't probable."

On the Inflation Front.

Few leaders joined in the talk of inflation, but it was widespread, nevertheless, with several plans advanced, and with one segment of the inflationary bloc planning a concerted effort when an appropriation measure is advanced to pay the bonus. Some members have indicated a bonus money bill will be attached to one of the regular appropriation measures.

One Capitol authority predicted the money question would be thrust up as a campaign issue. "I am satisfied," he said, "that the administration is content to inflate the Government's credit $2,000,000,000 to pay it off, but it is likely to wind up with this currency expansion issue being carried into the coming campaign."

Meanwhile, the House is confronted by a drive for enactment of the Frazier-Lemke bill for refinancing farm mortgages with $3,000,000,000 of new currency. Its supporters have 214 of the needed 218 names on a petition to force a vote on the floor, but Boland of Pennsylvania, Demcratic whip, is conducting a poll which he says leads him to believe the measure could be beaten. Byrns and Bankhead of Alabama, majority leader, are less confident. The sponsor, Lemke (Rep.), North Dakota, has predicted the bill will go through with a "rush" if it gets to the floor while the farm aid situation is unsettled.

ALL MOVIE HOUSES TOLD NOT TO GIVE AWAY PRIZES

Circuit Attorney Miller Confers With President of Neighborhood Theater Association.

Neighborhood motion picture theaters, as well as first-run houses, will be subject to grand jury investigations if they persist in the practice of giving away cash prizes or automobiles, Circuit Attorney Franklin Miller announced yesterday following a conference with Fred Wehrenberg, president of the Neighborhood Theater Association.

The Circuit Attorney said it was his opinion that such practices constituted illegal lottery, and beginning last night, police were instructed to observe the neighborhood theaters as well as the larger houses for evidence that prizes had been awarded. Any reports by police in this connection, he said, would be presented to the grand jury.

DRIVER FOUND DEAD AT WHEEL

Joseph, Cihak, 45, Apparently Victim of Heart Disease.

Joseph Cihak, 45 years old, caretaker on the farm of former Mayor Henry W. Kiel near Eureka, was found dead at the wheel of his car, which had run into a ditch on Industrial Farm road, close to the Kiel place, at 10:30 a. m. yesterday. Kiel's son, Elmer, found him.

A physician said death apparently was due to heart disease and had occurred about 20 minutes previously. Cihak, who is survived by his wife and a son, Walter, was returning home from a store in Eureka.

Two Killed When Train Hits Truck

PANA, Ill., Jan. 25.—Roy Swezwitz, 25 years old, of Donaldson, and Palmer Anderson of Charleston were killed when a Big Four train struck their truck at a crossing in Pana today. Swetwitz died before he reached the hospital. They were employed by the Prairie State Motor Freight Co. of Decatur.

Eyewitness Describes Italian Advance in Southern Ethiopia

Story of Correspondent Who Accompanied Motorized "Hell on Wheels" Army That Captured Neghelli.

Mark Barron, Associated Press correspondent, was with Italy's southern army when it occupied Neghelli, Ethiopia. He traveled three nights and two days to file the following dispatch, presumably from Dolo, via Mogadiscio.

WITH THE SOUTHERN ITALIAN ARMY AT NEGHELLI, Ethiopia, Jan. 21. — The Italian victory at Deidei broke the backbone of Ras Desta Demtu's army and the capture of Neghelli broke Desta's heart, a surrendered Ethiopian chieftain told me today.

It was the last straw for the Ethiopian Southern commander and son-in-law of Emperor Haile Selassie, he said, when the Genoa Dragoons and the Aosta Lancers, known as the "Hell on Wheels" column, swept into this barricaded village. This chieftain said Neghelli was the only place for which Ras Desta had a real affection. It served as his concentration point.

Gen. Rudolfo Graziani's daring thrust brought the territory between Dolo and Neghelli, a distance of 250 miles, under Italian control, but it is still a dangerous "No Man's Land," where the trapped remnants of Desta's ranks daily are trying to fight their way back into their own lines.

Desta was once the regal lord of Southeastern Ethiopia from Lake Margherita's rich valleys to the wild game veldt of Dolo.

Tanks Smash Barricades.

Desta and his forces crumbled steadily as the "Hell on Wheels" motorized battalions of shock troops smashed the enemy barricades and routed them from their hiding places with artillery, machine-guns and hand grenades.

Desta was reported to be retreating, seeking refuge in obscure grass huts which he once scorned.

The commander of his captured radio station said he was present Jan. 12 when Graziani's sudden drive sent the Italians swarming into two nights of white-heat fighting which resulted in the capture of Deidei.

Attached to the crack Genoa Dragoons, I accompanied the 28-mile-long motorized army when it continued its daring drive through the heart of Desta's country.

Deidei, Modale, Filtu, Godgod and Neghelli fell in rapid succession but the Italians were compelled to fight alertly every inch of the way.

Desperate Ethiopian bands hurled continuous raids from the hills and jungles along the line of the Italian march. But the Fascists, led by Graziani himeslf, never faltered.

Cut Off From Base.

The column had deliberately cut itself off from the Dolo base for the sake of mobility and the grim "Hell on Wheels" boys tanked and sweated forward with their rifles cocked and their machine-guns unlimbered.

The morning preceding the final attack on Neghelli the army drew up on the plain of Filtu in parade formation. Graziani, his gray hair waving in the breezes, spoke to the troops, most of them youngsters undergoing their first fire.

"Viva your King, Viva Il Duce!" Graziani shouted and his voice echoed from the surrounding hills where the Ethiopians waited.

"One litre of water a day," the General rasped. "Now forward!" The "Hell on Wheels" column rumbled ahead. It was forced to keep up steady fighting almost all the way to Neghelli, but the provincial capital itself fell with hardly a shot.

Wounded Lie in Hot Sun.

En route to Neghelli I saw Ethiopian wounded fall beneath the merciless African sun. Italian ambulances picked up as many of them as possible.

Graziani entered Neghelli with the first of his troops and, standing on an ant hill in front of the village chief's house, drank wine to the Italian victory with a handful of correspondents.

We found fires still burning in the village, which apparently had been deserted hurriedly. Accompanying the General through the grass and mud huts of the stockaded town, I saw a giant drum and cymbals in the deserted church and an Amharic bible published in Rome. Also left behind was a storehouse of military supplies, including army uniforms like those worn in America, and lion skins.

A prisoner told us Desta had abandoned hastily - constructed trenches when he saw the Italian army coming. He started grass fires on the veldt, but they failed to take hold.

Prisoners with whom I talked were suffering pitifully from malnutrition.

John M. Perry, has filed an amended claim seeking to counteract the high court's finding that he failed to show damage through devaluation. Perry in his present suit puts $20,000 as a reasonable value for his $10,000 bond and $1912 as the amount he should have received as interest, making his total claim $21,912.

British-American Tobacco Ltd. of London claims the largest amount, $4,331,509 as "the difference in the value of gold." The company claims to have bought bullion in February, 1933, in an effort to conserve its assets, and subsequently failed to receive the former standard value when the gold was turned over to the New York Federal Resevre Bank on order of the Treasury.

Three mining companies have brought claims growing out of bar gold turned over to the mint at San Francisco. The Idaho Maryland Mines Corporation claims $49,735, the difference in the value of their gold under the former standard and the present value; the Argonaut Mining Co., Ltd., asks $206,942; the Alaska Juneau Gold Mining Co., $317,888 and the Lagrange Gold Dredging Co., $17,415.

Frederick B. Campbell, New York lawyer who fought unsuccessfully in the courts to have his gold bars redeemed at the former standard of value, has come back with a new claim. Under protest he turned his bars into the Treasury for $196,018 and now he demand an additional $106,229 from the Government.

In still another case David H. Smith of Worthington, Ind., is seeking the difference between $20.67 an ounce of gold allowed by the Government and $32 an ounce he claims he had to pay in Canada to replace gold he was compelled to turn over to the Treasury. He states in his brief that he had to turn over about $80,000 in the precious metal under the American law but since he had to replace this amount in Canada, in the interests of his investment business, at a cost of $113,242, he claims a loss of $33,242.

Treasury attorneys say they are not overly concerned about these claims. The total amount involved, it is pointed out, it not large, at least not from the point of view of a Government that must deal in billions. Furthermore Government attorneys say, the Supreme Court might be logically expected to rule as it did in the other gold clause cases, that although the obligation remains "on the conscience of the sovereign," Congress is under no duty to provide appropriations to pay these claims. Thus, even though the security holders win in the courts, they would still have to look to Congress for fulfillment of the contracts.

10-MILE FIGHT WITH ICE TO GET WOMAN TO HOSPITAL

Maryland Mail Boat Volunteers Make Trip With Expectant Mother in 7 Hours.

CRISFIELD, Md., Jan. 25. — A seven-hour, 10-mile battle against heavy ice and biting winds was fought last night to bring an expectant mother to a hospital here.

Mrs. Essie Evans, 24 years old, is the wife of Fred Evans of Smith's Island. Late last night Dr. William F. Stout decided that an operation was the only hope of bringing her baby into the world alive.

The nearest hospital was here, cut off from the island by 10 miles of four to six inch ice. Capt. John E. Whitelock, commander of the island mail boat, volunteered. Mrs. Evans was carried aboard and Dr. Stout, Evans, the Rev. H. M. Ralph and watermen went aboard to man the boat.

Working in relays, the men leaned over the bow, hacking out a path. The boat's steering gear broke, smashed by floe ice. Edging its way ahead a few feet at a time, the boat forced its way towards the mainland while Dr. Stout remained with Mrs. Evans in the cabin.

Early today the boat made port. Mrs. Evans was taken to the hospital for the operation. Shortly afterward it was announced that the baby had been born dead. Mrs. Evans is seriously ill.

POLICE BUREAU FIGHTS CRIME WITH SCIENCE

Chief Business of Research Branch Is to Identify Bullets —New Instruments Installed.

Tucked away in a secluded corner of the third floor at Police Headquarters is a newly reorganized branch of the Police Department which police officials believe will soon play an increasingly important part in the detection of crime. A suite of four small rooms house the offices and laboratories of the Research Bureau of the Police Department.

Here in recent months have been installed numerous scientific instruments which criminologists maintain are essential weapons in the constant police warfare on crime. Here in the future, all evidence in major crimes will find its way for study, analysis and preparation for presentation in court.

The principal work of the Research Bureau will continue to be, as it has been since its organization in 1928, the attempt to identify firearms taken from suspects as those used in crimes. Experts assert that every firearm leaves individual markings on bullets fired from it.

At present the bureau is under the supervision of Capt. Elias W. Hoagland, director of the Bureau of Bertillon and Criminal Identification of the Police Department. The staff of the Research unit consists of Assistant Research Officers Louis Reich and Edward J. Kelly, who have received expert training in their work. For five months last year they studied ballistics and criminology in the Seattle (Wash.) laboratory of Luke S. May, criminologist.

Volunteer Assistants.

Capt. Hoagland, who was formerly Chief of Detectives, has obtained the services of about 20 scientists on the staffs of St. Louis and Washington universities, local laboratories and chemical factories. These men will be called upon to analyze evidence and otherwise to assist and advise whenever necessary. All have volunteered their services without charge.

Since the principal work of the bureau is the identification of firearms most of the new instruments were selected for that purpose. Perhaps the instrument most useful for presentation of evidence in court is the comparison miscroscope with a microscopic camera attached. With this instrument, similar to one used in the laboratory of the Department of Justice at Washington, it is possible to compare a bullet used in a crime with a test bullet taken from a suspect's weapon and to show any similarity in an enlarged photograph.

Four other miscroscopes for the study of bacteriological slides, discharged shells, fabrics, fibers, hairs and other evidence have been obtained. In addition the department has purchased an ultra-violet ray machine for discovering alterations and erasures in legal papers and documents and a photo-micrographic camera for making enlarged photographs of notes, checks and other papers.

The laboratory also is cimpletely equipped for chemical analysis of any evidence.

Working Kits.

Complete working kits have been assembled for use by Reich and Kelly on their visits to the scenes of crimes. Each of these kits contain about 100 different articles, each of which may be needed. Some of the items are: Forceps and probing instruments for recovering spent bullets, fingerprint powders for developing latent fingerprints, magnifying glasses, photographic equipment, flashlights, carpenters' tools, a magnet for recovering articles from under water and plastic wax for taking impressions of telltale marks.

After all evidence has been gathered it will be taken back to headquarters for analysis. Pertinent data discovered will be filed away for use as the case develops.

All bullets recovered from bodies and from the scenes of shootings are immediately sent to the bureau. There they are examined and photographed under microscopes and all important information is recorded. From the information thus obtained the research officers are able to tell not only the caliber of the weapon used, but probably also its make and type. Thus the search for the weapon is considerably narrowed. A complete file of barrel and bullet chamber characteristics of all makes and types of weapons is kept at the bureau to make this work possible.

Collection of Test Firearms.

If no weapon is found at the scene of the crime, the bullets found there are placed in a fugitive file in the research unit office. Every firearm seized by police officers is sent to the bureau and a test bullet fired from it. This bullet is then compared with those in the fugitive file.

The bureau has a collection of about 300 firearms for test purposes, no two of them alike. It is planned to collect, if possible, for research and test purposes, a sample of every type and size of firearm.

Chief of Police McCarthy and members of the Board of Police Commissioners, who were responsible for the reorganization and expansion of the Research Bureau are convinced that it will soon become one of the most important divisions of the Police Department. pon and to show any similarity in an enlarged photograph.

MAIN MARKET INFLUENCE OF WEEK WAS MONETARY

Marked Inflationary Psychology Apparent in Part of Wall Street—Reserve Board Cuts Maximum Loan Value of Stocks to 45 Per Cent.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—Monetary considerations moved into first position among market influences as traders went over the past week's developments today.

New rules were promulgated by by the Federal Reserve Board cutting maximum loan values on stocks to 45 per cent of market value from 55 per cent effective Feb. 1.

It was pointed out that a large amount of share buying for many months has been for cash or on margin even wider than that required by the rules.

The monthly compilation of the New York Stock Exchange as of Jan. 1 was cited, showing that the borrowings of the members of the exchange amounted to 2 per cent of the market value of all listed stocks. The lowest point for 1935-36 was on Oct. 1, when the ratio was 1.93 per cent. At the beginning of 1929 the figure was 9.54 per cent.

To some observers the lift in loan requirements appeared reassuring as a long-term factor, indicating a determination on the part of authorities to check any tendency toward a "runaway" market spurred by inflation psychology.

Inflation Psychology Prevalent.

While industrial production was apparently in the throes of seasonal uncertainty, a marked inflation psychology was apparent in part of Wall street.

Talk of further dollar devaluation, or Washington moves in regard to silver, both quite lacking in official confirmation, was active in banking and brokerage circles.

The effect of this new factor in financial circulations was mirrored principally in the foreign exchange market, where the pound sterling advanced against the dollar above the $5-mark late in the week to the highest levels in around a year and a half.

The French franc was strong at times, and the Netherlands guilder on occasions was sufficiently high to cause the export of gold from New York to be discussed as an active possibility.

The course of the bonus legislation, with Washington discussion of the large amount of Treasury borrowing scheduled in the next 18 months, was offered by some as one explanation of the revived inflation talk.

French sources appeared responsible for part of the bearishness in regard to the dollar. Some bankers linked this attitude with the fact that a decline in the dollar removed recent pressure from the French franc at a time when the political situation at Paris was disturbed.

Meanwhile such important economic activities as automobile and cotton manufacturing, power production, car loadings and residential building showed moderate recessions, allowing for the seasonal trend.

Faced with ronfusing influenres of this sort, the stock market turned in a fairly creditable performance. Many leading equities made new highs for several years past around mid-week, before the unsettlement in the exchange situation put a damper on enthusiasm.

Market Dips, Rebounds.

The hurdle of higher margin requirements broke the market's stride momentarily today at week-end session, but it quickly recovered to come out ahead in a fast finish.

Prices dipped fractions to as much as 2 points or so shortly after the opening gong, but support was not long in making itself felt.

Utility shares, especially the lower-priced issues, some of the aircrafts and a scattering of industrials, played the principal part in tipping the scales upward after the initial decline. The firmness was fairly general, however, by the finish.

While the Associated Press average of 60 stocks advanced .2 of a point at 58.2, the 15 utilities in the aggregate made a new 1935-36 high of 47.3, up .3 of a point.

Trading was carried on at an active pace, particularly at the beginning, when offerings were heavy, and again in the final half-hour, when the tape lagged several minutes behind on occasion. Turnover in the stock exchange at 1,656,720 shares was the best for a Saturday since Nov. 23.

Most brokers believed the action of the Federal Reserve Board in cutting the maximum loan values of stocks would present a relatively simple problem of readjustment, because of the large proportion of cash buying in recent months.

Inflation-minded sections of Wall Street found less to point to in support of their views, as most leading foreign currencies fluctuated rather narrowly against the dollar, up to noon.

After stock trading had ended, however, the principal foreign units in the exchange market staged a sharp advance. The pound sterling gained 1 cent at $5.01 and the French franc was .01 of a cent ahead at 6.67½ cents. The guilder, up .10 of a cent at 68.75 cents, was around the level at which gold could be shipped from New York to Amsterdam, but no actual shipments were reported.

BRITISH POUND RISES TO $5.01 AT NEW YORK

Based on Franc Rate the Dollar Is at a Discount of 63-100 of 1 Per Cent.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—Foreign currencies continued firm against the dollar in all exchange centers today, despite a lessening in pressure due to week-end uncertainties surrounding the international monetary situation.

In New York the British pound sterling advanced one cent to $5.01, the French franc gained .01 of a cent at 6.67½ cents, and Holland guilders were boosted by .10 of a cent at 68.75 cents.

Earlier in London, the dollar continued to work lower, closing at 5.00¾ to the pound and in Paris it was off at 6.668 cents to the franc.

Based on the franc at its final New York rate, the dollar was at a discount of 63-100 of 1 per cent, compared with a discount of 48-100 on Friday and a premium of 66-100 a month ago.

PARIS, Jan. 25.—The United States dollar quotation fell on the foreign exchange market today to the lowest point since March 11, 1935, under active selling attributed to fears of inflation.

The dollar rate closed at 14.995 francs (6.668 cents to the franc) as compared to the overnight New York quotation of 6.665 cents to the franc.

LONDON, Jan. 25.—The United States dollar declined further on the foreign exchange market today.

On liberal offerings, mostly from the continent and based on devaluation fears, the dollar closed officially at 5.00¾ to the pound as compared with the overnight New York rate of 5.00¼.

At one time, in the short day's trading, it touched 5.01⅛.

The French franc closed unchanged from yesterday's price of 75.06 to the pound.

Net income of Transue & Williams Steel Forging Corporation was reported at $55,350 for last year, in contrast to a net loss of $99,636 in 1934.

Greif Bros. Cooperage Corporation reported an increase in net profit for the year ended Oct. 31 to $357,429 compared with $287,887 in the foregoing fiscal year.

CHICAGO, Jan. 25.—The Acme Steel Co. and subsidiaries today reported for the quarter ended Dec. 31 a profit of $438,155, equal to $1.34 per share, compared with $84,478, or $1.17, for the preceding quarter and $168,431, or 51 cents, in the corresponding quarter of 1934.

FOREIGN MARKETS AT A GLANCE

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Jan. 25.—Rentes declined in a quiet but irregular session on the Bourse today, with traders interested but undisturbed by the weakness in the dollar. Bank shares were firm, while coal, electric and international issues, especially oils, declined. The market closed irregular.

BERLIN, Jan. 25.—After a dull opening, prices improved slightly on the Boerse today, all quotations closing a trifle higher than Friday.

LONDON, Jan. 25.—Closed on Saturday.

COMMODITY INDEX AVERAGES

Other statistical data showing economical trend.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—The Associated Press index of industrial activity, confined to narrow fluctuations since a recovery peak was reached in mid-December, dropped this week from 85.8 to 84.1.

Steel mill activity was the lone stalwart in the index with sufficient forward drive to better last week's figures.

Automobile output declined contra-seasonally, as did total carloadings, electric power production and cotton manufacturing. Residential building also was lower.

The index, with seasonally adjusted indices of its components calculated on the latest available statistics, and based on 1929-30 as 100, follows:

	Latest wk.	Pr.wk.	Yr.ago.
Composite index	84.1	85.8	76.0
Automobile production	94.7	100.4	84.0
Steel mill activity	67.0	66.3	66.4
Cotton Manufacturing activity	97.4	106.5	81.8
Electric Power production	104.3	105.4	98.6
Residential building	42.1	43.3	19.0
Total carloadings	67.9	68.3	62.5

FINANCIAL BAROMETER.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—The rise in foreign exchanges against the dollar this week is expected to check the drain of gold to the United States from Europe. Meanwhile, the country's monetary gold stock has risen to a new peak, although imports have dwindled lately.

The monetary gold stocks, as reported by the Federal Reserve Board, compared as follows:

Week ended Jan. 22 — —$10,172,000,000
Preceding week — — —$10,158,000,000
Same week last year — —$8,308,000,000

Railroad Reports Earnings.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Jan. 25.—The Minneapolis, St. Paul and Sault Ste Marie Railroad and its subsidiary, the Wisconsin Central, today reported a net deficit for 1935 of $6,873,014. The net deficit for 1934 was $6,934,532.

LOCAL STOCK LEVEL GENERALLY HIGHER

Volume of Business on Exchange Exceeds That of Preceding Week.

The price level of stocks listed on the St. Louis Stock Exchange was generally higher at the close of week, fractional gains predominating. The aggregate volume of business exceeded that of preceding period. Transactions in Falstaff made up about 20 per cent of the week's total.

Among the other more active shares were the Burkarts, Key Company, National Oats, Hussmann-Ligonier preferred, Wagner Electric and National Candy. The latter two issues were down fractionally for the week.

There was a fair turnover in traction bonds if the off-floor trades are included in the total.

ST. LOUIS STOCKS

ST. LOUIS STOCK EXCHANGE, Jan. 25.—Sales of stocks on the local board during the week amounted to 6458 shares, compared with 4897 the previous week. Bond sales were $50,000, against $47,000. Inbetween session sales of stock were 971 shares, and bonds $25,000.

Following is a complete list of transactions on the exchange during the week, with dividend rates, sales, high, low, closing prices and net changes for the week:

DIVIDEND MEETING RESULTS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—Directors of Minneapolis Honeywell Regulator Co., Minneapolis, today declared an extra dividend of 75 cents a share on the common stock and the regular quarterly dividend of the same amount. Both are payable Feb. 15 to stock of record Feb. 4.

CORPORATE BOND RANGE NARROW

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—Corporate bond market prices moved in a restricted range today with the trend a trifle to the off-side.

A minor rally in guaranteed obligations was the only feature in the Federal list, where small losses prevailed in most of the active Treasury issues. Sales of Government bonds crossed the $1,000,000 mark for the first time in many a Saturday.

Domestic corporation liens displayed extreme hesitancy. Movements were so narrow that they were meaningless in most cases, although there were more declines than gains in all groups except the low-yield ratings.

There was no news of importance to influence investment sentiment save the overnight announcement that margin requirements had been raised by the Federal Reserve Board, which had little significance for bond market traders inasmuch as most transactions are for cash.

Closing prices of a cross section of the domestic list included American & Foregin Power 5s, up ¼ at 78½; Anaconda Copper 4½s, off ½ at 102; St. Paul 5s, off ¼ at 22¾; Erie refunding 5s, up ½ at 77; Nickel Plate 4½s, up 1 at 82¼; Paramount 6s, off ⅜ at 94¼; Postal Telegraph 5s, unchanged at 40½; Richfield Oil 6s, up ½ at 45½, and United States Rubber 5s, off ¼ at 104½.

Foreign bonds moved in a similar pattern. A 1⅛-point rise in Uruguay 6s was the only feature.

Transfers of $10,785,000, par value, compared with $10,096,000 last Saturday. The Associated Press averages were .1 of a point higher to .1 of a point lower. Two groups remained unchanged.

FIRST RAILROADS TO REPORT SHOW 1935 IMPROVEMENTS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—Bolstered by sharp gains during the closing months of the year, railroad earnings picked up noticeably during 1935.

The first 14 railroads reporting operating results for the entire year had a 8.8 per cent increase in net operating income, from $108,554,193 to $118,208,498.

A closer control over direct expenses is indicated by the fact that this result was obtained on an increase in gross income of only 4.9 per cent. Gross advanced from $578,666,119 to $607,142,671.

The December income of these roads continued the upward trend noted in recent months, although at a somewhat reduced rate of gain. Net operating income moving up 34.6 per cent on a gross 14.9 per cent higher.

FRISCO DECEMBER REPORT SHOWS COMPARATIVE GAINS

The Frisco Railroad reports net railway operating income for December as $223.912 as compared with a deficit of $132,835 in the corresponding month of 1934.

The last three months of 1935 without exception showed corresponding increases in net operating income for the Frisco, officials said. October showed an increase of $329,546 over the previous October, while November figures marked an increase of $328,318 over the corresponding period in 1934, they said.

MISSOURI PACIFIC REPORT

The Missouri Pacific Railroad reported net railway operating income in December, 1935, totaled $544,677 compared with $39,392 in December, 1934. Total operating revenues for the month amounted to $6,422,380, compared with $5,520,571 in December, 1934. For the year 1935, net railway operating income totaled $5,230,582, compared with $6,118,045 in 1934, while total operating revenues amounted to $74,578,498 for 1935, compared with $73,435,590 in 1934.

On the Gulf Coast Lines, net railway operating income in December totaled $71,457, compared with $63,633 in December, 1934. Total operating revenues amounted to $949,341 in December, compared with $827,612 in December of 1934.

International-Great Northern net railway operating income figures for December indicate a deficit of $22,236, compared with a deficit of $30,192 in December, 1934. Total operating revenues amounted to $927,102, compared with $908,926 in December, 1934. For the year 1935, net railway operating income totaled $529,899, compared with $1,370,550 in 1934, while total operating revenues amounted to $11,543,449 in 1935, compared with $12,575,329 in 1934.

FINANCIAL NOTES

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—The Lehigh Valley Railroad has applied for permission to sell equipment trusts in the amount of $1,755,000 to raise funds to build 1000 new coal cars. If approved by the ICC, the work will be done at the company's shops at Sayre and Packerton, Pa.

Stocks of domestic and foreign crude petroleum totaled 298,136,000 barrels at the close of the week ended Jan. 18 according to figures prepared by the oil trade. This is an increase of 353,000 barrels over the preceding week.

The total sugar melt of 13 United States refineries during the first 18 days of January amounted to 195,000 long tons, compared with 215,000 in the same period last year, according to the Sugar Institute. Deliveries in the same period totaled 140,000 long tons against 180,000 last year.

Total production of sheet steel in December was 208,774 tons, and shipments amounted to 195,077 tons, according to the National Association of Flat Rolled Steel Manufacturers. Unfilled tonnage as of Dec. 31 was 299,394 tons, and finished stocks on hand awaiting shipment aggregated 74,697 tons.

World lead production in 1935 amounted to 1,569,670 tons, compared with 1,494,743 tons in the preceding year, an increase of 74,927 tons, according to the American Bureau of Metal Statistics.

Refined sugar exports from the United States last year decreased 20,082 long tons compared with 1934, Lamborn & Co. estimates. The 1935 total was 102,331 long tons, compared with 122,413 tons in the previous year.

Transit revenues for the week ended Jan. 18, based on the figures of a representative group of companies, showed continued improvement over last year, according to the "Transit Journal." The publication's indicator stood at 104.16, taking the same week of 1935 as 100.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25. — Favorable changes in dividends totaled 40, against 54 in the previous week, according to Standard Statistics Co. Unfavorable changes numbered three, compared with two the week before.

TRADE TRENDS

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—Retail prices of heating oils have been advanced ¼ cent a gallon in parts of the New York metropolitan area, and the tank car price has been similarly lifted at Baltimore and Norfolk.

Cocoa—The statistical feature of the week in this commodity, says the New York Cocoa Exchange, was the disclosure that 1935 established a record for consumption at a level 25 per cent greater than in 1934.

Railroad Equipment—Pacific Fruit Express Co. plans a $10,000,000 expenditure for 3000 refrigerator cars. The new equipment will be placed in service this year. Union Pacific Railroad Co. and Southern Pacific Co. are the joint owners of the fruit express company.

Rubber Trade—Industrial expansion and greater demand from the automobile field are being counted upon to lift both production and distribution during 1936, according to a survey of the rubber goods industry released by Dun & Bradstreet. It is expected that the tire price structure will promise better returns in view of the recent agreement of the four major producers on dealer discount practices.

Midwest Rubber Reclaiming Stockholders to Meet

A special meeting of stockholders of the Midwest Rubber Reclaiming Co. will be held Feb. 9 to consider three proposals. One would amend the articles of incorporation to permit the company to retire its preferred stock by open market purchases; another would authorize the company to enter into contracts to run one year or more; the third would approve five-year contracts of employment the company proposes to make with three officers who are also directors, which would include a provision giving them the right to buy stock from the company at a price to be fixed.

WHEAT AT BEST PRICE LEVEL IN OVER TWO WEEKS

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 25.—Largely because of inflationary psychology, wheat rose today to the highest prices reached in more than two weeks.

Active Eastern buying that accompanied the upturn helped to lift May wheat to $1.02, an overnight gain of 1⅛ cents a bushel. Improved demand from domestic milling sources was also a stimulus. And so too were forecasts of a severe cold wave in sections southwest where wheat is not adequately protected by snow.

Wheat closed firm, ⅜@⅞c above yesterday's finish, May $1.01⅝@¾; corn, ¼@½c up, May 60¾@⅞c; oats ¼c advanced, and provisions unchanged to 5c higher.

Influenced by fresh upturns of sterling, wheat displayed early strength, but temporarily was weakened afterward by setbacks of Winnipeg quotations. Besides, there was liquidation in Liverpool March contracts which had advanced this week to a new top price record for the season. Winnipeg messages said just a few scattered loads of Canadian wheat had been sold overnight for export, and that offerings were plentiful.

Inflation possibilities, however, which had been injected into the wheat situation as an incentive toward higher prices came more definitely into general notice again as the day approached an end. Advances that ensued were halted by profit-taking sales around $1.02 for May. An interesting feature was assertion in one quarter that a raise of marginal requirements on stocks would tend to divert speculative interest to the commodity markets.

Chicago shippers reported sales of more than 100,000 bushels of wheat to mills, most of it red winter.

Corn, oats and rye firmed in sympathy with wheat. Corn was bullishly affected also as a result of cold weather predictions. Heavy shipping sales encouraged buying of oats futures.

Wheat futures purchases yesterday totaled 7,185,000 bushels, corn 1,182,000. Open interest in wheat was 109,940,000 bushels, and in corn 23,045,000.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Jan. 25.—The wheat market was under influence of inflation psychology at week-end and prices closed better. Corn also was fractionally improved.

Winnipeg opened unchanged to ⅛c off and early was ¼c to ⅜c lower.

Local wheat receipts which were 34,500 bu., compared with 40,500 week ago and 30,000 a year ago included 17 cars local and 6 through. Corn receipts which were 31,500 bu., compared with 87,000 a week ago and 18,000 a year ago included 19 cars local and 2 through. Oats receipts which were 8000 bu., compared with 60,000 a week ago and 22,000 a year ago included 3 cars local and 1 through.

In the cash grain market Saturday, soft wheat was 1c higher. Offerings were very light and the extent of the demand could not be determined. Choice grain was in active request. No. 2 was quoted nominally at $1.12½@1.13½ at the close. Corn was unchanged. Trading was slow and some of the offerings were carried over. Oats were nominally unchanged. Supply was light. There was a fairly good inquiry, but buyers and sellers were apart and no sales were reported.

WHEAT AT BEST PRICE LEVEL IN OVER TWO WEEKS

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 25.—Largely because of inflationary psychology, wheat rose today to the highest prices reached in more than two weeks.

Active Eastern buying that accompanied the upturn helped to lift May wheat to $1.02, an overnight gain of 1⅛ cents a bushel. Improved demand from domestic milling sources was also a stimulus. And so too were forecasts of a severe cold wave in sections southwest where wheat is not adequately protected by snow.

Wheat closed firm, ⅜@⅞c above yesterday's finish, May $1.01⅝@¾; corn, ¼@½c up, May 60¾@⅞c; oats ¼c advanced, and provisions unchanged to 5c higher.

Influenced by fresh upturns of sterling, wheat displayed early strength, but temporarily was weakened afterward by setbacks of Winnipeg quotations. Besides, there was liquidation in Liverpool March contracts which had advanced this week to a new top price record for the season. Winnipeg messages said just a few scattered loads of Canadian wheat had been sold overnight for export, and that offerings were plentiful.

Inflation possibilities, however, which had been injected into the wheat situation as an incentive toward higher prices came more definitely into general notice again as the day approached an end. Advances that ensued were halted by profit-taking sales around $1.02 for May. An interesting feature was assertion in one quarter that a raise of marginal requirements on stocks would tend to divert speculative interest to the commodity markets.

Chicago shippers reported sales of more than 100,000 bushels of wheat to mills, most of it red winter.

Corn, oats and rye firmed in sympathy with wheat. Corn was bullishly affected also as a result of cold weather predictions. Heavy shipping sales encouraged buying of oats futures.

Wheat futures purchases yesterday totaled 7,185,000 bushels, corn 1,182,000. Open interest in wheat was 109,940,000 bushels, and in corn 23,045,000.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Jan. 25.—The wheat market was under influence of inflation psychology at week-end and prices closed better. Corn also was fractionally improved.

Winnipeg opened unchanged to ⅛c off and early was ¼c to ⅜c lower.

Local wheat receipts which were 34,500 bu., compared with 40,500 week ago and 30,000 a year ago included 17 cars local and 6 through. Corn receipts which were 31,500 bu., compared with 87,000 a week ago and 18,000 a year ago included 19 cars local and 2 through. Oats receipts which were 8000 bu., compared with 60,000 a week ago and 22,000 a year ago included 3 cars local and 1 through.

In the cash grain market Saturday, soft wheat was 1c higher. Offerings were very light and the extent of the demand could not be determined. Choice grain was in active request. No. 2 was quoted nominally at $1.12½@1.13½ at the close. Corn was unchanged. Trading was slow and some of the offerings were carried over. Oats were nominally unchanged. Supply was light. There was a fairly good inquiry, but buyers and sellers were apart and no sales were reported.

COTTON MARKET HELPED BY WHEAT AND STOCK TONE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—Cotton was higher at final session, with late months leading the advance on an active demand promoted by strength in the wheat and stocks and continued talk of inflationary possibilities.

July sold up to 10.94c and closed at 10.90c, with the general market closing steady at net advances of 4 to 23 points.

The market was higher from the start. Realizing and scattered Southern selling were taken on slight reactions right after the call, and the demand became more active in the late trading.

At the best, active months showed net advances of 8 to 30 points, but closing quotations were a few points off under realizing in the late trading, when buying may have been checked by a report that the Senate Committee on Agriculture had postponed action on the farm bill.

The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 106,269 bales, against 95,855 last year.

Spot steady; middling, 11.95c.

n—Nominal.

Memphis Spot Cotton.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 25.—Spot cotton had a steady tone. Middling closed at 11.75c, compared with 11.70c yesterday. Sales amounted to 2947 bales.

HOGS AND CATTLE PRICES UP IN WEEK

—Porker prices fluctuated decidedly during the week as weather conditions brought on very irregular marketings. Total supplies ran less than last week and dressed trade strengthened a little so that net changes were in favor of producers and amounted to 25 to 35 cents for the week on all weights and classes. Marketings this week figured around 61,800, compared with 68,748 last week and 58,213 similar week last year. At the high time of the week, a top of $10.60 was reported, this being the highest since last October. Losses were registered the last two sessions and the Saturday top was $10.35. Majority of 170 to 220-pounders finished at $10.25, 230 to 250-pound butchers failing to find much action, but quotable from $9.85 to $10.15. Heavier weights were salable from $9.80 downward. Good and choice 140 to 160-pound averages finished at $9.75 to $10.10 and 100 to 130-pound pigs $8.75 to $9.50. Southern pigs and hogs suffered sharp discounts because of the prospect of soft or oily carcasses. Packing sows closed mostly at $8.50 to $8.75, bulk for the week earning $8.60 to $8.90.

Cattle, 1000; calves, 600; compared with close last week; most killing classes of cattle strong to 25c higher; vealers 75c higher; stocker and feeder cattle steady; tops for week: 1303 lb. steers $10.50, 990 lb. yearlings $9.25, mixed yearlings $9, heifers $8.15, beef cows $6.35, sausage bulls $6.50, vealers $13, feeder steers $7.70; bulks for week: steers $7@8.75, mixed yearlings and heifers $6@7.75, beef cows $4.75@5.75, cutters and low cutters $3.50@4.25, stocker and feeders steers $6.50@7.25; closing top sausage bulls $6.50 and on vealers $12.25.

Sheep, 800; compared week ago, lambs weak to 25c lower; other classes steady; top lambs for week $11, bulk $10@50, throwouts $6.50@8.00, wooled yearlings $9@25; small shorn yearlings $7.75@8.25; wethers $5.50@7.25; fat ewes $4.50@5.00, few $5.25.

MISSISSIPPI VALLEY STOCK YARDS.

CATTLE—Compared with last week fed steers were 25@50c higher; better grades mixed yearlings steady to 25c higher; medium grades about steady; cows 25c higher; vealers 75c higher than last Friday.

SHEEP—Compared with last Friday lambs were about steady; fat sheep 25@50c lower.

HOGS—Compared with last week 25@50c higher.

CRACK TORONTO GIRLS' TRACK SQUAD ENTERS CARNIVAL HERE

That the outstanding women's track team of Canada will be represented at the National A. A. U. women's indoor track and field meet at the Arena, Feb. 12, was given definite assurance yesterday when the entry of the Supreme Ladies' Athletic Club of Toronto, Ont., was received. The team, then known as the Vi-Tome Laurel A. C., competed in the indoor meet here last year.

The team will be represented by at least six members, according to George T. Adkins, coach. The relay foursome will return, with the exception of one member, Dallas Creamer, who has been replaced by Hilda Cameron. Other members of the team are Roxy Adkins, Thelma Norton and Alice Hinder. They also will double in other events from the 50 to the 200-meter dash.

Doris Chellew, a broad jumper, and Eula Fortune, high jumper, who boasts of a triumph over the United States title holder, Alice Arden, will accompany the Canadian relay team here.

The Canadian relay team, in addition to having the United States indoor title in their possession, are wearers of the Canadian outdoor crown. The foursome won the Canadian laurels last summer in a national meet in Montreal. Each of the visiting stars is a veteran of track. Virtually all of them were members of the Canadian team which competed in the British Empire meet in London two years ago.

The entry of the Canadian champions, together together with that of the St. Louis A. C., will bring into one meet two of the outstanding relay teams in North America. The St. Louis team gained national repute by its showing in the relays of both the indoor and national meets last year. After finishing third in the indoor meet here the St. Louisans went on to win the outdoor honors in New York last summer.

Meanwhile, plans for the complete program are going ahead rapidly. Attempts are being made to land outstanding national men stars for exhibitions to round out the program in addition to the contests between the local high schools and the actual National A. A. U. competition.

BURROUGHS "A" FIVE WINS FROM PRINCIPIA

The Burroughs "A" basketball team won its second "ABC" League victory by defeating the Principia "A" team, 26 to 12, on the Burroughs floor yesterday afternoon. The victors have a 2-1 record in league play.

After a slow first period when Burroughs led, 4 to 3, action picked up in the second quarter and the winners had a 10 to 4 edge. While Principia was being held to a lone free throw in the third period, Burroughs doubled its score, so that going into the last eight minutes, it led, 20 to 5. Principia outscored Burroughs, 7 to 6, in the last quarter.

In the preliminary games, the Burroughs "B" team took an overtime decision from Principia, 21-17, while the Burroughs "C" five won, 26 to 13.

Shaw-Stephens Girls to Oppose Tulsa Stenos

Girls' basketball here will reach its peak this afternoon when the Shaw-Stephens American Legion team of Maplewood, runners-up for the men's rules title last March in the tourney at the Washington U. Field House, opposes the National Champion Tulsa Stenos—the team that beat them, 13-7, in the final game. The contest will feature a triple-header at the Maplewood Senior High School Auditorium.

The program will get under way at 1:45 p. m., with a game between the Royal Hearts, champions of the Men's Municipal League, and the Fouke Furs, leaders of Division No. 1 of the Industrial Y. M. C. A. circuit. Immediately after the girls' game, the Alexanders and the Hi-Pointes will meet in their third and final contest to wind up the series that now stands tied with a victory apiece.

Tulsa's Stenos, coming here from the East, where they won and lost in a two-game series with the famous Speed Girls of Middletown, Conn., will start four all-Americans. They are: Frances Dunlap and Peggy Lawson, at the guards, and "Cotton" Wilkie and Martha Hickman at the forwards.

Probable lineups:

TULSA STENOS	VS.	SHAW-STEPHENS.
Hickman	R.F.	Moon (13)
Wilkie	L.F.	M. Dueker (2)
Cain	C.	Rudis (6)
Dunlap	R.G.	K. Dueker (7)
Lawson	L.G.	D. Dueker (5)

Reserves: Tulsa — Tabor, Goodwin, Poole. Shaw-Stephens—McGuigan (31), Rogers (9), Frillman (10), Anderson (12), Mertensmeyer (3), Carpenter (77), DeGreef (83).

"Dog Days" for Sportsmen.

THE Rod and Gun fraternity is marking time, during these wintry weeks, with both fishing and hunting in the "dog days." The State Game and Fish Department officials look gloomily at the report of license sales, now stagnant, the gloom being because the department needs the money.

Not until the trout season opens March 1 will license funds begin to supply the means for carrying on the department's work; and new income in large amounts will not be available until Decoration day.

The trout season will bring only a few thousand dollars into the department because this kind of fishing in Missouri is restricted to Bennett Spring State Park in Dallas and Laclede Counties, Roaring River State Park in Barry County and Montauk State Park in Dent County, which provide the State's public trout-fishing sites, although there are other semi-public and private trout-fishing places in the Ozarks.

Bumper Crop of Trout.

Dr. G. B. Herndon, chief of hatcheries for the department, last week predicted one of the best trout fishing seasons in years because of the abundance of catchable size trout in the hatcheries for distribution.

Although it is less publicized than either of the other two parks, Montauk Park offers much to the non-liver or dough-bait trout fisherman. Fishing is harder, there is more water, and generally not the first of the season crowds, such as are found at either Bennett Spring or Roaring River. Serious trout fishermen, however, say their preference for real sport is Montauk; for meat, the other sites.

The only species of trout (a member of the salmon family) now being propagated in Missouri is the rainbow, a species first introduced by the Federal Bureau of Fisheries. Its natural reproduction in Missouri waters is of little importance, although conditions seem to be right at the hatcheries for annual bumper crops. The trout is different from other fishes found in Missouri in that it spawns in mid-winter. Its natural habitat is spring water under 60 degrees and the State's many spring branches qualify as to this requirement.

Hunting Dog Ranks High.

Another proof of the wide popularity of the hunting dog is shown in a recent report of the American Kennel Club. Under the caption, "English Setters Nearest Perfection," the bulletin makes the following comment:

"America's typical dog show would have a final class consisting of an English setter, a beagle or a dachshund, a Doberman pinscher, a wire fox terrier, a Pekingese, and a Boston terrier; and the big prize of best in show would go to the English setter.

"This conclusion was reached at the headquarters of The American Kennel Club when the governing body tabulated the results of the 180 all-breed shows held throughout the United States during 1935.

"English setters stand out as the most nearly perfect breed in America, for these dogs won the gun dog group 58 times, and went on to best in show 29 times.

"The wire fox terriers pressed them closely, winning the terrier group 72 times, and going best of all breeds 23 times. Tied for third place are: Irish setters, which won the group 46 times, and best in show 14 times; Scottish terriers, taking the group 37 times, and best in show 14 times, and pointers, which won the group 26 times, and best of all 14 times.

"The gun dog group went to six breeds: English setters, 58; Irish setters, 46; cocker spaniels, 39; pointers, 26; English springer spaniels, 10, and Labrador retriever, 1."

Severe winter weather is very hard upon wild life and takes a heavy toll, especially if there is hard-packed snow or sleet covering natural feeding places. Game officials are asking sportsmen to feed the bobwhites in winter time and to put out feed for the more common insectiverous birds which come a begging at one's doorsteps.

The new wild life research building is now under construction on the University of Missouri campus at Columbia. The structure, costing $37,000, will be an addition to Lefevre Hall (Biology) and will house offices and laboratory.

Conservationists Meet Feb. 3.

Wild life restoration and conservation in all its phases, economic, recreational and social, will be the subject of comprehensive discussion and concrete proposals for action at the North American Wildlife Conference, according to the program announced by F. A. Silcox, chief of the Forest Service, who was named by the President as chairman of the meeting.

The conference will meet in Washington from Feb. 3 to 7, inclusive, and will be open to all individuals and groups interested in wild life restoration and conservation. For the first time in history of such gatherings, there will be a definite effort to depict in a highly dramatic manner, the need for immediate constructive action by all interests involved.

Bowling Notes

Most of the leading women bowlers in the city have entered the second annual Women's Diamond Medal Sweepstakes scheduled to be rolled at Feuser's Del-Mar Recreation beginning Feb. 7. Among the stars entered are: Ann Johnson, Lucille Wilson, Phylis Bosstelman, Flo Schlenk, Clara Mataya, Tess Walkins, Ann LaBreque, Mrs. Ed Doerr and Lee Chase. Entries can be filed by calling FOrest 1211 or mail to Feuser's Del-Mar alleys.

The Wulfmeiers won the odd game from the Mohawks in the feature of the Grand-St. Louis Handicap League and increased their lead to two games. The defeat dropped the Mohawks to a three-way tie with the Walter Pannells and Eckerts for second place. The Pannells won three from the Grand Cycles and the Eckerts three from the Borbien Youngs. The Petes won two of three from the Sites in the other match. Art Ebeling topped the individuals with 708. Other good scores were: F. Wulfmeier 628, F. Lauman 618, E. Kemper 673, H. Schaeffer 644, A. Thurmond 609, G. Summers 609 and T. McDonaugh 604.

J. Hoffman, member of the James team in the Electrical Board of Trade League, turned in a good "blind" score in last week's round of play at the Del-Mar Recreation, scoring a 135 game. Hoffman opened with three errors and then ran into three splits. In the remaining frames he picked three straight spares and finished with three strikes.

Century Alleys Notes.

The Markles and Clem Haar were the leaders in the South Side League at the Century alleys, the Markles toppling 3040 pins in their match with the Hoffmeisters and Haar collecting 669 for the Nebscos. John Sodomka had 664 for the Hoffmeisters, George Rundquist 649 for the Markles and Frank Haar 632 for the Busieks.

Joe Manier cracked a 673 which included a 279 game, for the Giddens in the Century House League and helped his team take two games from the Kohlmanns. Other results: Stephens 3, Wil-Wirs 0; Red Villas 2, Bates 1; Beckers 2, Soutieas 1. H. Dieckman 629, Ed Kroner 627 and M. Leidwanger 621 were the 600 shooters.

With Harry Frickel hitting 661, the Parks totaled 2791 to take three straight from the Parksiders in the Goodfellow League. The Victorias also won three games, defeating the Meines, 2654 to 2611. In the other matches, the Schmidts won two from the Luxemburgs and the Markles two from the Gaertners. Team leaders were: George Kasting 555, George Nettler 570, Frank Jorcke 535, Bud Becher 613, William Frank 620 and William Reiss 631.

Betty Kuhls was high in the Century Women's League, scoring 581 for the Dairy team. Miss T. Hettinger had 568, Rose Rotermund 553, Real Jones 516, Mrs. Augustine 490 and S. Bland 439.

In a special match at the Century alleys the Al Dohacks men's team defeated the Dohack women's team by a score of 2508 to 2489. Mrs. Necker topped the women's team with 508, while Eddie Hettinger had 522 for the men.

Although dropping three games to the Meteors in the Frisco League at Rogers Recreation, the Southwest Limited held their lead in the circuit by a margin of one game over the Red Ravens, who lost two to the Texas Specials. The other matches showed Blue Bonnets 2, K. C. Florida Specials 1; California Fast Freights 2, Arizona Perishables 1; Florida Perishables 2, Sunnyland 1, and the Texas Fast Freights 2, K. C. Fast Freights 0. The Meteors led the teams in high three with 2569, while the California Fast Freights had a high single of 886. For the individuals, Ollie Jones had a 576 for three games and Gregg Danis a high single of 212.

PAT WARREN SENDS ENTRY FOR MIDGET AUTO RACES FEB. 11

Warren, in the past five months, has again risen to the top rung in midget racing which he held until a year ago at which time he ran into a succession of poor cars and bad accidents.

The Coast driver began the indoor season in the Midwest Circuit last November and piled up a great number of points. He then went to California to compete in the Coast championship race at Gilmore and won the event over a classy field.

Back again in the Midwest Circuit he has continued his point-winning the past couple of weeks to gain a position among the first six drivers.

Reflow now has the contracts of two of the Midwest's six leading drivers as Jimmy Snyder had left a standing entry blank to guarantee his return for any of Reflow's programs.

Warren will have his new car, while Snyder will have the car which he introduced here for the first time last November and which has proved a great success in the winter indoor campaign.

Prep Fencing Entry.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—More than a dozen teams, including Barringer High of Newark, N. J., 1934 winner, have entered the third annual preparatory school fencing championships here, Feb. 1, under auspices of Washington Square College at New York University.

COUNTY BASKET TOURNEY OPENS TOMORROW AT FERGUSON HIGH

Y. M. H. A. FIVE PLAYS LOUISVILLE TODAY

The St. Louis Y. M. H. A. basketball team will play the Louisville Y. M. H. A. five this afternoon at the Y. M. H. A. gymnasium, Union and Enright, starting at 3:30 o'clock. St. Louis lost to the Kentuckians by a 31-29 score in their first meeting at Louisville, Jan. 5.

There will be two preliminary games. One will be between the Medics and Webs at 1:30 o'clock, and the other between the Alcors and Comets at 2:30 o'clock.

Coach Seeks Successor.

By the Associated Press.

FORT COLLINS, Colo., Jan. 25.—It isn't often a basketball coach has to search for a replacement for himself on his own team. But that's what Sam Campbell, Colorado State coach, has had to do. Campbell was an all-division forward at the Aggie school last year and was named court coach soon after the season ended.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 25.—Daisy Alexander Root told a jury at her trial today for the murder of her husband, Brenton Root, that she shot him after "he reached for his gun." She cried while she gave her testimony.

The trial was recessed at noon until Monday after she admitted under questioning by District Attorney-General W. T. McLain that she had been intimate with her husband before their marriage.

McLain asked her if she had had an affair in 1928 with a Birmingham, Ala., man who he described as Robert Lacey. She replied that Lacey was a "real estate agent for the Alexander property," and that she had only discussed business with him.

Describes Shooting.

The 29-year-old defendant said her husband was in bed with his back to her when she walked into his country home during the early hours of Nov. 3 after a night club party which broke up when she had words with Lucile Underwood, cigarette girl, and quarreled with her husband about his attentions to Miss Underwood.

"I told him to wake up," she said. "He just pulled the covers up around him like he always did when he didn't want to talk to me. I asked him again to talk to me and he sat up in bed.

"He reached over to get his gun off the floor, and I realized how I looked standing there with a gun in my hand. Then my gun felt heavy and he fell onto the floor. I took his gun into the kitchen, because I was afraid he might shoot me. Then, I got down on the floor beside him, and pleaded with him to talk to me."

Why She Carried Pistol.

"It's a lie—oh, you know it's a lie," she cried when McLain shouted: "Don't you know that you never loved Brenton Root?"

She testified she had no intention of shooting him when she went to his house. She said she took her pistol with her because Root's home was in the country and she needed it for protection.

The dead man's mother, Mrs. Benjamin Franklin Root, wife of a Chicago clergyman, fainted during the testimony. The trial was resumed after she recovered.

Mrs. Root said she rode in the ambulance to the hospital with her husband, "praying to God to let Brit live."

She denied it was "necessary" for her to marry Brenton Root.

APPEAL REINSTATED IN MAIL FRAUD CASE

Charles E. Paden, Promoter and Ex-Convict, in Dispute With Lawyers Over Fees.

The appeal of Charles E. Paden from a mail fraud conviction, dismissed Jan. 8 for failure to pay costs, was reinstated yesterday by Presiding Judge Kimbrough Stone of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, who set the case for hearing March 31 in Kansas City.

Paden, in his application for reinstatement of the appeal, alleged that he had paid $628 to two lawyers for court costs and other legal work, but that they had not paid the appeal costs of $131. The attorneys subsequently paid the costs and their check was included with the notification of reinstatement sent to the clerk of the court by Judge Stone.

The lawyers said last week, after Paden had filed his reinstatement application, that the $131 was not paid to them until after the appeal had been dismissed and that Paden still owed them $750 for various services.

Paden was sentenced to four years in prison in May, 1935, when he was found guilty of using the mails to defraud St. Louisans who invested in the Lubri-Gas Laboratories which he promoted. He is a former convict, having served three terms for embezzlement and obtaining money by false pretenses.

TOOTHACHE DELAYS MOVIE SUIT

Court Is Adjourned When Judge Molyneaux Goes to Dentist.

Lawyers and witnesses in the movie injunction suit were assembled in Federal Court yesterday for a forenoon session to wind up the third week of the trial when an attache announced that Judge Joseph W. Molyneaux, who was brought here from Minneapolis to hear the case, was suffering from a toothache and would not be present. The Judge went to a dentist.

Court was adjourned until tomorrow morning. The Government, which sued to enjoin Warner Bros., Paramount and R-K-O movie interests from withholding films from Fanchon & Marco's Ambassador, Missouri and Grand Central theaters, may finish presentation of its case for the most part of this week.

LAWYER TELLS OF QUIZ BY BAR COMMITTEE

B. F. Fenn, Gives Deposition in His $150,000 Damage Suit Alleging Defamation.

Bert F. Fenn, an attorney, testifying yesterday in a deposition in his $150,000 damage suit, alleging conspiracy to injure his professional reputation, let it be known that he was summoned by the Bar Committee of the Eighth (St. Louis) Judicial Circuit and quizzed about his practices as a lawyer.

Up to last Wednesday when Fenn filed his damage suit, which was against the Bar Committee, the National Pigments & Chemical Co. and certain of its employes, it was not known that his activities in representing workmen with silicosis claims were under the scrutiny of the committee.

Fenn's deposition was taken in the law offices of Boyle & Priest before Special Commissioner Lawrence McDaniel. He was questioned by Clair S. Cullenbine, attorney for the National Pigments & Chemical Co., a subsidiary of the National Lead Co.

Fenn, 67 years old, testified he was born in Boston, Mass., and came to St. Louis, a laborer, in 1892. He said he was self-educated, attended Washington University two years and was admitted to the bar in 1900.

Most of the questioning was devoted to Fenn's early career, and the main issue, his activities as a lawyer in silicosis cases, was barely reached when adjournment was taken to 9 a. m. Monday.

When questioned about his charges against the chemical company and the Bar Committee in the damage suit, Fenn said they were based on affidavits of St. Louisans and citizens of Farmington who alleged that investigators for the chemical company had defamed him in conversations.

It was then, in continuing his answer that he testified he had been summoned by the Bar Committee and questioned concerning his activities as a lawyer, asserting he refused to comply with a request that the committee be allowed to examine the affidavits he says he has. He also refused to produce the affidavits as part of the deposition hearing, remarking that he would produce them in court at the proper time.

Fenn, in response to ther questions, charged that investigators for the chemical company had settled cases with his clients through other attorneys without notice to or agreement with him, and that they effected these settlements by defaming him and intimidating his clients.

Grover C. Sibley, a member of the Bar Committee, represented the committee at the hearing.

CONFLICTING RECORDS IN CASE OF COMMISSIONER'S SON

James A. Waechter Jr. Failed to Attend Settings, but Speed Fine Was Finally Paid.

James A. Waechter Jr., son of the chairman of the Board of Election Commissioners, was fined $5 for speeding by Police Judge Simpson yesterday, after his case had been reinstated on the court docket following disclosure of conflicting records as to its disposition.

Charged with speeding on Washington boulevard west of Jefferson avenue on Dec. 30, he did not appear on the day of the original setting, Jan. 11, and a continuance of a week was recorded on the Judge's docket of that day. However, the case was not listed for Jan. 18 on either the Court's or clerk's docket.

Inquiry by a Post-Dispatch reporter disclosed that the clerk's docket for Jan. 11 showed a fine of $5 and costs, with a parole to the traffic school. Judge Simpson, however, said he had intended to fine and parole Waechter at a hearing on Jan. 18, "because he was at the University of Missouri and away from St. Louis."

The setting for yesterday was made by Chief Clerk Con P. O'Brien, after two clerks in Judge Simpson's court had said that the handwriting in the entry of the $5 fine and parole of Jan. 11 was not theirs. Waechter paid his fine yesterday.

EACH SHOOTS 140 FOR 36 HOLES IN FRISCO MATCH PLAY TOURNEY

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 25.—Ky Laffoon, sharp-shooting linksman from Chicago, and Jimmy Thomson, one of the longest hitters in the business, tied for medal honors today in the San Francisco Match Play Open championship.

Only eight qualified for the championship flight in one of the most radical changes from the standardized field of 32 ever put into effect.

The qualifiers and their scores: Ky Laffoon, Chicago, 69-71—140; Jimmy Thomson, Ridgewood, N. J., 70-70—140; Horton Smith, Chicago, 71-70—141; Craig Wood, New York, 71-71—142; Benny Coltrin, San Francisco, 69-72—141; Ray Mangrum, Los Angeles, 71-71—142; Willie Hunter, Los Angeles, 71-71—142; Willie Goggin, San Francisco, 72-70—142.

The field was trimmed sharply in order to run off the tournament in three days. Those who remained in the running were compelled to blast out sub-par scores from the Lake Merced course, a par 72 test.

The co-medalists scored four under par despite trying conditions. The course was almost blotted out by fog this morning.

Paul Runyan, former P. G. A. champion, was nosed out of the championship flight by a stroke, his 143 coming from a 73 and 70.

Walter Hagen, veteran campaigner, bowed out with a 74-71—145. Harold McSpaden, unattached and winner here last year, was eliminated with a pair of 73s.

Winner of the recent Los Angeles and Riverside opens and a pre-tournament favorite, Jimmy Hines of Garden City, Long Island, saw his chances flitter away with a 78 this morning. He came back with a 70 for the second round.

Other early favorites failing to qualify included Wiffy Cox of Bethesda, Maryland, and Bill Mehlhorn of Louisville, winner and runner-up of the recent Sacramento Open; Sam Parks Jr. of Pittsburgh, 1935 National Open champion; Jake Fessezke of Jackson, Mich., holder of the Michigan State Open title; Orville White of St. Louis; Torchy Toda, Japanese star and a team of Australian professionals.

Cox won the San Francisco tournament in 1932 but his 146 today was four strokes over the score qualifying the abbreviated field. White, Toda, and Mehlhorn were among those with 146s. Parks, last year's leader in the Open, was off form, taking a 78-76 for a 154.

The Australians, Joe Cohen, Sam Richardson, Lou Kelly, Billy Bolger, the Naismith brothers, Ted and George, were far behind.

Eighteen-hole match play rounds tomorrow morning and afternoon will further cut the field for the 36-hole finals Monday. The winner will draw $1675 of the $5550 purse.

Yale Wins Its 144th Consecutive Swimming Victory

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 25.

HEADED by Johnny Macionis' record-smashing performance in the 220, Yale's crack swimming team won its 144th consecutive victory today with a 52 to 19 decision over Pennsylvania.

Macionis negotiated the 220 in two minutes 11.9 seconds, to better his old Intercollegiate Swimming Association mark of 2:12.4, which he set up a few weeks ago.

WARRENSBURG WINS, 51 TO 24, OVER MISSOURI

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Jan. 25.—The smooth passing Warrensburg Teachers' College basketball team of the M. I. A. A. tonight defeated Missouri University of the Big Six, 51 to 24.

Workman led the Mules with nine field goals as his towering teammates fed him the ball from every angle, even from under the Missouri basket. Two free throws gave him a 20-point total.

The Teachers did everything with the ball but hide it under their jerseys and led, 23-8, at half time. Strom paced Missouri with three baskets and a charity toss.

Vain attempts to guard the lanky Teachers, all but one of whom tower above six feet, three, resulted in three Missourians leaving on fouls. Strom, Murray and Powell were chased in short order near the end, to be followed by Wiklund, over-zealous Warrensburg guard.

The Mules flicked the ball about the court with abandon, a receiver always bobbing up at the right spot. They hit the basket from every angle and from well out.

It was Missouri's fourth straight defeat, and a comeback for the Mules after they were upset by Maryville Teachers Thursday night.

WESTERN FIVE TRIMS COUNTRY DAY, 32-18

Western Military Academy retained its hold on first place in the "ABC" League basketball race when it defeated Country Day, 32 to 18, yesterday afternoon at Country Day. It was Western's third victory against no defeats.

The Country Day "B" team won from Western, 27 to 22, while the Western "C" team was a 30 to 18 victor.

WRAY'S COLUMN

In the Spotlight Again.

ONE of the strange developments of this bizarre drama called "modern wrestling" is the facility with which beaten wrestlers can be rehabilitated and resume their places as "championship factors."

Ed Lewis

Wednesday night at the Arena, a familiar figure will materialize out of many previous defeats, to make his bow as a "championship contender." Fat, considerably more than 40, vision impaired by the aftermath of trachoma, five times dethroned from the championship, our hero is Strangler Ed Lewis.

If Big Ed should emerge from Wednesday's setto with Dan O'Mahony of Ireland the winner, it would be the sixth time he has come back from defeat to be proclaimed world's greatest wrestler.

Not that there's much chance of this—Ed has had his day—or days. It's our opinion that if Lewis turned his full wrestling power on Daniel he could regain the crown. But we are not looking for this to occur, although far stranger things have happened, as many a chapter in history points out.

Made Wrestling What It Is.

WHEN you investigate modern wrestling you surmise Ed Lewis must be the boy who wrote the book. The whole action of the mat "championship" drama since 1920 seems to revolve around this Wisconsin German, real name Robert Friedrich, who

FLORIDA DERBY TEST IS WON BY GROG, $51 FOR $2; WHOPPER WINS

By the Associated Press.

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 25.—Grog, a Wheatley Stable cast-off now owned by the Canadian sportsman, J. U. Gratton, electrified 15,000 fans here today when he won the Hialeah Stakes and paid $51.50 for a two dollar ticket. The bay son of Hard Tack survived a thrilling finish to beat another long shot, W. C. Stroube's Bay Bubble, by a half length. The Wheatley Stable's Faust was third, a length behind, with Warren Wright's Crossbow 2nd just out of the money.

Grog, second in one previous start here, covered the six furlongs of this sixth running of the stake in 1:11 2-5 under Johnny Gilbert, who completed a double on the colt. The race was worth $3040 to the winner.

The race, instead of affording a better line on the Florida Derby, makes the March 7 classic more of a muddle. Those in today's stake that are eligible for the local Derby are: Grog, Faust, Crossbow 2nd., Higher Cloud, Dnieper, Microbe and Lancewood.

Eleven three-year-olds went to the post, with Crossbow 2nd., favorite at slightly better than 8 to 5.

By saving ground all the way and squeezing Grog through a hole on the inside at the home turn, Jockey Gilbert probably was the chief factor in the defeat of Bay Bubble. The latter went wide while showing the way and held on gamely.

Crossbow 2nd., topweight with Dnieper under 120 pounds, made up some ground but failed to seriously threaten for anything but the show position.

Stubbs broke in front in a good start. The speedy Bay Bubble quickly outfooted that gelding and opened up daylight over Grog. This pair held sway to the end, with Faust assuming a narrow hold on third position after a quarter mile and standing off Crossbow 2nd's stretch challenge.

Whopper Wins Again.

Hal Price Headley's big colt Whopper, which has been mention as a possible Santa Anita handicap candidate, turned in a high-class performanc to win the one-mile Miami Shores Handicap. The bay four-year-old, winner of the Inaugural Handicap here, picked up 128 pounds and romped home by three lengths in 1:36 2-5, equaling the fastest time of the meeting recently made by W. H. Furst's Mantagna. The latter, with added weight, could not run that fast today and finished second. C. V. Whitney's High Glee, pacemaker into the stretch, was half a length farther back.

Earl Steffen rated Whopper closest to the leader and shut off Mantagna when that fellow tried to go through on the inside at the far turn. However, Whopper obviously was best. He wore down High Glee and moved away while going easily. The winner was a $4.30 choice.

William Woodward's Thruster, four-year-old son of Gallant Fox, sent the week-end race crowd off to a good start when he got up to take the opening purse by a head. Blind Brook, one of the outsiders, held on to save second money by three lengths from another lightly regarded starter, Dan Skilling. Thruster ran a game race. He was unable to get clear in the early running but Jimmy Stout found racing room after leaving the far side and gave the $6.90 for $2 shot a strong finish to make the grade. Granny's Trade stopped after showing the way for almost a half mile. The time for the seven furlongs over a fast track was 1:24 4-5.

Two-Year-Old Race.

The "baby race" resulted in another popular victory. Maedic paying $4.70, won by a length and a half with the ace juvenile rider, Johnny Gilbert, having the colt well in hand. Chanting was second, a half length better than Mauritius. It was a three horse affair all the way. Mauritius was first in motion but gave way to Maedic and the latter opened up daylight in the last furlong, finishing the three furlongs in :35.

Mrs. J. H. Whitney's three-year-old filly Naughty proved to be very good indeed in the six-furlong third event. Displaying both speed and excellent courage, the daughter of Royal Minstrel came from behind the pacemaking Bright Haven after forcing a fast pace into the last furlong and beat the older horse by a half length to return $13.40. Judge Leer was a long shot third, nearly two lengths back. Scotch Gold, favorite in the field of nine, stopped out of the money. The time was 1:11 1-5.

GROG WINNING FLORIDA DERBY TRIAL—He's Next the Rail

—Associated Press Wirephoto.

This shot of the feature race at Hialeah Park yesterday shows some of the best two-year-olds of last season turning into the home stretch. Grog, the winner, with Johnny Gilbert up, is next the rail. He paid $51.50 for $2.

Norwegians Over-Match U. S. Olympic Speed Skaters In European Title Races

By the Associated Press.

OSLO, Norway, Jan. 25.—America's Olympic speed skaters were overmatched by the Norwegians today as the European championships got away to a slow start.

A second place for Leo Freisinger, 19-year-old Chicagoan, in the 500 meters and a fifth place for Eddie Schroeder, also of Chicago, in the 3000 meters, represented the American's best efforts on the first day of the three-day international meet.

Slow ice and a persistent mist handicapped the contestants and made fast time virtually impossible.

George Krog and Ivar Ballangrud, both of Norway, captured the two races on today's card. Krog was clocked in 42.7 seconds in winning the 500 meters by one-tenth of a second from Freisinger, who got off to a slow start.

Krog's time was one-tenth of a second back of the listed world's record Clas Thunberg of Finland set in 1931 and three-tenths of a second slower than the new standard Allan Potts of Brooklyn set here last Saturday. Potts, fading in the latter stages of the race, finished fifth in 43.8 seconds.

Hans Engnestangen of Norway was third in 43.4; Shogo Ishihara of Japan fourth in 43.5 and Delbert Lamb sixth in 43.9.

The 3000-meter event was a walkaway for Ballangrud. Clocked in 4:51.8, Ballangrud won by nearly a second from his team-mate, Charles Mathisen, who was caught in 4:52.6.

Max Stiepl of Austria was third in 4:54.2; Edward Wangberg, Norway, fourth, in 4:56.4, and Schroeder fifth in 4:57.4.

Under a complicated system of scoring for the individual championship, Ballangrud held the lead at the end of the first day's competition. He compiled the low total of 92.733 points. Schroeder, who led the American contingent, was seventh with 94.467.

20,000 PERSONS WILL SEE DETROIT OPPOSE GREEN BAY'S ELEVEN

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 25.—Verbal rumblings from rival professional football camps today heralded the post-season battle of the Detroit Lions and the Green Bay Packers here tomorrow.

Demand for tickets indicated a crowd of around 20,000 will fill Gilmore Stadium for the game.

The national champion Detroit outfit beat all-star teams in two appearance here this month.

The record of the Packers, which includes a two-out-of-three decision over the Lions in games played during the regular season, is highly respected, however.

The Lions have the great "Dutch" Clark, former all-America from Colorado College, as their mainspring in the backfield, while the Packers boast a passing combination of Arnold Herber-to-Don Hutson in their scoring attack.

OWNER AND TRAINER SUSPENDED ON CHARGE OF "DOPING" HORSE

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 25.—Benjamin Davidson, Brighton, Mass., owner of the thoroughbreds Payrack and Wayward Son, and Thomas Hurley, New York trainer, were suspended by the Miami Jockey Club stewards today, after they allegedly confessed giving caffeine to Paywrack on Jan. 11, when he won a race, and again prior to his withdrawal in the sixth race at Hialeah Park yesterday.

Davidson and Hurley were questioned last night after the Hialeah Park stewards ordered the withdrawal of Paywrack in the sixth race.

Mungo Returns Contract Unsigned to the Dodgers, Though Given Pay Increase

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—Van Lingle Mungo, Brooklyn pitching star, today joined an increasing group of big league hold-out threats.

The big right-hander sent his 1936 contract bouncing back from Pageland, S. C., with all the speed of a rubber check. With it came an ultimatum for more salary.

Already listed as a rebel is the celebrated Dizzy Dean of the Cardinals. Holding out with him is strictly routine. He is automatically seeded No. 1 in this competition.

Sam West has publicly announced the St. Louis Browns need not count on him for any outfielding unless there is considerable upward revision of the salary offer. Two others—Leon Pettit of Washington and young Clydell Castleman of the Giants, both pitchers—have admitted they are, at least, dissatisfied.

Receipt of Mungo's unsigned papers ruined an otherwise perfect week for the Dodgers.

"We gave Mungo a nice raise," one Brooklyn official said, "but he seems to think he's entitled to more. We haven't marked him down as a holdout yet, but neither have we decided to make him another offer."

Last year the Pageland planter was paid $10,000 for winning 16 and losing 10 games for the fifth place Brooklyns. He ranked fourteenth among National League twirlers. A finger injury kept Mungo off the hill for several weeks and spoiled his chance to hang up 20 victories.

The Dodgers are believed to have offered Mungo $11,000 this season.

Not a soul, himself included, knows exactly what Dizzy Dean wants.

West has set his price and if the Browns do not meet it, he'll keep right on pumping gas at his Texas filling station.

No trouble is anticipated with either Pettit or Castleman. They say their demands are not exorbitant. They just want more dough.

Pitcher Emil (Dutch) Leonard and Frank Skaff, third sacker and former Villanova star, signed with Brooklyn today, making a total of 10 Dodgers now within the fold. Skaff was with Allentown and Peoria last year.

Secretary Jim Tierney dug into his desk and came up with three contracts to bring his total to 10 and pull the Giants abreast of the Flatbushers.

In today's batch were the signed documents of Burgess Whitehead, second baseman obtained from the St. Louis Cardinals, and "Smoky Joe" Martin, a third sacker from Nashville. Mark Koenig now is the only infielder unsigned.

PITCHER KNOTT SIGNS BROWNS' 1936 CONTRACT

By J. Roy Stockton.

John H. Knott, good enough to be rated by Rogers Hornsby as one of the best pitchers in the American League, and good enough last season to win 11 games and lose only eight for a team that finished far below the .500 mark, has signed his 1936 contract, Vice-President L. C. McEvoy announced last night. It is understood that Knott is one of the Brownies who received substantial increases in their contracts.

Knott

Knott's winning percentage was .579, while the Browns, winning 65 and losing 87 games during the season, had a mark of only .428 when the bats and balls were put away for the year.

In 48 Games.

"Jack was a much better pitcher than even that record would indicafe," McEvoy said, in making the announcement. "He was in 48 games and he saved many of the contests that were credited to other pitchers on our staff. As a matter of fact, after studying his record, I am in favor of a new column in the statistics about pitchers. I think there should be a column on 'games saved,' and if there were Knott would rank very high in that department."

Appearing in the 48 games, Knott pitched 188 innings. There were not many complete games by Brownie hurlers, but Jack went the route seven times. He relieved faltering comrades 15 times and was also in 14 games in which he neither started nor finished. He ranked fortieth in the league in earned runs, yielding 4.60 a game, and his percentage of .579 was the twentieth best in the circuit.

"I'm expecting Knott to do better next year than he did in 1935," Hornsby said. "His health was bad for a time, and he is just getting back his strength after a serious operation. I rate him pretty high in the business. He has plenty of speed and stuff, and he has a fine spirit. He'll pitch one day, relieve the next and be ready to start again the third day if you'll let him. He wants to win and along with it all he's a smart pitcher. I look for a better start in '36 than we had last year and, with a better defensive club, all the pitchers ought to do better

Knott Fourth in Line.

The business of signing the St. Louis American Leaguers is progressing satisfactorily. Ivy Paul Andrews, Rollie Hemsley, Ed Cole-

SINGING WOOD AND OTHERS SUFFER BAD RACING LUCK

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SANTA ANITA PARK, Arcadia, Cal., Jan. 25.—Out of the clouds came Time Supply, an overlay at almost 8 to 1, to win the Santa Anita speed championship in his first start of the winter racing season this afternoon.

Climaxing a series of dazzling morning workouts, Time Supply launched his 1936 campaign before 20,000 fans with a hollow triumph in the $5000 San Vincente Handicap, sprinting the six furlongs in 1:10 1-5, only one-fifth of a second off the track record held by Trumpery.

Coming around his field on the home turn, Time Supply won by a length over Rosemont, with Singing Wood third by two lengths in an exceedingly rough race.

As it was run, Time Supply was much the best. He won quite handily after colliding with Rosemont on the bend, escaping interference himself, although almost every other horse in the race had a troublesome journey.

Singing Wood was off a bit slower than usual and found himself in the middle of a traffic jam on the back stretch, finally easing back and going around horses to give an excellent account of himself in the stretch. Sunrap cut out the pace for Rosemont, but folded after going half the distance. Pompey's Pillar had the No. 1 post position, very unlucky for a slow breaker, and he was shut off right at the start. Special Agent could find little racing room on the turn and had to give up.

But all the while Time Supply had clear sailing. Tommy Luther got him off with the pace, cleverly avoided trouble on the outside and called on his mount in the run home to see him respond in a move that never left the issue in doubt after they rounded the bend.

But next time he goes to the post he isn't likely to pay any $17.40, which he rewarded for winning tickets this afternoon.

Discovery Works Out.

Alfred G. Vanderbilt's 1935 handicap champion, Discovery, working out between races, dashed off a mile in 1 minute and 36 seconds.

Dissovery ran the distance two-fifths of a second faster than Cavalcade, his chief rival in the coming $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap, registered in a public workout yesterday.

Discovery's time was a fraction of a second less than the track record of 1:35 4-5, hung up Christmas day, 1934, by Top Row.

The exhibition drew applause from a crowd.

World Record Set.

Airflame, crack two-year-old of the A. G. Vanderbilt stable, set what track officials said was a world record today in a "baby" race of three furlongs. He dashed off the distance in 33 seconds flat as timed by stop watches an 33.08 seconds as clocked by the electric timer.

The previous mark of 33 1-5 was held jointly by Airflame, Blind Barney and Atoel.

In the third race, R. D. Powers traveled six furlongs in 1:12 2-5 to win and pay $100, $62.20 and $22.80.

OHIO STATE DEFEATS PENN FIVE, 41 TO 37

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 25.—Ohio State's crack guard, Tippy Dye, got his eye on the basket in the last 30 seconds tonight to sink a pair of goals and give the touring Buckeyes a 41 to 37 victory over Pennsylvania's court combination.

Dye, together with Jim McDonald and six-foot-three Earl Thomas, put on a rally in the final five minutes that brought Ohio State from behind a 37 to 31 disadvantage to the ultimate victory.

Northwestern Wins.

By the Associated Press.

EVANSTON, Ill., Jan. 25.—Northwestern turned on the steam in the second half tonight to sweep to a 42 to 27 victory over Bill Haarlow and the University of Chicago in a fast Big Ten basketball game. Led by Haarlow, the conference's leading scorer, who added 10 points to his total, the Maroons made a great battle of it in the first half.

FLYERS AND ST. PAUL BATTLE FOR FIRST PLACE TONIGHT

M'PHERSON'S SIX FAVORED TO END SAINTS' 7-GAME WINNING STREAK

Probable Lineups

ST. LOUIS.	Pos.	ST. PAUL.
Murray	Goal	Almquist
Carbol	L. D.	Emil Hanson
Swenson	R. D.	McGlone
Oddson	C.	Dahlstrom
Breckheimer	L. W.	Pleban
Walker	R. W.	H. Johnson

Spares: St. Louis—McKinnon, Matte, Purpur, Palangio, Burmister, McPherson, Paddon and Teel. St. Paul—Oscar Hanson, Emory Hanson, Matschke, Munson, Flood and V. Johnson.

For the first time this season, the St. Louis Flyers will have to battle to remain on top in the American Hockey Association race when they tackle the St. Paul club at the Arena tonight. The two clubs are tied for the lead now with 16 victories each. The game is scheduled to start at 8:30 o'clock, no matter what the weather conditions are. Officials of the building have promised sufficient heat.

As the Saints have won seven successive contests it would seem that the law of averages is on the side of Coach Alex McPherson's men who have won four of their last six games, although they lost to Tulsa, Thursday night.

St. Paul is the team which defeated the Flyers in the playoff after last season between the winners of the Central League and the American Association pennants.

Teams Even on Season's Play.

This season the clubs have met five times, each winning two games and tying the other. In their last contest the Saints inflicted a 6 to 1 defeat on the Flyers, the worst beating the St. Louis club has suffered this season. But that was a night when Joe Matte was out of the game.

In the five games the Flyers have scored 10 goals and St. Paul 12.

The Saints appeared to be a strong team early in the season but were shy of reserves but they lately have added men to their roster and now have a full complement.

Three brothers on the club, Oscar, Emory and Emil Hanson are among the stars of the aggregation with Oscar being among the leading scorers of the circuit.

Dahlstrom, one of the centers of the team, is rated by McPherson as one of the most promising young players in the league, and as St. Paul has a working agreement with the Chicago Blackhawks of the major league, it is likely he will get a tryout with them next season.

Flyers Work Out.

The Flyers returned from Tulsa in time to work out at the Arena yesterday and all of the players reported in condition.

It will be a busy week for the St. Louis club for following tonight's contest the Flyers are scheduled to play in Kansas City Tuesday, Oklahoma City Thursday, then return home to meet the Warriors at the Arena next Sunday night.

The Christian Brothers College band is scheduled to be on hand for tonight's game together with groups from other local high schools and a party of 75 newsboys from Springfield, Ill., as guests of the Flyer management.

Should the weather moderate, it is likely that the largest crowd of the season will attend, meaning more than 10,000 persons.

McPherson Again Leads.

Picking up three goals and an assist last week, McPherson regained first place in the individual scoring with 26 points. Burns of Oklahoma City, the leader a week ago, got only one assist and his 25 points were good for a tie for second place with Oscar Hanson.

LOU PLUMMER WILL WRESTLE LEO SAVAGE

The two finish feature matches on the Elmer Emig Post No. 3100, Veterans of Foreign Wars of United States wrestling card at the Coliseum Friday night was completed yesterday by Promoter Bill Schwabe, who annonced that Lou Plummer of Baltimore would be the foe of Leo Daniel Boone Savage, bearded hill-billy of Kentucky. Plummer has wrestled here many times during the last six years on cards promoted by Tom Packs.

The second finish feature match will pit Herb Lowery, North Sider, against Walter McMillan, Pine Lawn lightheavyweight. The men were originally slated to tangle in a 30-minute preliminary, but due to the good records of the grapplers and the interest in the match, Schwabe decided to move the bout up to the second feature event.

Frenchman Starts 40-Mile Swim From Catalina

By the Associated Press.

AVALON, Santa Catalina Island Cal., Jan. 25.

PAUL CHOTTEAU, French athlete, began his fourth attempt to day to swim the 40 miles from Catalina Island to Santa Monica.

The three previous efforts ended in failure, once with the mainland only a few miles away.

Chotteau entered the water at 5 a. m. (Pacific standard time). For the first few hours he swam about a mile an hour.

He said he expected to take from 30 to 35 hours to make the dangerous swim through the open ocean. This would bring him in around noon, Sunday.

Chotteau was accompanied by a sailboat and a rowboat.

Since early fall, the big Frenchman has been spending six hours a day in the water, rain or shine. Weather conditions were favorable today.

Sonja Henie Piles Up Big Lead for Skating Title

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Jan. 25.—Sonja Henie, world's ranking woman figure skater for 10 years, again demonstrated her superiority today when she took a commanding lead over her rivals in the European championships.

The 24-year-old Norwegian girl piled up 259.1 points in the school figure competition. The championships will be concluded tomorrow with Sonja and Karl Schaefer of Austria, who led the men in the prescribed figures yesterday, strong favorites to retain their crowns.

Two English girls finished second and third to Miss Henie today. Cecelia Colledge was runner-up with 249 points while Megan Taylor compiled 245.9 points.

The disappointment of the competition was Vivi-Ann Hulten, Swedish champion who gave Sonja a close battle last year. She could do no better than fifth in the school figures as Liselotte Landbeck, former Austrian, now a Belgian citizen by marriage, finished fourth. Viktotia Lindpainter, the new German champion, was sixth in the field of 17.

OLYMPIC BASKETBALL TRIALS IN VALLEY TO BE HELD, MARCH 9

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 25.—Olympic eliminations for the Seventh District and the Missouri Valley A. A. U. basketball tournaments will be held here March 9 to 14, Dr. J. A. Reilly, athletic chairman for the Seventh N. C. A. A. District, announced last night.

The district is composed of Oklahoma, Nebraska, Kansas and Missouri. Eleven university teams are eligible.

The Missouri Valley A. A. U. tournament will begin Monday, March 9, and be completed Wednesday. The college teams will play Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

"Happy Days Are Here Again" For Alex McPherson and His Flyers Who Now Get Paid on Pay Day

By W. J. McGoogan.

Alex McPherson is a happy young man, these days. He is coach of the St. Louis Flyers, who have held onto the lead in the American Hockey Association all season. He has been at the top or near the top in individual scoring in the league since play began. He is getting paid regularly, so are his men. They are traveling to their out-of-town engagements in the style befitting a troupe of professional athletes. And to climax it all, he recently was presented with an automobile by the owners of the club for his fine work.

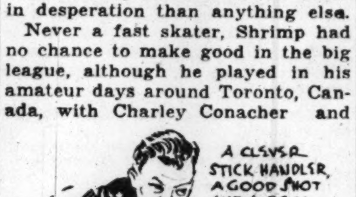
Times were not always so good with "Shrimp," as he has been called by St. Louis fans for the past five seasons. He has seen some hard days for himself and the hockey club since he has been in St. Louis. He has seen many a payday come and go without an envelope awaiting him in the club office.

Was Usher During World Series.

And, to tell the truth, there have been periods in the past when he had to scratch hard to find the necessities of life. He has been forced, in the off season, to check cars in the Arena garage, act as handy man around Forest Park Highlands, and during the world series of 1934 he took a job as an usher at Sportsman's Park, more with a view to seeing the games than anything else, however.

Perhaps the success of the club is due more to this little fellow than any other factor. He came here from the Tulsa team five seasons ago and had he been able to leave the city he would have done so. But as he was stranded, he played with the Flyers each winter more in desperation than anything else.

Never a fast skater, Shrimp had no chance to make good in the big league, although he played in his amateur days around Toronto, Canada, with Charley Conacher and Harvey Jackson, the outstanding stars of the powerful Maple Leafs. He knows all the other tricks of hockey, he is a clever stick-handler, good shot and best of all, he is an unselfish player. That is, one who fits into a team. From his place at center he is in a position to make many plays for his wing men. That is the purpose to which he devotes himself, and usually his assists are greater in number than his goals scored.



A CLEVER STICK HANDLER, A GOOD SHOT AND A REAL TEAM PLAYER

Wins Support of Fans.

These attributes quickly endeared him to St. Louis fans as they saw him struggle to work his short legs to keep up with the faster skaters of his team and the teams to which the Flyers were opposed.

Season after season passed, but Alex stayed with the team through three or four ownerships. He hopefully signed a contract each season, but in only one previous to this one did he get the sum agreed upon. He estimates that the has lost $6000 in uncollected salary in three seasons.

Alex can look back upon these hardships and laugh now that the team, under the direction of Frank Ruppenthal, is doing well artistically and financially. He can think of the time when one owner put his men on a train for a trip to Kansas City and, as the lunch hour approached, the men were looking for meal money, but the owner had provided against such a contingency and pulled out a package of sandwiches that he had thoughtfully had his wife prepare before train time. These he passed around to the hockey players.

And on another occasion the club was forced to travel three days by bus and automobile, play three games on successive nights (which they won), only to lose their first game on home ice on their return.

Had to Forage for Groceries.

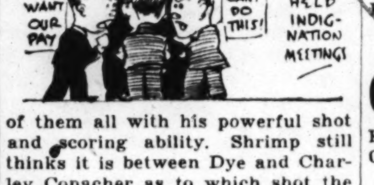
Another owner had an apartment in the same building in which Shrimp and some of the other players lived. The men were having a hard time finding enough groceries, but the magnate somehow or another was always well supplied, particularly with canned goods. But he made the mistake of leaving his kitchen window open occasionally. So the players helped themselves to the supplies when opportunity afforded.

BOYS SOMEBODY MAY MISS A MEAL TONIGHT BUT IT WON'T BE US
YOU CARRY THE GRAVY
THE MAGNATE LEFT THE KITCHEN WINDOW OPEN AND THE PLAYERS HELPED THEMSELVES

Those things were not funny at the time but in retrospect they appear laughable to Shrimp now, the only man of the present Flyers who has been through it all.

There were indignation meetings regularly by the men, demanding their money. How the team was able to carry on for most of the past five years, play every scheduled game and come back the following season for more is something which verges on a miracle.

McPherson started his hockey career in Toronto, where, as a boy, he used to carry sticks for some of the men who made the game famous. And Cecil "Babe" Dye, later coach of the Flyers and a referee in the league, was Shrimp's hero. He was to see a time later on when he would have many arguments with Dye but when he was a kid he thought Dye was the greatest of them all with his powerful shot and scoring ability. Shrimp still thinks it is between Dye and Charley Conacher as to which shot the puck harder.



WE WANT OUR PAY
THEY CAN'T DO THIS!
THE MEN HELD INDIGNATION MEETINGS

Now Alex, at 27 years of age, is looking forward to hockey in St. Louis with renewed confidence. He always believed that given a good team and in a good league, St. Louis would be a great hockey town. The team this year is a good one and even if the league isn't so hot, fans have turned out in such numbers as to indicate a banner season for the Flyers.

McPherson hopes that league officials will be able to add some larger cities to the circuit next year, for he has several years of good hockey left in him and wants to see the game continue to grow in St. Louis about him.

SAN ANTONIO PASSES UP THE 'TEXAS OPEN'

By the Associated Press.

SAN ANTONIO, Jan. 25. — Because horse racing extends to Feb. 22 at Alama Downs, San Antonio will not attempt to stage a Texas open golf tournament this year. Sponsors say it would be foolhardy to attempt a tournament during the races, and all winter dates after Feb. 22 have been allotted to Florida.

However, there will be a big Centennial open, probably in June, at Dallas, with an approximate purse of $10,000. It is expected to draw all the nation's best shot-makers.

SPORT SALAD
by L. Davis

Cheer Up!

IN Florida the bougainvillia blooms,
The palms are swaying in the gentle wind;
For ball clubs, owners are reserving rooms—
If winter comes can spring be far behind?

But zero weather has to be endured
Until the mercury begins to climb;
And, brother, you can safely rest assured
That spring will be around on scheduled time.

How It Started.

It looks as though the Boston Red Sox will start the season with the greatest aggregation of "money" players ever assembled under one banner.

Incidentally it was a Boston club that started this thing of buying pennants when the old Boston National League club startled the baseball world by paying the Chicago White Stockings $10,000 for Mike Kelly and later a like amount for Pitcher John Clarkson.

Charley Retzlaff says if the one punch he aimed at Louis had landed they would be working over the Brown Bomber yet. Indicating that though Louis won it was by the narrowest of squeaks.

RETZLAFF
BOY! THAT GUY DON'T KNOW HOW LUCKY HE WAS.
LOUIS

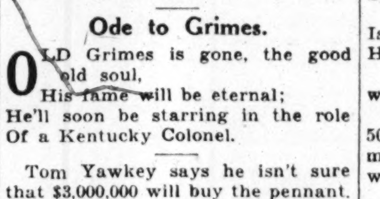
Even Connie Mack, who wrecked a famous pennant winning team in 1914 finally had to buy his way out of the cellar and will have to do so again. That is unless he goes in for acreage like the Cardinals and starts raising his own.

Speaking of the Cardinals, Dizzy Dean will have to look to his laurels as the world's champion popper offer. The scribes and pharisees of the Far East are citing the $80,000 Babe Ruth drew one year as typical of the salaries paid ball players in little old New York. Carl Hubbell please note.

Ode to Grimes.

OLD Grimes is gone, the good old soul,
His fame will be eternal;
He'll soon be starring in the role
Of a Kentucky Colonel.

Tom Yawkey says he isn't sure that $3,000,000 will buy the pennant. Oh, well, it's a pretty fair down payment anyhow.



See where a girl in Honolulu has a tennis racquet that has stood the racket for 81 years and isn't a bit unstrung.

After taking part in a squash racquets tournament, Charley Gehringer says baseball is the best racket he knows anything about.

And speaking of squash, Charley is some pumpkins when it comes to operating around what is known to the trade as the keystone sack.

Jack McAuliffe, the old undefeated lightweight champ, rates Joe Louis the best of all, and Jack has seen 'em all. He defeated Billy Meyers of Streator, Ill., in New Orleans the night before John L. Sullivan went down before Corbett. And that's going back.

J. Louis Comiskey, owner of the White Sox, has started to grow a mustache. If Conny has taken an oath not to shave his upper lip until the Sox win the pennant he has laid the foundation for one of the finest handlebar mustaches in history.

The entries for a new name for the Boston Braves will close on Feb. 1. The winner will get a season ticket and will not be held responsible if they don't live up to their new name whatever it may be.

LOCAL HANDBALL STARS INVITED TO TITLE MEET

Fourteen St. Louis handball players have been invited to enter the twelfth annual National Y. M. C. A. handball championships to be held on the courts of the Minneapolis Y. M. C. A., Feb. 19-22. It is a four-wall event, using a soft ball. Both singles and doubles tourneys will be held.

The St. Louis players invited are: Jack Srenco, city champion, Lou Blocher, I. N. Kessler, Simon Wolff, Frank L. Zander Jr., Harry Richards, N. J. Funk, Harold Srenco, Mike Cunningham, Samuel Floun, D. Joe O'Connell, Marshall Lehr, Robert Connelly and Jerry Laughlin.

The tournament is open to all Y. M. C. A. member athletes. Entries will close Friday, Feb. 14. Entries should be sent to Less Kinnamon, Y. M. C. A., Minneapolis, Minn. Prizes will be awarded for the first three places. Entry fee is $1 per player for each event.

Srenco to Defend Title.

Among the early entries received for the Downtown Y. M. C. A. handball championships, Feb. 1 to 9, are Jack Srenco, the defending champion, who has entered the singles and is paired with his teacher, Mike Cunningham, veteran of many battles, in the doubles.

Included among those entered are J. Zawadski, Class B singles champion of Cleveland, O., who has entered Class A. Strong contenders for the doubles title are Lou Blocher and Frank Zander, and Joe O'Connell and Marshall Lehr. Zander is expecting to enter the championship class singles within the next few days.

Other entries received are: Championship class—R. Connelly, Lou Blocher. Class A—Larry Meisel, M. Levy, W. J. McShane and L. Cross. Class B—C. Brettelle, George Cunningham and J. Reuter.

A great amount of interest is manifesting itself in the tournament this year, and a record-breaking entry list is expected by the time the entries close tomorrow.

Two St. Louisans Named Chairmen Of A. A. U. Groups

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25. — Avery Brundage, president of the Amateur Athletic Union, named the chairmen of the 30 committees which will have charge during 1936 of the organization's activities just before he sailed for the winter Olympics early today.

The chairmen will head committees having a total personnel of more than 800 men and women from every section of the country. Two St. Louisans are among those named as chairmen—Dee Boeckmann, women's track and field, and Charles Gevecker, industrial.

The list of chairmen.

NEW YORKER'S YACHT WINS HAVANA RACE

HAVANA, Jan. 25.—Sailing his yacht Ace, Adrian Iselin II of New York today won the first leg of the Bacardi Cup races to open the Star International Class Regatta.

The Nutmeg, of the Central Long Island Sound fleet skippered by T. H. Smart, finished second.

The sea was calm and the weather was fair.

Iselin's winning time was 1 hour 50 minutes and 38 seconds for 10 miles over a two and one-half mile windward-leeward course.

After Nutmeg, the order of the finish was as follows: G. Carricaburo's Jupiter; C. Decardenas' Kurush; John Muhlfeld's Santa Elena; C. Fuentes' Jibara and R. T. Symonette's Gull.

WRAY'S COLUMN

for nearly a quarter of a century has figured publicly in mat competitions.

It was Lewis, we believe, who first saw the possibility of dramatizing wrestling in the interest of the cash customer; and it was he who brought to the game not only superior wrestling ability but histrionic talents that made him the No. 1 boy of the game for so many years.

It was Lewis who, nearly 20 years ago, first set the sport tongues wagging when he wrestled Joe Stecher, then world champion, for five hours to a draw! But it was not until 1920 that Lewis was able to make good and toss Joe for the title, his first championship success.

It was Lewis who had all the wrestlers in the country steaming for five years, during which he held the title and refused to risk it except against selected opponents.

It was Lewis who faced Wayne Munn in that astonishing Kansas City match when he lost the title for the first time. It was Lewis who regained it here in St. Louis by beating the man from whom he had first won it, Stecher.

It was Lewis who after succumbing to Sonnenberg's butts, came back to win the crown again from Don George. It was Lewis who again lost his crown in the famous biting match with Henri Deglane, when Deglane was accused of biting his own arm and then charging Lewis with the bite.

It was Lewis who again came back, after beating Shikat and Ray Steele, and was proclaimed champion in 1933 by New York State, and it was Lewis who then fell before Jim Browning.

And now here he is, back again, to face Dan O'Mahony who, many observers declare, can't really wrestle, yet who has attained to the only "clear" title a wrestler has enjoyed for a decade, not to mention the quarter of a million dollars he has gained with it.

Picked Green.

O'MAHONY'S meteoric career climaxes the many queer angles to recent wrestling development, among them the astonishing rise to preeminence (momentary at least) of wrestlers whose abilities were scorned by large groups of fans and athletes.

O'Mahony

Lewis brought out the first one of these in Wayne Munn. Another was Gus Sonnenberg, who introduced legal butting under the name "flying tackle."

Don George also came in for some contemptuous remarks at the hands of critics when fortune cast him in the champion's role.

Henry Deglane was another wrestler of whom it was said he was "champion of something he knew little about."

O'Mahony, last of the group of those referred to as hand-picked, brought to the job very little real professional wrestling experience, and what was referred to as a new and special hold "the Irish whip," which he proceeded to crack to his great technical and and financial advantage.

Along with those quick-rich champions a flock of collegians was introduced, but naturally not all of the green boys could be provided with titles. Some of them are still hanging around the outer fringe picking up small change.

A Meteoric Rise.

JUST how all these wrestlers managed to shoot to the top or near it in a sport an axiom of which is that "you just begin to know something about wrestling after the first five years" is your guess.

Of all the quick-sprouting wrestlers, O'Mahony was the fastest. Apparently, he still is expanding. It is equally certain that, of all the wrestlers, good or bad, in the last 10 years, he is the only one who has occupied the throne without dispute.

Everett Marshall is shouting about some sort of title which, it seems, the State of Colorado gave him; but just at present nobody pays attention to him. O'Mahony has it wrapped up for keeps—unless Big Ed takes it away from him next Wednesday.

Championship in a Nutshell.

IT is customary to smile cynically when the wrestling championship is mentioned. Nevertheless we receive occasional questions as to who held the title and when. Below we append a story in capsule form of the championship since the great Gotch's time:

CHARLIE CUTLER was presented with the title by Frank Gotch, retiring, in 1914. He lost it to—

JOE STECHER in 1915. The Nebraskan was beaten by—

EARL CADDOCK in 1917. Caddock went to war and on his return dropped the title to—

JOE STECHER in 1920. In the same year Joe lost to—

STRANGLER LEWIS and before the season ended Lewis was beaten by—

STANISLAUS ZBYSZKO. Still in the same year Zibby lost a return bout to—

STRANGLER LEWIS, who held to the title until 1925, when he was beaten in a "queer" match by—

WAYNE MUNN. Wayne the same year succumbed on what was considered another peculiar finish to—

STAN ZBYZSKO who, in 1925, was beaten in St. Louis by Joe Stecher. Joe held it until 1928, and then lost to—

STRANGLER LEWIS (also in St. Louis). The next year, 1926, the Strangler was butted out of the picture by—

GUS SONNENBERG, who hung on until 1930 when he lost to—

DON GEORGE. In 1931 George was beaten in a most surprising finish by—

STRANGLER LEWIS who, three weeks later, was beaten in the celebrated Canadian biting bout by—

HENRI DEGLANE, who flourished a year or more and then in 1933 lost to—

DON GEORGE, who, in turn, lost to—

DAN O'MAHONY in July, 1935.

A Contemporaneous Champion

WHAT about Jimmy Londos?" we hear you complain. That was a collateral line of the championship genealogy. Londos' story reads about as follows:

Londos beat Shikat, June, 1930, and was proclaimed champion of New York and Pennsylvania in 1930. He held this abortive title for some months, gaining greater recognition as time went on, however.

He was more generally recognized as titleholder, in 1934-35 than Don George, but finally lost to George in June, last year. This made it possible for O'Mahony to claim the world title without opposition, when he tossed George.

As for Lewis, he was proclaimed champion on one occasion not show in the title record above. That occurred in 1932, when Londos was about the strongest claimant. The New York Commission told Lewis that if he would throw Jack Sherry, Dick Shikat and Ray Steele he would be matched with Londos for the title.

Lewis complied with conditions, but Londos refused to wrestle him; whereupon, Lewis was proclaimed champion of the world—in New York. Browning tossed him later.

Now Lewis, for the first time in a decade, has a chance to regain the title clear of incumbrances or claims.

SCHAEFER OF AUSTRIA WINS THE EUROPEAN FIGURE-SKATING TITLE

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Jan. 25.—Karl Schaefer of Austria won the European figure skating championships tonight, defeating the Olympic representative of nine nations in a keen competition which drew a crowd of 12,000.

H. Graham Sharp of England placed second and Ernest Baier of Germany, who yesterday won the pairs title with Maxie Herber as his partner, was third. Baier's brilliant free skating advanced him a notch in the final standing. He had been fourth in the compulsory school figures but improved his place through excellent free skating composition.

Fourth place went to Felix Kasper of Austria, fifth to Tertat of Hungary and sixth to Nikkanen of Finland. The United States and Canadian teams did not compete.

Corkball Meeting.

Applications for membership in the National Corkball Association will be received this morning up until noon at 4415A Harris avenue. Fred Gastorf and Vince Stollhaus will be in charge.

MULLOY ELIMINATES HAL SURFACE, ENTERS ORLANDO TENNIS FINAL

ORLANDO, Fla., Jan. 25.—Gardner Mulloy of Miami added another nationally ranked tennis player to his list of victims today when he defeated Hal Surface of Kansas City, 7—5, 2—6, 8—6, 6—4, in the semifinals of the Orlando tennis tournament.

Surface, ranked twelfth nationally, followed J. Gilbert Hall, South Orange, N. J., eighth ranking nationally, in defeat. Hall lost to Mulloy yesterday.

Arthur Hendrix of Lakeland, Fla., who recently upset Wilmer Allison and Bryan (Bitsy) Grant, ranked Nos. 1 and 3 nationally, was beaten by Charles Harris of West Palm Beach, Fla., 6—2, 6—2, 4—6, 6—4. Hendrix was off his game because of illness.

Harris meets Mulloy in the finals tomorrow.

Hall and Marcelle Rainville, Montreal, the Canadian Davis Cup star, defeated Harris and Surface in the doubles semifinals, 6—0, 6—2. Richardo Morales, Havana, and Jack Reitman, Montreal, won the other match from Hendrix and Mulloy, 6—0, 8—6.

MANGAN SECOND ONLY SIX INCHES BEHIND KANSAN; PEACOCK VICTOR

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Jan. 25.—Glenn Cunningham, the world's fastest miler, was roundly booed by many in the 10,000 crowd at the Boston Garden tonight when he nosed out Joe Mangan, former Cornell captain, in the K. of C. mile run, feature of the Prout Memorial games.

The mighty Kansan, running his first mile of the indoor season, was timed in 4:17.7.

Many of the spectators became incensed when Cunningham appeared to cut over and block Mangan on the last turn, just when the former intercollegiate champion was about to pass the barrel-chested Kansan.

Mangan had to break his stride and was forced to fend off Cunningham to prevent a collision. This mishap, which occurred about 20 yards from the finish line, failed to daunt Mangan and he trailed by less than six inches when the world record holder broke the tape.

McCluskey Weakens.

Sears placed third, 10 yards behind Managan, and Joe McCluskey of the New York A. C. finished far back in the ruck after leading the field by a good 20 yards during the first half mile.

When the announcer named Cunningham as the victor, for the second consecutive year in this classic, the huge sports structure reechoed with the loud jeering which became lusty cheers when Mangan was officially credited with second place.

Harold Manning, 118-pound Wichita, Kan., distance runner, turned the tables on Don Lash, Indiana's national cross-country champion, by breaking the tape five yards ahead of Lash in the Larrivee two-mile special. The Kansan's time was slow, 9:26.8.

Manning, nosed out by Lash in a recent New Orleans race, waited until the bell lap before uncorking the mighty spurt that carried him to victory in this Prout Memorial game co-feature at Boston Garden.

Lash took the lead at the start and held it for 23 laps, with Joe Mundy of the Millrose A. A., and Manning at his heels, the latter moved into second place during the second lap.

Crowley Far Back.

Those three stars had the other eight starters out-distanced when they passed the mile mark. Tom Russell, former Manhattanite competing unattached, was a poor fourth and he was followed home by the veteran Frank Crowley of the New York A. C., and Arthur Johnstone of Northeastern.

Milton Sandler, an unattached New Yorker, turned back the courageous bid made by Herman Stewart of Amherst, to gain the William C. Prout Memorial 600-yard trophy. The finish was a blanket affair, which included Harry Hoffman of the New York Curb Exchange.

Sandler, who led for the last two laps, was clocked in 1:15.8. The other starter, Eddie Brown of the New York A. C., set the early pace and then wilted badly.

Peacock Wins.

Eulace Peacock, of Temple, the national 100-meters sprinting champion, nosed out Larry Scanlon of Holy Cross, by a fott in the 50-yard dash. The Negro flyer was timed in 5.6 seconds.

Francis Zeimetz, Boston College freshman, captured third place from th veteran Phil Cody of the Millrose A. A.

Officials ruled that his lane was faulty and certified him for the semifinals. He gained an easy triumph over A. H. Hakanson of Northeastern, and Ed Kickham of Boston College, in the 5.9 seconds finale.

Hornbostel Victor.

Charley Hornbostel, former Indiana star now attending the Harvard Business School, gained his second straight Bishop Cheverus "1000" victory in easy fashion over Harry Williamson of North Carolina University.

Hornbostel, never pressed, took the lead after the first lap and led the Southerner to the tape by 10 yards while being clocked in 2:14.8.

Manhattan's Bill Ray placed third and Jim Herbert of the New York Curb Exchange, was fourth in the field of eight.

BILLIKENS LOSE TO WATCH AND WARD, 3-0

Watch and Ward moved into the lead in the Amateur Hockey League by shutting out the St. Louis University Billikens, 3 to 0, yesterday afternoon at the Arena.

All the scoring was done in the first period. Dutch Schwartz counted first for Watch and Ward and then Cohane scored the last two goals.

The defeat put the Billikens in a second place tie with the Octupus club, each having won one game and lost one. Washington University is last with no victories and two defeats.

MULLOY ELIMINATES HAL SURFACE, ENTERS ORLANDO TENNIS FINAL

ORLANDO, Fla., Jan. 25.—Gardner Mulloy of Miami added another nationally ranked tennis player to his list of victims today when he defeated Hal Surface of Kansas City, 7—5, 2—6, 8—6, 6—4, in the semifinals of the Orlando tennis tournament.

Surface, ranked twelfth nationally, followed J. Gilbert Hall, South Orange, N. J., eighth ranking nationally, in defeat. Hall lost to Mulloy yesterday.

Arthur Hendrix of Lakeland, Fla., who recently upset Wilmer Allison and Bryan (Bitsy) Grant, ranked Nos. 1 and 3 nationally, was beaten by Charles Harris of West Palm Beach, Fla., 6—2, 6—2, 4—6, 6—4. Hendrix was off his game because of illness.

COURTNEY TAKES LEAD IN POCKET BILLIARD EVENT

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—Alvin Hardgrov of Detroit handed J. Howard Shoemaker of New York, the defending champion, his first defeat of the National Amateur Pocket Billiards championship tonight to go into a three-way tie for second place.

Winning his second match of the day, Hardgrove outlasted the 16-times winner of the title 125 to 118 in 37 innings. Each had a righ run of 16.

The two triumphs left Hardgrove, Shoemaker and Rogers deadlocked with three victories and one defeat, while Herbrt Courtny of New York with two games won and none lost, took the undisputed lead.

IOWA STATE WINS FROM NEBRASKA

By the Associated Press.

AMES, Ia., Jan. 25.—Iowa State win its second Big Six basketball game of the season here tonight but it took an overtime period to nose out Nebraska 41 to 40.

Iowa State jumped into the lead with the opening gun and was never headed until within five minutes of the end of the regular playing time, although the Cornhuskers were never far behind.

Trailing 20 to 17 at the half, Nebraska forged steadily ahead and at the end of the regular playing period the count stood 37 to 27.

Going into the overtime period, Baker, Nebraska guard, sank a field goal and Cowen, Iowa State forward, tied the score with another. Holmes and Flemming, Iowa State guard and forward, dropped in two free throws.

Cowen and Walquist, Nebraska forward, shared scoring honors with 17 points each.

PITCHER JACK KNOTT SIGNS 1936 CONTRACT WITH THE BROWNS

Picking a Team.

RAY CAHILL, scout for the Browns doesn't think much of the all-star teams selected here and there after each baseball season, and believes that he could pick one that would triumph if the competition were transferred from the pencil and paper league to the actual playing field.

"My contention is that too much attention is paid by the all-star team pickers to the batting averages," Cahill shouted during a fanning bee that developed at Rogers Hornsby's annual baseball dinner at the Coronado the other night. Cahill was shouting because he had to shout. It is remarkable how men who make their living with the typewritten word, rather than the spoken one, can double with what might be called the old bazoo, when they get a chance. Everybody was in fine form. You had to shout. If you were a good, turn-around shouter, you were able occasionally to get a word in edgeways. Cahill wasn't doing so bad. There was one interruption after another, but he stuck to his soap box.

"All they do," he carried on, "is to go through the batting averages and take the leading hitters in each position. Background doesn't even mean anything. A guy may have been a bust for eight years, but if he happens to be up there when the picking is being done, he gets the nod. No attention is paid to the intelligence quotients of the players. Occasionally I have seen all-star teams with a combined batting average around .350, but with an IQ that wouldn't get some of the boys out of the kindergarten.

How Ray Would Do It.

"NOW my idea would be to pick a team as a manager would like to have it. Of course a club that would bat .350 might overpower all opposition, but such teams selected for all-star games do not always live up to their paper strength. I'd pick the right and left fielders, the first and third basemen and possibly the catcher for their attacking strength. Then I'd overlook the batting marks as I chose my center fielder, my second baseman and shortstop.

"You have to have strength 'down the middle' to have a real good ball club. The center fielder must be able to range far to either side, he must be able to go back or come in and he must know how to play the hitters. The second baseman and shortstop must be brilliant fielders and a fine double play combination.

"I'd try to get a catcher with a punch, but of primary importance would be his ability to call for the right pitch. Much of the pitching is done by the catcher, you know.

"Give me that kind of team and I'd be glad to match it against one selected merely because of batting power. But I could talk myself hoarse (Ray had done that and everybody else was hoarse by that time), and it wouldn't change the all-star team pickers. They'll keep on using the batting averages as their only yardstick."

Whatcha Mean, Sissies.

A CORRESPONDENT who did not take the trouble to sign any name or initials, but who indicated he was a switch umbrage-taker, wants to know what H. E. S. means by calling the Cardinals "a bunch of sissies," when the team included Hallahan, Collins, Durocher, Martin, Davis, Rothrock, T. Moore, Medwick, Gelbert, the Deans, Haines, et al.

It may have been just a rhetorical question, but if the non-signing correspondent really wants to know, H. E. S. probably saw the little Redbirds all decked out in their polo shirts.

That and This.

WHEN Horace Stoneham was 12 years old, Bill Brandt of the National League Service Bureau informs us, he wrote an essay while a pupil at Loyola School, Park avenue, New York. The little boys and girls were asked to write about "What I Would Do With a Million Dollars," which seems just what boys and girls on Park avenue, New York, might be asked to write about. At any rate, Horace Stoneham wrote his little piece about his ambitions and said he would buy the Giants if he had one thousand grand. Not long after that Horace's father bought the Giants, so Horace didn't have to bother about it. And now he is president of the club. Horace will be 33 years old in April.

Pepper Martin will have a birthday next month. He was born Feb. 29, a leap-year baby who certainly learned to leap. Members of the Cincinnati Reds will have birthdays on four successive days in late February, Al Hollingsworth, Emmett Nelson, Leroy Herrmann and Walter Hilcher having been born respectively on Feb. 25, 26, 27 and 28.

Joe Sewell, after 15 years in the major leagues, has gone into the hardware business, having purchased a store at Tuscaloosa, Ala. Success story: From diamonds to nuts and bolts.

Badaracco Leads In Bowling Event

Lee Badaracco rolled 1282 to lead in the match game bowling eliminations held last night at Baden Recreation. Another six-game block will be rolled at Vescovo's tonight to reduce the field to four.

Charles Schoppe became ill last night and had to drop out of competition, so only the lowest one from the five left will be eliminated from the 12-game total figured on last night's and tonight's games.

Last night's scores:

Lee Badaracco—	201	214	221	214	233	199	—1282
Buzz Tonkovic—	226	254	192	212	202	181	—1267

FOUKES AND WAGNERS BATTLE FOR LEAD IN INDUSTRIAL CIRCUIT

First place will be at stake in Division No. 1 of the Y. M. C. A. Industrial Basketball League, when Fouke five meets Wagner Electric in the feature game of the six scheduled Wednesday night at the Armory. Each of these teams has won four contests and lost one. The Fouke team won from Wagner in a previous meeting by a score of 22 to 17. The contest promises to be one of the best of the season, and the victor will have a good chance to become the ultimate champion of the division.

In the other game in Division No. 1, Monsanto of East St. Louis will tackle International Shoe. In a previous encounter the shoe men lost by four points.

In Division No. 2, Wohl A. C. will attempt to gain its sixth straight victory in a game with the U. S. Engineers. The other game of Division No. 2, between Stix, Baer & Fuller and Wabash, should be the feature game of the two due to the fact that in their previous engagement the Railroaders nosed out Stix, Baer & Fuller by a score of 41 to 38.

U. S. SQUASH CHAMPION IN FOURTH ROUND

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Jan. 25.—Seeded players came through in the Atlantic Coast squash racquets championship today as National Champion Donald Strachan and Neil Sullivan, both of Philadelphia, and Germain Glidden, Boston, gained the semifinal round. They were seeded one, two and three respectively in the draw.

The fourth semifinalist, Cyrus Polley, Buffalo, rounded out the bracket when B. D. Walsh of Philadelphia defaulted in the middle of their match after accidentally receiving a deep gash on the forehead.

Polley was leading, 13—10, in the second game of the match after dropping the first, when in the midst of a furious exchange of backhand drives, his racquet struck Walsh between the eyes. The Philadelphian pitched forward on his face and had to be helped from the court. He was unable to continue.

Perhaps the best play of the day came out in the Strachan-Wakeman match. The Bostonian quickly got the jump on his favored opponent and ran out the first game. Strachan then settled down to his work and after evening the games at one-all went on to take the third. After the intermission Wakeman hung on until the score was deuced at 13-all and then squared the match by taking the game at 16—15. Strachan won the deciding game at 15—12.

Neil Sullivan required three close deuced games to win from J. J. Cornish Jr. and enter the round of fours. He did not appear to have recovered completely from a leg injury he suffered recently.

Germain Glidden, Harvard University star, defeated A. H. Barker, of New York City and will face Strachan in the first semifinal test tomorrow.

Maplewood Five Works Smoothly, Beats McKinley

Maplewood High School basketball team displayed a surprising improvement in every phase of the game as it defeated McKinley High at Maplewood gymnasium last night by a score of 32 to 22. The South Side team appeared to be somewhat off form, but Maplewood was generally superior and deserved its victory.

A surprising feature of Maplewood's attack was the success of the shooting of the guards. Both Ficke and Taylor scored four field baskets and together they accounted for 19 of Maplewood's points.

UNIVERSITY CITY WINS FROM SOLDAN, 21-10

University City began a new basketball winning streak at Soldan's expense, 21 to 10, last night on the Indians' floor. The winners had their old streak broken Friday night by the Mount Vernon (Ill.) High School team.

The Indians took an 8 to 0 lead at the end of the first period and increased it to 15 to 5 at half time. Soldan only scored five points in the last two periods, while University City picked up six.

Leo Shakofsky, with six points, was high point man for the Indians while Harold Goldberg and Gerald Bailey evenly divided eight of Soldan's points.

BUD BLATTNER REACHES FOURTH ROUND IN TABLE TENNIS TOURNEY

By Reno Hahn.

Robert "Buddy" Blattner, Beaumont High School student, and National boys' champion, reached the quarterfinals of the Missouri State table tennis tournament by defeating Bud Tracy, 21—9, 21—17, in the third round last night at Kirkwood High School.

Blattner, who is only 16 years old, drew a bye in the first round, but won his second round match in the afternoon by winning from Everett Belt, 21—12, 21—12. Blattner is seeded No. 1 in the men's singles.

New champions will be crowned in all five events in the finals tonight for the defending champions were not entered. Quarterfinal and semifinal matches will take place this afternoon at 2 o'clock and the finals will be held tonight, starting at 8 o'clock.

Snow prevented Miss Mary Benson, defending women's singles champion, and three other Kansas City stars from reaching St. Louis as planned.

Hellmich, in First Year as Basketball Coach, Gives Washington a Fighting Team

By James M. Gould.

With the members of his squad in the throes of midwinter exams which he hopes won't throw any of them for a loss, Hudson Hellmich, in his first season as basketball coach at Washington University, has time to balance his books for the first half of the current campaign. At the moment, his 1935-36 ledger shows four entries in black and four in red ink and with nine more on the schedule, this lanky young gentleman whose name is writ large in the athletic annals of the University of Illinois, plans to better that .500 percentage.

Hellmich is the reserved type of coach. His brow is corrugated with wrinkles of worry only when his team is playing. There's no lack of temperament as such but he "contains himself" much more easily than some other coaches in the collegiate basket game. Once in a while, during a game, he'll ask the official scorer how many times out each team has had or how much time is left, but he has yet to go through an Apache-dance routine because an official has done some particular thing or overlooked doing some particular thing.

Hellmich

Hellmich has taught the Bears to fight on the basketball floor. It may not be the best basketball team in the world. As a matter of fact, it isn't by several nautical miles, but it is the best basketball team that could be made out of the material at hand and, after all, more could hardly be expected from a coach—new or old.

Bears Have .500 Percentage.

In balancing books, figures are necessary and those for the eight games played by the Bears since Hellmich took charge compare very favorably with those of last season's Washington team.

In the first eight games of the 1934-35 campaign, the Bears won only three for a percentage of .375 and, in five Valley Conference games, won two and lost three for a mark of .400. This season, in eight contests, the Bears have had an even break for a .500 percentage and also are all-square in Valley competition with two victories and as many defeats.

A distinct gain also is marked in both offensive and defensive parts of play over last year.

A year ago, after eight games had been played, the Bears had made 201 points for an average of 25.1 per game while the opposition had scored 253 points for an average of 31.6. This season, the Bears have produced 220 points for an average of 27.5 and have allowed 244 points for an average of 30.1.

Football Players Stars of Team.

Several football men who played last season and who were eligible for basketball didn't report this year. Among them were Droke, Zboyovski, Hudgens and Tomlinson, a pretty good nucleus right there. Fortunately, three fooball stars did come out—Hafeli, Captain Martintoni and Tommy Ozment, and it doesn't take an expert watching the Bears in action on the floor to pick these three as chief cogs in the Hellmich machinery. So, "Hud" wasn't embarrassed this season by an overabundance of material. He had to experiment quite a bit in early games and, as a result, the Bears lacked considerable cohesion and, at times, like the little girl with the curl, looked "horrid."

Gradually, the young coach selected the men he wanted and gradually the team took shape. They surprised by winning their first two Valley games, defeating Washburn and Grinnell. It was not surprising that they were thrown to defeat by Creighton and Drake for the two latter teams are the class of the Valley.

Then came the St. Louis U. test. For the past two seasons, the city crown at basketball has rested on the brows of the Billiken players. And, there were many predictions that Coach Mike Nyikos of St. Louis—the guy with temperament to burn—would make it three in a row. The Billikens were favored before the recent meeting and still were favored after the first half.

There may have been points about basketball that Hellmich's team didn't know but, against the Billikens, they showed in the second half that they distinctly did know how to fight. In fact, their battle so disconcerted the favored Billikens that the Bears swept through to a decisive 39-28 victory and the "jump" in the championship series.

His work with mediocre material has given every indication that the powers that be made no mistake by giving this home-town product his big league chance.

M'BRIDE UPSETS ST. L. U. HIGH QUINTET, 17-9

Coach Toddy Kamp's McBride High School basketball team sprang a mild surprise when it won from St. Louis University High, 17 to 9, on the Junior Billikens' court last night. The victory put McBride second to Western Military Academy in the Preparatory League race.

St. Louis failed to show the coordinated attack which gave it a long winning streak at the beginning of the season and only counted one free throw on Caples' shot in the first quarter. McBride led, 3 to 1, after the conclusion of the first eight minutes and thereafter was never headed.

Tommy Woodruff's two field goals and Louis Luth's field goal and Caples' field and free goals accounted for all the St. Louis scoring. John McKenna, with four field goals, eight points, led the McBride scorers.

Some fine guarding by McKenna and Ed Evans forced St. Louis to hurry its shots and its passes, the result being that the Junior Billikens were wild with their passes.

HEART BREAK WINS FIFTH TIME IN SIX STARTS

By the Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 25.—Heart Break, a 6-year-old mare which has been clicking with regularity for Mrs. H. Torriente, hung up her fifth victory in six starts today in accounting for the six furlongs of the Jefferson Park Handicap at the Fair Grounds.

As in her previous victories the daughter of Morvich went to the front at the start and never was headed. Her margin over Clyde Troutt's Hueu was only half a length at the head of the stretch but in the run for the judges, Heart Break left Rival two lengths to the rear. Third went to Fair Time, a stablemate of Hueu.

Heart Break, paying $5.80 straight, was clocked in 1:13 1-5.

Princeton Teams Average .631

PRINCETON, N. J., Jan. 25. — Fifty-two different Princeton University athletic teams in 1935, engaging in 374 contests, had a winning percentage of .631, with 233 victories, 134 losses and seven ties. The freshmen had the best record, a percentage of .691.

Carondelet Park No. 1 — Busiek vs. Thirteenth Ward Reg. Yg. Dmo.; D. Bartnett, referee; 2 p. m. St. Agnes Messenger vs. St. Francis de Sales; J. Wiesler, referee; 2 p. m.

Carondelet Park No. 2—Juniors: Fifteenth Ward Jefferson Club vs. City Market; L. Robbins, referee; 2 p. m. St. Hedwig vs. Spanish Caballeros; L. Robbins, referee; 3:30 p. m.

Sherman Park—Hasty Club vs. Hartmann; H. Ratican, referee; 2 p. m. Irish Village vs. St. Edwards; G. Burke; 3:30 p. m.

Forest Park No. 11—Schumacher vs. County Democrats; I. Wimer; 2 p. m. St. Ambrose Y. M. S. vs. Hermann; D. Barnard, referee; 3:30 p. m.

The perennial soccer rivalry between "Dogtown" and "The Hill" reaches its climax today when the Hermanns oppose St. Ambrose in the final game of the regular schedule in the Forest Park group of the Municipal Soccer League competition. The teams are tied for the group lead.

Players who make up the St. Ambrose team were reared in the Italian settlement south of Manchester avenue and west of Kingshighway, a district popularly known as "The Hill." The Hermann team is largely recruited from players living to the north of Manchester, not far from "The Hill" district, in "Dogtown." The clashes of the sports teams from these two neighborhoods never fail to provide thrilling situations. Today's game will start at 3:30 p. m.

In order to strengthen their team, St. Ambrose recently signed two former professional players of merit, Woody Selby, center forward, and Frank Lodderhose, outside right. The Hermanns, according to Manager Ed "Axel" Delaney, will rely upon their regular roster, although a switch may be made in positions.

Other groups have two games still to play.

The Carlstrom Miracle Whips can clinch the Fairground No. 3 junior title with a tie or a victory over Neighborhood House.

Featured at Carondolet No. 1 will be the leading Thirteenth Ward Democrats against the second-place Busiek Markets, at 2 o'clock, with a tie or a victory for the Democrats giving them the title.

Since Fairground No. 4 has been a division of upsets all season, anything may happen with the leading El Rey Chili's playing the Strodtmans and the runner-up Balsano Fruit and Produce Co. meeting Clawsey's Cubs. Only an astonishing upset by the two bottom teams could decide the Fairground No. 2 title situation of A. B. C. Brewery and Seifert-Griesedieck Cafe.

CAPERTON RIDES HIS 18TH WINNER OF MEET AT SAN ANTONIO

By the Associated Press.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Jan. 25.—Jockey Harry Caperton scored his eighteenth victory of the Alamo Downs race meet today when he booted home Frederick, the Hamrick and Massey Stable entry, in the featured fifth race.

Frederick dashed past the Judges' stand only a nose ahead of Takus, which finished three lengths ahead of Aunt Myrtle. Kai Harri, the favorite, was out of the money.

The winner's time for the five and a half furlongs was 1:05 2-5.

Caperton scored also with Thistle Ray in the third race.

SPEED SKATING MEET TODAY AT AURORA, ILL.

By the Associated Press.

AURORA, Ill., Jan. 25.—Ab Hardy of Falcon Bridge, Ont., heads a list of 199 entries in the Western speed skating title meet tomorrow.

Arrayed against the Canadian star will be Al Kugera, Wallace Fee, Eddie Stundl and Vic Ronchetti, a quartet of Chicago speedsters. Elizabeth du Bois and Elinor Thiel of Chicago top the women's division. Miss du Bois was a member of the 1932 Olympic team, and Miss Thiel is Illinois State champion.

Nomination Blanks For the Kentucky Derby Sent Out

By the Associated Press.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Jan. 25. NOMINATION blanks for the Kentucky Derby and other stake races to be run at the Churchill Downs spring meet were mailed today. Announcement of the full list will be made Feb. 29.

The Derby, with a $40,000 added purse, will be run May 2, provided the State Racing Commission approves the date chosen.

Watch His Odds Drop!

Cavalcade, After a Recent Fine Trial

Cavalcade, the greatest 3-year-old of the 1934 campaign, but idle most of last year because of bad feet, now a candidate for the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap. Last week he worked a mile in 1:36.4, one of the best workouts of any of the eligibles. His odds dropped to 5 to 1, with Discovery still favorite at around 2 to 1. As a 3-year-old Cavalcade was Discovery's master every time they met.

U. S. OLYMPIC TEAM LOSES IN PARIS, 6-2

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Jan. 25.—The United States Olympic hockey team was defeated by the Paris French-Canadians, 6 to 2, tonight in its last pre-Olympic exhibition in France.

The Americans showed little improvement over their previous showings here, passing raggedly and relying upon individual feats. They were thoroughly outclassed.

The French-Canadians scored two goals in each period while the Americans scored once in the first frame and once in the third. Goalie Tom Moone of the Olympics turned back a total of 37 shots while his teammates fired only 22 at LaScelle. Frank Shaughnessy and John Garrison were the American scorers.

FRISCH GIVEN MERIT AWARD BY WRITERS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—A couple of local products, Frank Frisch, manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, and Hank Greenberg, skyscraping first baseman of the Detroit Tigers, have been selected by the New York chapter of the Baseball Writers' Association as the game's outstanding figures in 1935.

Greenberg, who already has been designated as the American League's most valuable player last season, will receive a plaque emblematic of selection as the player of the year at the chapter's annual dinner and frolic here Feb. 2.

Frisch has been singled out for the award of merit for services to baseball over a long period of years. Frisch, who was a star athlete at Fordham University, went directly from the campus to the Polo Grounds 17 years ago. He's 37 years old.

The 1934 player award was voted to Dizzy Dean, lanky Cardinal twirler, and the merit citation was split between Connie Mack and Rabbit Maranville.

TRIPLE A TO HOLD ANNUAL DINNER DANCE

TODAY'S SOCCER CUP GAMES OFF; SHAMROCKS MAY GET HUGH HILL

By Dent McSkimming.

Neither of the two national soccer cup games involving St. Louis teams scheduled for today will be played. Snow and severe cold caused the postponement of the Ben Millers' match with Sparta at Chicago and the Hellrung & Grimm team's replay with the Shamrocks, national title holders, at Sportsman's Park.

In the week's grace thus thrust upon them, the teams will continue their planning and plotting but the probabilities are that no important alterations in the lineups will be made for the local game. Manager Bill Lehman expressed keen disappointment at the failure of his team to win last Sunday's match but after having considered the situation for a full week he said yesterday that he intended to start the same 11 players. There is little that Manager Phil Kavanaugh could do to add to the scoring power of his team for the replay, and there is no reason why he should disturb his backfield which came through so gloriously last week.

Hugh Hill May Come Here.

"We will not hesitate to make changes in our lineup if we don't click against the Hellrungs," said Lehman yesterday. "We have tried hard to build up a great team here and we can't take any chances on getting knocked out of the cup competition. Although we have a big roster, with 18 players signed, we will reach out and get others if necessary. We are in communication now with Hughie Hill of Chicago and if he agrees to terms we will have him eligible for the second round cup match, provided we can get past the Hellrungs. We hope that Hill signs with us for we regard him as a very versatile player and a first-class cup man. He goes well under pressure."

If Hill joins the Shamrocks he will be the fifth member of the Wieboldt Club of last season to switch his affiliation and the fifth Scotchman on the team. In this respect he would be replacing another Scot, for Willie McLean is not expected to play again this season. He is under treatment in a St. Louis hospital for a nervous disorder.

Millers to Have Full Squad.

As was announced yesterday, the Burke club (formerly Spanish Sport Club) lost its protest against the Marres. The Burkes questioned the eligibility of Center Forward Larry Ross, but it was established that Ross had been signed within the prescribed time.

Larry Kickham and Joe O'Meara, two of the leading forwards of the St. Louis Soccer League, are included in the starting lineup of the Ben Miller club for next Sunday's match at Chicago. A week ago, neither player was to make the trip, but Manager Frankie Vaughan has changed his plans. There is just an outside chance that the Millers would get off to one of their good days and hand Sparta a knockout wallop. The odds, however, are strongly in favor of a Sparta victory.

MEETING OF THREE-I LEAGUE POSTPONED

By the Associated Press.

DECATUR, Ill., Jan. 25.—The annual meeting of the Three-I league, scheduled for tomorrow at Terre Haute, Ind., today was postponed until Feb. 2 by President L. J. Wylie. Expected sub-zero weather and the illness of Manson Reichert, Evansville (Ind.), representative, were responsible for the postponement.

Town Club Girls Defeat Y. W. C. A. Swimming Team

One pool record fell as the Town Club swimming team, coached by Lila May Kepple, defeated the swimming team of the Young Women's Christian Association, 32 to 20, in a dual meet yesterday afternoon in the Town Club pool.

Ruth Steinmeyer of the victorious team set the new record when she swam the 40-yard breast stroke event in 32 seconds. She herself held the old mark, 32.2 seconds, which she had established only last week. In winning the 40-yard race yesterday she finished in front of Mildred Hempler and Doris Masson, both also of the Town Club, who placed second and third, respectively.

Lillian Saunders of the Town Club was one of the bright stars of the meet by virtue of victories in two events—40-yard free style and 40-yard backstroke—and as a member of the winning 80-yard relay team.

40-YARD FREE STYLE—Won by Lillian Saunders, Town Club; Agnes Berger, Y. W. C. A., second; Annabel Sprague, Town Club, third. Time—26.4s.

40-YARD BREAST STROKE—Won by Ruth Steinmeyer, Town Club; Mildred Hempler, Town Club, second; Doris Masson, Y. W. C. A., third. Time—32s. (New unofficial pool record).

100-YARD FREE STYLE—Won by Ruth Steinmeyer, Town Club; Doris Skinner, Y. W. C. A., second; Victoria Sipp, Y. W. C. A., third. Time—1m. 19.7s.

FANCY DIVING—Won by Ronnie Busch, Y. W. C. A (49.9); Estelle Demeke, Y. W. C. A., second (44.1); Georgia Disch, Town Club, third (24.3).

80-YARD RELAY—Won by Town Club (Lillian Saunders, Ruth Hunter, Georgette Guthridge, Ruth Steinmeyer). Time—52s.

40-YARD BACK STROKE—Won by Lillian Saunders, Town Club; Ronnie Busch and Fern Schermer, both of Y. W. C. A., tied for second. Time—31.2s. Referee—Sterling Thompson.

Future Olympic Hopes?

Left—Doris Skinner, 13-year-old free style swimmer. Right—Dorris Masson, 14, who specializes in breast stroke events. Both are members of the Young Women's Christian Association swimming team. Coach Gallagher thinks both girls will go far in competition, with a little more experience.

TAGGART WILL SUCCEED FLESH AS DISTRICT'S GOLF PRESIDENT

Bill Taggart, Normandie Golf Club, is slated to become the new president of the St. Louis District Golf Association at the annual meeting and election of officers, at Coronado Hotel on Wednesday at 8 p. m.

Because of a custom adopted in the organization some years ago the officers move up a step without a contest, so really the only new officer chosen is the second vice-president. In this case Taggart will succeed Roy Flesh, Woodlawn, who has been head of the association for the past two years. Leo Bauman, Westwood, second vice-president, takes Taggart's place as first vice-president and a new second will be chosen.

Clarence Wolff will retain the post of secretary and Cornelius Schnecko that of treasurer.

Will Consider Tourney Dates.

Tournament dates and places for holding them during the coming season likely will be considered but clubs for only two events will be sought, other than tentatively. Wolff wants to set the places for holding the qualifying rounds for the National Open and the National Amateur events. The former is to be held Monday, May 11, and the latter Tuesday, Aug. 25. Each is a one-day event, 36 holes of medal play. In the last few years neither has attracted a very heavy entry in this district.

The open tournament proper is to be held at Baltusrol Golf Club, Short Hills, N. J., June 4, 5 and 6 and the entries close April 28. The national amateur is to be contested over the course of the Garden City Golf Club, Garden City, Long Island, Sept. 14 to 19. The entries for this close Aug. 12.

The number of contestants permitted each of the districts in the United States to both tournaments is figured in ratio of the number of entries from each to the number from the whole country. The Missouri amateur this season is to be held in Kansas City where Grable Duvall will defend his title.

The national Public Links tournament is to be held at Bethpage State Park, Farmingdale, N. Y., July 20 to 25. The women's national is to be contested at Canee Brook Country Club, Summit, N. J., Sept. 28 to Oct. 3 with entries closing Sept. 12.

Over the two latter tournaments, of course, the St. Louis Men's Association has no jurisdiction.

Finances in Good Order.

It is likely that the dates and place for the annual district event will be discussed at the meeting and it probably will be held, as in other years, early in June. Westwood Country Club may be the locale as that club was in line for the event last year, but its officers did not think the course was ready.

Finances of the association are in good order, according to Schnecko, who states that there will be a small balance left in the treasury to start the new season. Club dues and a part of entry fees for district tournament provide the only sources of income for the association.

There were 14 active member clubs with some associate and nonresident members last year.

Giants Not for Sale.

The New York Giants are not for sale. This was the first statement made by Horace Stoneham, the club's new president. Last year the Giants made a profit of $480,000.

REAL ESTATE
REAL ESTATE ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH SECTION FOR SALES
PART THREE
ST. LOUIS, SUNDAY MORNING, JANUARY 26, 1936. (C) PAGES 1—14C

TWO RESIDENCES IN WESTMORELAND PLACE ARE SOLD

PORTLAND HOMES UNDER NEGOTIATION

Deals Are Also Pending for Houses Under Construction or Just Completed in Lake Forest at Clayton and Hanley.

Renewed demand for residences, with noteworthy acquisitions in Westmoreland place, lent a semblance of buoyancy to the real estate market last week.

The palatial residence at No. 20 Westmoreland place, owned by J. Clifford Rosengarten of Philadelphia, was acquired by Mrs. Charles McClure Clark. No intimation of the consideration was given. Albert T. Terry Son & Co. handled the transaction.

The three-story brick structure has four master bedrooms, with three baths, and a maids' room and bath, on the second floor. A storeroom and guest room, with bath, are on the third floor. The first floor comprises reception hall, living room, maid's dining room, pantry, and kitchen. An electric elevator is a feature. A large garage with man's quarters, equipped with bath, is in the rear of the premises. There is a side drive, with porte cochere.

The house, on a superb scale, stands on 150 by 200 feet of ground. It was built for Louis Chauvenet, who sold it to Philip Fouke, fur magnate, from whom Rosengarten acquired it.

Mrs. Clark will occupy the house in the early future.

No. 36 Westmoreland place, the former residence of Joseph L. Werner, recently was purchased by James Bush, represented by the Terry company. It is on an elaborate scale, with ballroom on the third floor. Hellmuth & Hellmuth were the architects.

No. 5 Westmoreland Purchased.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter F. Scott have purchased the 10-room residence at No. 5 Westmoreland place, through Mary Potter Love, Inc. Designed by Eames & Young, two noted architects, now deceased, the house is one of the most attractive in this ultra exclusive residential place.

The first floor comprises living room, library, reception hall, with open fireplace, kitchen, etc. The second floor has three bedrooms and two baths.

The interior is finished throughout in hardwood. It has the charm of a small house and is well adapted to modern living requirements.

There is a two-story brick garage, with servants' quarters, in the rear of the premises, accessible by a side drive. The residence occupies a lot 100 feet by a depth of 250 feet.

The reported purchase price was conspicuously lower than the original cost of the building and lot.

Originally, ground values in Westmoreland place ranged from $200 to $250 a foot, or from $20,000 to $25,000 a lot, according to the location. The lots in this addition have a uniform frontage of 100 feet.

The contracts have been practically closed for a house in Portland place, with negotiations pending for another.

The residence at 4549 Pershing avenue has been purchased by an undisclosed client of the O'Reilly Mortgage Co. The seller in the transaction was represented by Cornet & Zeibig. The house has 12 rooms and three baths. There is a brick garage for several cars. The lot is 50 by 156 feet. The purchase price was not disclosed.

University City Homes Sold.

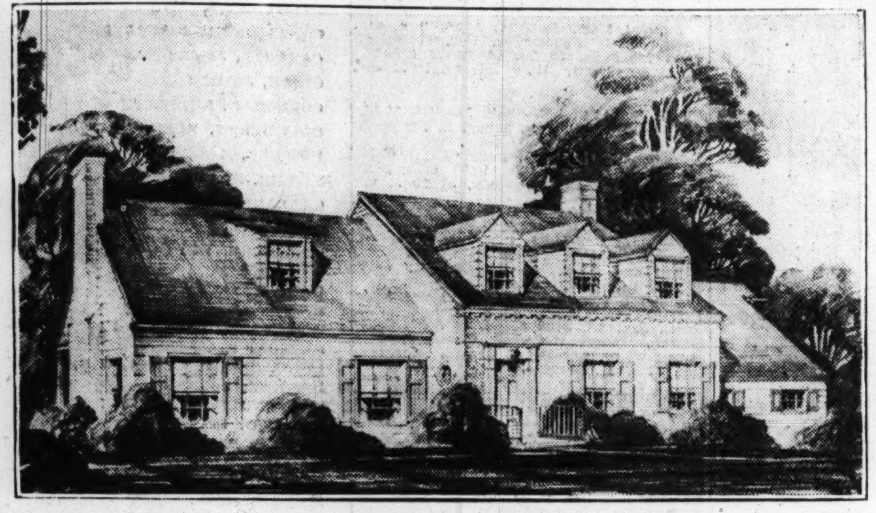
A residence recently completed at 539 Jackson avenue, University City, has been purchased by Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Mueller. It was designed by George F. Hayden, architect. Dining room, breakfast room and bedroom with bath, are on the first floor. Two bedrooms with bath are on the second floor. There is a two-car garage, with recreation room.

Albert W. Albright has purchased a new house at 7619 Cornell avenue, University City. It has seven rooms, including sun parlor, and is equipped with every modern convenience and innovation, including air conditioned heat. The premises include a garage for two cars. The house was built by Michael J. Lawler. The sale was effected by the Morris Aach Realty Co.

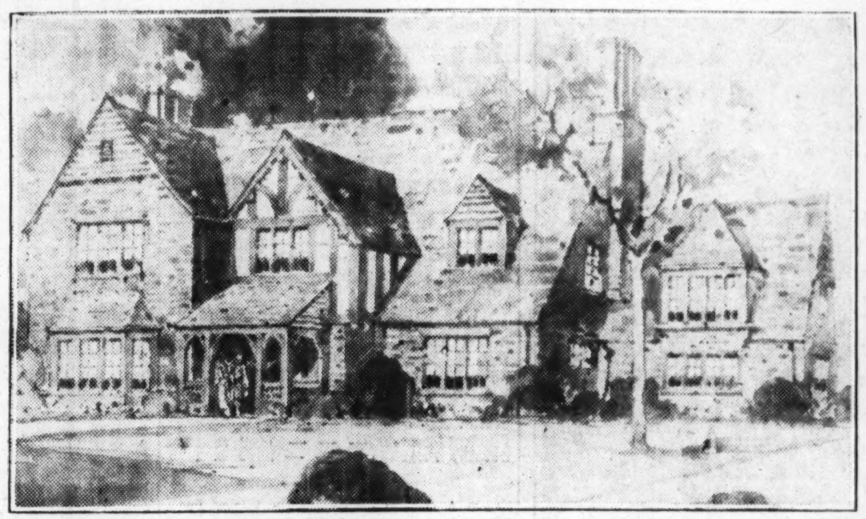
Negotiations are also said to be in an advanced stage involving several handsome residences in Lake Forest, at the southwest corner of Clayton and Hanley roads, represented by the Carlisle-Birge Real Estate Co.

Arthur S. Goldman has closed contracts for a fine house but details are withheld pending execution of deed.

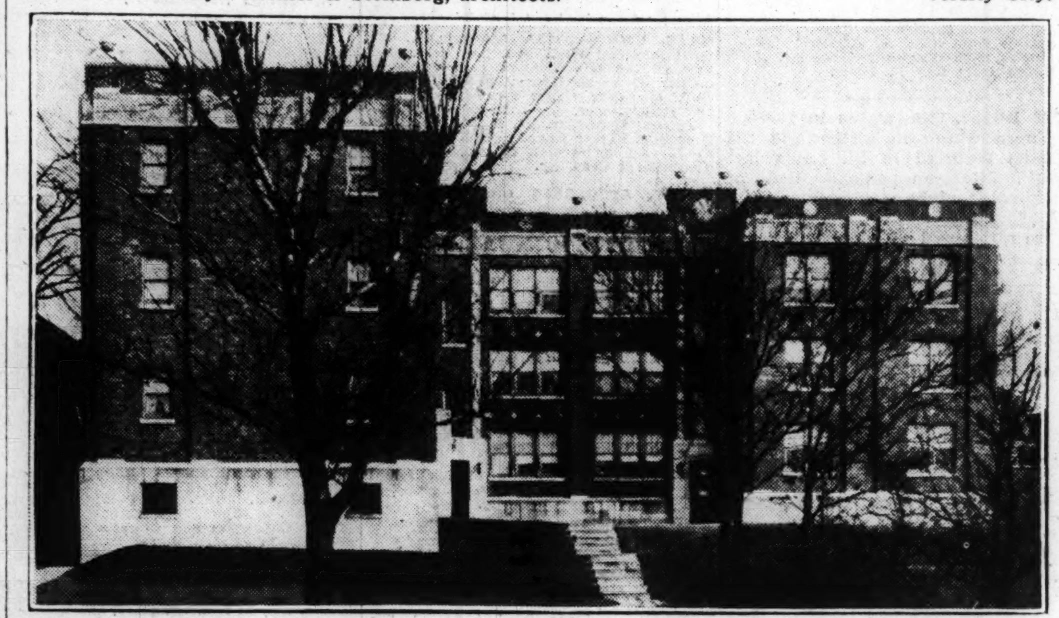
Houses Recently Acquired and Designs for Others; New Bank Building.



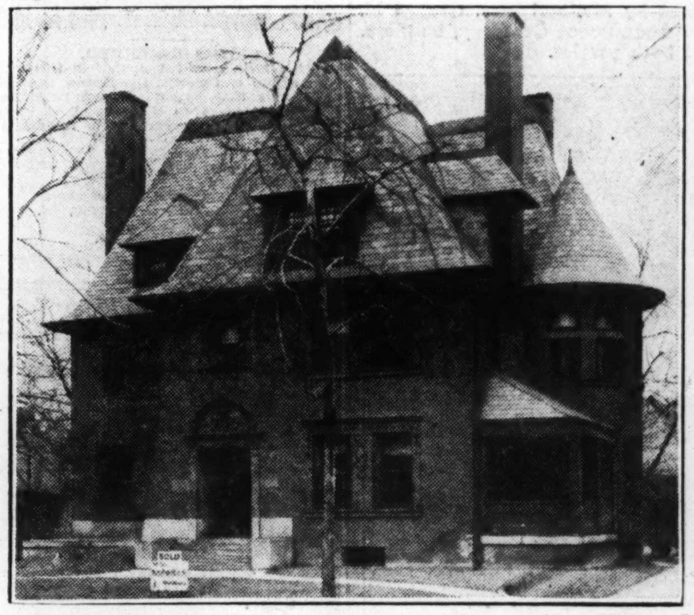
Drawing of residence to be built for Leland Leigh at Brown and Airport roads in St. Louis County. Reither & Steinberg, architects.



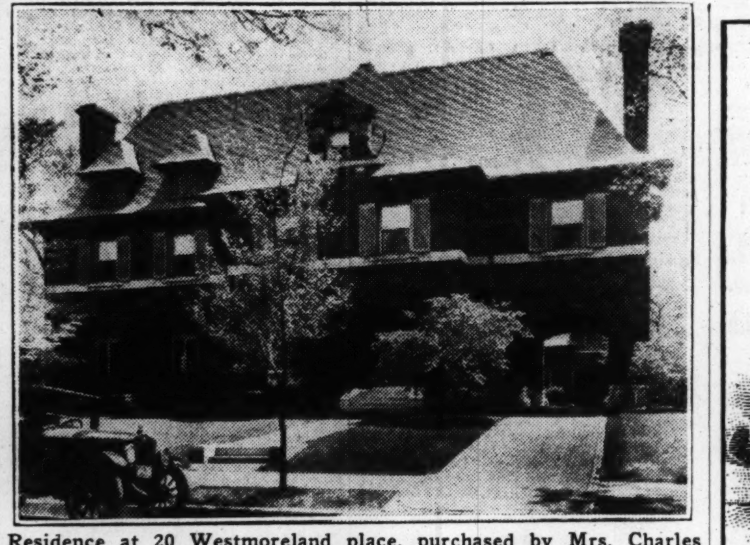
Design of residence of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Mueller at 539 Jackson avenue, University City. George F. Hayden, architect.



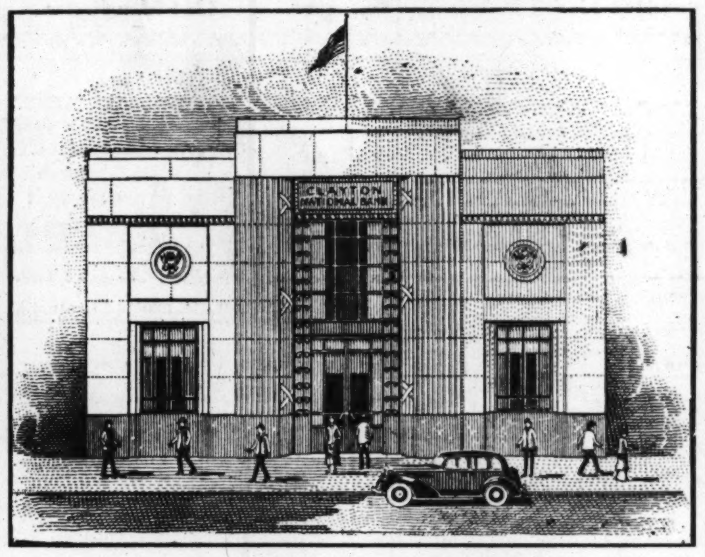
Apartment at 1038 McCausland avenue, bought by Mrs. Maude E. Burst, represented by the Holly Hills Realty Company.



No. 5 Westmoreland Place, purchased by Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Scott from the Meysenberg estate. The sale was effected by Mary Potter Love, Inc.



Residence at 20 Westmoreland place, purchased by Mrs. Charles McClure Clark from J. Clifford Rosengarten of Philadelphia. Albert Terry, Son and Company handled the transaction.



New quarters of Clayton National Bank at 7817 Forsythe boulevard formally opened yesterday. Moritz-Young-Dusard Inc., architects.

PROPERTIES ACQUIRED IN RECENT TRANSACTIONS

Brick cottage at 4662 Alaska, for a client to M. Hammel R. E. Co.; new brick bungalow, 4009 Miami, for William P and Dora B. Volz to Frank A. Hibbeler; 60 feet on Delor near Hampton for Sylvan H. Good to William A. Steinmetz; new brick bungalow, 5718 Delor, for William P. Volz, builder, to J. H. Weber; new five-room brick bungalow, 5722 Delor, for William P. Volz, builder, to George Wolfsberger; new brick bungalow, 4011 Miami, for a client to Frank Buggle; new modern residence, 5717 Delor, for builder to a client; frame bungalow, 4718 Allemania, for Arline Fischer to Abe Engel; new brick bungalow under construction, 5726 Delor, for William P. Volz, builder, to Lilburn Knight; bungalow, 2146 Sixty-seventh street, for a client to A. M. Vogel; brick cottage, 4263 Bingham for Augusta Koehler to Amelia Koethe.

DISCO COMPANY LEASED BUILDING ON LOCUST

The Disco Distributing Co. has leased the one and two-story building at the northeast corner of Ewing and Washington avenues.

The company is wholesale distributers for Motorola auto radios and Bosch home receivers. It is now located at 2722 Locust boulevard. The building has a frontage of 80 feet on Washington avenue by a depth of 125 feet on Ewing avenue. Dwight F. Davis Jr. is the owner of this property.

TO ENLARGE STORE ON WASHINGTON

Bond Stores, Inc., Leases the Northeast Corner of Eighth and St. Charles.

Bond Stores, Inc., has taken a long lease on the first floor of the building at the northeast corner of Eighth and St. Charles streets, thereby providing for the expansion of its store at the southeast corner of Eighth street and Washington avenue.

The additional space acquired has frontage of 40 feet on Eighth and 50 feet on St. Charles, comprising approximately 2000 square feet of floor space. Plans contemplate extending the store from Washington avenue to St. Charles street, thus giving it the full depth of the block of 150 feet on Eighth, with a frontage of 54 feet on both Washington and St. Charles. New store fronts will be installed on Washington avenue and St. Charles street.

The enlarged store will be devoted in its entirety to men's clothings and furnishings.

Both corners are owned by the Catlin Co., a holding company of the Catlin estate. Arthur S. Martin & Son negotiated the lease.

MOTOR COMPANY LEASES QUARTERS ON CLARK AVENUE

The Arthur Goldman Realty Co. has negotiated a lease of the automobile show room at 3029 Locust, to the Olive Motor Co. for the Sambel Investment Co. The Goldman company also leased the two-story and basement structure at 520 Clark avenue to the M. Singerman Candy Co.

MORTGAGE DISCOUNT IDEAS STIR DEBATE

Some Officials Want Government to Put $100,000,000 in Mortgage Associations.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Whether additional discount facilities should be provided for mortgage institutions remains to be settled among housing authorities and in Congress. Behind the scenes a lively debate has been going on.

Organized real estate interests are supporting a bill in Congress for a national mortgage discount bank, to hold a Federal charter but financed privately.

The proposal has not stirred enthusiasm among the Government agencies. Instead housing officials are discussing as substitutes national mortgage associations to provide liquidity for FHA insured mortgages.

Some officials want the Government to put $100,000,000 into mortgage associations, the money to come from the RFC. Congressional approval would have to be obtained.

That proposal has encountered opposition from those who distrust further Government ventures in the housing field. They argue, for one thing, that cast discount facilities, to supplement those already available to Federal reserve member banks and members of the Federal Home Loan Bank System, might help set in motion an unhealthy boom.

The proposed Federal-chartered mortgage discount bank is criticised by opponents as a potential "dumping ground" for loans now frozen, particularly against commercial properties.

27 PARCELS OF PROPERTY TO BE SOLD FOR GRAVOIS TAXES

Owners Have Not Paid Benefit Assessments Levied by Condemnation Commission.

Sale of 27 parcels of realty in the Gravois avenue widening benefit district has been advertised to be held at the Civil Courts Building at various times in the next two weeks. The action involves property of owners who did not pay the benefit assessments levied by a condemnation commission whose report was confirmed in Circuit Court in October, 1930.

Executions on various judgments were issued and sent to Sheriff Thomas R. Madden, who was ordered to enforce the decree. The judgments originally were in favor of the city but were assigned to the Greater St. Louis Corporation, which furnished the money to complete the improvement.

In 54 other cases of past due assessments in the same district settlements have been made for a total of $20,420 and the executions in these cases were canceled. Ten other parcels previously offered for sale were purchased by the city.

To Address Association.

Felix P. Lawrence, president of the First Federal Savings & Loan Association, will address the regular monthly meeting of the North End Twenty-seventh Ward Improvement Association at Garesche and Mimika at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening. His subject will be "Transportation in Northwest St. Louis."

V. KUSNITZ ACQUIRES BROADWAY CORNER

Products Company Buys Structure at N. W. Corner of Elm —Assessed Value, $12,000.

The two-story business building at the northwest corner of Broadway and Elm street has been purchased by Valentine Kusnitz, president of the Val's Products Co., from an undisclosed client of the St. Louis Union Trust Co. The McDonald Realty Co. handled the transaction.

The products company now occupies part of the building, which has a frontage of 27 feet, 10 inches on Broadway, by a depth of 127 feet on Elm.

The purchase price was not mentioned. The property has an assessed value of $12,000.

$75,000 BID ON LINMAR BLDG. ACCEPTED AT FORECLOSURE

The Linmar Building, southeast corner of Washington boulevard and Vandeventer avenue, was sold yesterday at foreclosure at the Civil Courts Building. Russell R. Casteel, acting for an undisclosed client, was the only bidder, his offer of $75,000 being accepted by Charles W. Casey, special commissioner, who conducted the sale. Confirmation by the Circuit Court is necessary to complete the transaction.

The building, originally valued at $125,000, was jointly owned by Louis La Presto and the estate of Charles Palmisano, a fruit merchant, who was shot and killed in November, 1927. Foreclosure was asked by the Mississippi Valley Trust Co., trustee under a deed of trust on which $63,793 is outstanding.

CONTRACTS LET FOR MEDICAL BUILDING

Excavation for Structure at Olive and Taylor to Start Tomorrow.

Contracts have been let for the new Medical-Dental Office Building to be erected by the Taylor-Olive Investment Co. at the southeast corner of Taylor and Olive streets, and excavation work is to begin tomorrow. Plans for the structure were prepared by Preston J. Bradshaw, architect, with W. J. Knight & Co. as engineers.

The building is designed for physicians, surgeons and dentists.

It will stand on the east side of Taylor avenue, 90 feet south of Olive. There will be two entrances, one facing Taylor avenue and one facing north toward Olive street, with an adjacent commodious parking lot in the foreground to the north, affording direct entrance to the building from the parking lot for the exclusive use of physician tenants and their patients.

The structure will be fireproof with terrazzo floors throughout, non-slip stairs with wrought iron rails, latest plug-in electric outlets, adequate toilet facilities, high-speed Otis elevator. A feature of the building will be an elaborate and efficient air conditioning system. Facilities for compressed air, X-ray and gas outlets will be provided. The ground floor will have a chemist's shop. The basement will have comfortable rest rooms for ladies.

Promotion and financing of the building was handled by the Henry R. Weisels Co., under whose supervision it will be erected and managed.

Leases have been closed and reservations made for a considerable part of the rentable area by prominent physicians, surgeons and dentists. The first floor shop has been leased to an ethical prescription pharmacist.

The site having a frontage of 120 feet on Olive by a depth of 155 on Taylor was purchased several months ago by the Taylor-Olive Investment Co. from Edgar P. Withrow, through the Henry R. Weisels Co., representing the purchaser. Cornet & Zeibig represented the seller.

MRS. A. P. LANGE BUILDS HOME AT BELLEFONTAINE

An attractive eight-room residence is being built for Mrs. Alice Butler Lange on a five-acre tract bounded by the south side of the Old Fort Bellefontaine Road, and on the west by the Old Jamestown and Accommodations roads, at Fort Bellefontaine.

The house is built on a hillside, and is of half timber and stucco construction. It is reached by a 400-foot winding road.

The house is so uniquely planned that six rooms overlook a lake.

The interior is of the early American style with vertical knotty pine boards and all ceilings are heavily beamed.

The property is part of an original 118-acre tract of interest geologically, the other parts are owned by Mrs. Marian Clifford Blossom, Dr Vilray Blair, Dr. Ellis Fischel and Mr. Frances Mesker.

Gerwetz With Kuhs Company.

Paul Gerwetz is now associated with the sales department of the Edward L. Kuhs Realty Co.

FURNITURE CONCERN COMPLETES BUILDING

Rossen's New Branch on South Grand Boulevard Comprises 35,000 Square Feet.

Construction has been completed on the new fireproof concrete building at the corner of South Grand boulevard and Connecticut street, designed as branch store for Rossen's Star Furniture House, of which H. Rossen is president.

The building is pointed to as one of the largest private building projects to materialize in St. Louis in 1935.

Having a frontage of 75 feet on Grand, the building comprises approximately 35,000 square feet of floor space. It is faced in buff brick, trimmed with silver terra cotta of strikingly modern design. Six big display windows with concealed lighting give realistic effect to the displays. The windows are trimmed in aluminum and chrome. Modern lighting fixtures of tested design were used throughout. Special display rooms for linoleums, electric refrigerators and appliances were provided. The interior is characterized by simplicity of design bespeaking strength and durability through its wide expanse of show-room space and upright concrete pillars. It will be used exclusively for retail merchandising by Rossen's Star Furniture House. The firm's main store, at 1540 South Broadway, established 37 years, will continue in operation as heretofore.

The building, designed by Benjamin Shapiro, architect, consists of three stories without a basement. The site was purchased from the Scruggs Memorial Church in 1928. The church edifice was razed in 1929 to make way for the building. The Hinrichs Construction Co. was the builder. The estimated cost was $100,000.

LEASING FIRM ADMITTED MEMBERSHIP IN EXCHANGE

The Dalton Leasing Co., of which J. E. Dalton is president and Albert Johns secretary and treasurer, with office at 1100 La Salle Building, has been admitted to active membership in the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange.

WINTER BUILDING ACTIVITY SHOWS UPWARD TREND

Figures of Reserve Banks in Leading Cities Show Rise of $8,000,000 in Realty Loans.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25. — Unusual mid-winter signs of rising real estate activity may influence federal plans for promoting home construction.

While housing officials have been discussing means of lending impetus to the prospective seasonal upturn in building next spring and summer, financial barometers have reflected strong under-currents in private construction.

Business in FHA insured mortgage and modernization loans have continued at a relatively high level in face of expectations for a marked letdown during the winter.

Weekly condition figures of member banks of the Federal Reserve system in leading cities recorded a rise of $8,000,000 in real estate loans, accentuating an upward trend in that division of bank credit, and outstanding loans of federal home loan banks have continued to increase.

The housing authorities accepted these as indicators of a rising tide which would sweep building figures upward next spring and are for letting the "natural forces" take their course without further government attempts to stimulate the movement, except possibly through mild amendments of the FHA act.

The administration wing which favors large expenditures for slum clearance has gone ahead with plans pivoting around a bill Senator Wagner of New York proposes to put before Congress.

Some supporters of the anti-spending wing, however, believe the winds, political and economic, are blowing in their direction.

They argue the trends of business and building activity, a freer flow of mortgage money from private sources and facilities already available for home aid would stiffen opposition against new federal ventures. Moreover, they hold the large sums the treasury must raise in the next few months may dictate administration caution in undertaking an expensive low-cost housing program.

Disinterested observers believe a compromise would be worked out soon under the eye of the White House with the aim of encouraging private construction, yet leaving the door open for subsidies of low-cost housing for segments of the population now unable to afford anything but the worst slum facilities.

Meanwhile, the latest FHA weekly figures lifted modernization loans to 762,320 for a total of more than $271,000,000. Nearly 70,000 mortgages totaling $268,530,000 have been selected for appraisal.

JOHN C. HALL MEMBER OF LEAGUE EXECUTIVE COUNCIL

John C. Hall, president of the St. Louis Building & Loan Association, was elected as the Missouri member of the Executive Council of the United States Building & Loan League at its convention held in Cincinnati.

Hall succeeds Axel Hawkinson of Kansas City, national executive committeeman from this State for the last two years. A change made in the league's constitution gives the State representative the rank of a member of the Executive Council.

Hall has done conspicuous national service in the thrift and home financing field during the past year as chairman of the Committee on Titles II and III of the National Housing Act. Many significant changes have been made in the rules and regulations for mutual mortgage insurance in the interest of making the entire procedure more practical because of the committee headed by Mr. Hall.

BONUS SEEMS SURE TO ADD TO TAXES, BUSINESS MEN SAY

U. S. Chamber of Commerce Calls Promise of Balanced Budget "Obviously Hopeless."

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25. — The United States Chamber of Commerce today said "the Government's financial plight becomes one of increasing concern."

In its periodical summary of national business affairs, the organization said:

"Huge new prospective expenditures, not contemplated in the President's budget, loom disquietingly, particularly as they begin to appear when the hope had been that the expenditure trend would be downward. As a result therefore, earlier official assurances of a balanced budget and more recent administration promises of a decline in spending are obviously hopeless of fulfillment, despite the fact that business has improved, bringing increased revenues, and that requirements for unemployment relief are gradually lessening.

"The precipitate action of Congress in rushing through the veterans' bonus bill greatly intensifies the serious aspects of the situation. . . . With any such schedule of expenditures as outlined, new or increased taxes seem eventually inescapable despite practical and political considerations which make for general resistance to this procedure."

The summary concluded that "the menace of inflation and the threatened impairment of the Government credit can only be avoided by the elimination of deficits."

Leases Corner on Big Bend.

The Big Bend Poultry Market, operated by Louis Moss, has taken a lease on the two-story building situated on the northwest corner of Big Bend boulevard and Manchester road, and on an adjoining parking lot, fronting 191 feet on the former thoroughfare. A storeroom at 5642 Delmar boulevard was leased to Charles Henderson for a billiard room and recreation quarters. Sam Sansone Brothers, at 6046 Delmar boulevard, with expansion plans, have leased the building at 6028-6030 Delmar boulevard, with the 100-foot adjoining lot which they plan to use as an open air market. Arthur H. Fuldner, manager of the commercial leasing department of Oreon E. & R. G. Scott, represented all parties in the negotiations.

IN MEMORIAM

BRENDLE, CLEMENCE—In loving memory of our dear mother, who passed away Jan. 25, 1933.
Sadly missed by
HER CHILDREN.

BURWITZ, FRED—In loving memory of my dear husband and uncle, who departed Jan. 25, 1935:
God called him home—it was His will
But in our hearts he lingers still.
By all he always did his best;
May God give him eternal rest.
Sadly missed by his WIFE and nephew, VIRGIL SMITH.

FISCHER, CORA M.—In loving memory of our dear mother, who departed Jan. 31, 1932:
God's golden sun is shining
Upon our mother's grave;
The one we love so dearly and
Wanted so much to save.
Sadly missed by
CHILDREN.

HAAS, HENRY SR.—In loving memory of our dear husband and father and grandfather, who passed away Jan. 26, 1935.
One year has passed since that sad day
The one we loved was called away;
God took him home, it was His will,
But in our hearts he liveth still.
Sadly missed by
WIFE, CHILDREN AND GRANDCHILDREN.

HEMENWAY, MRS. A. C.—In loving memory of our darling mother who died Jan. 23, 1932.
Sadly missed by
BEULAH AND LOIS.

JARRETT, RICHARD H.—In loving memory of my dear husband, who passed away Jan. 29, 1935.
Sadly missed by
WIFE.

KALTENRIEDER, DONALD A.—In memory of our darling son who departed this life Jan. 23, 1935.
God's golden sun is shining upon our darling's grave.
The one we love so dearly and tried hard to save.
Sadly missed by MOTHER, DAD and all who loved him.

LAMPERT, THERESA—In loving memory of my dear wife, who passed away Jan. 28, 1933. Sadly missed by HUSBAND.

LAUX, HENRY—In loving memory of our dear father who died a year ago today Jan. 26, 1935.
Surrounded by friends, we are lonesome
In the midst of our joys we are blue
With a smile on our face we have heartaches,
Longing, dear father, for you.
Sadly missed by his DAUGHTERS.

LIESER, WILLIAM R.—In loving memory of my dear husband, father, son and brother, who departed from life Jan. 1935:
There is someone who thinks of you always,
And tries to be brave and content;
Surrounded by friends I am lonesome
In the midst of my joy I am blue
With a smile on my face I have
A heartache longing, dear William for you.
Sadly missed by
WIFE, SON, MOTHER, FATHER,
SISTER AND BROTHER.

MOLLER, MARY—In loving memory of my dear mother, who passed away Jan. 25, 1913.
Sadly missed by
Daughter, MRS. LORETTA BRANDLEY.

NIEMEYER—In loving memory of my dear father, John F. Niemeyer, who departed this life Jan. 22, 1934, and our dear mother, Emma Niemeyer, who passed away Jan. 31, 1934.
The golden sun is shining upon our parents' grave;
The ones we loved so dearly and so hard to save,
And when we lost our parents, we lost our dearest pals.
We loved you and we miss you and ever shall.
Sadly missed by
Children, Grandchildren and All Who Loved Them.

QUELMALZ, ARTHUR F. JR.—In loving memory of our dear husband and father who passed away Jan. 23, 1935.
Gone but not forgotten.
Sadly missed by WIFE AND FAMILY.

REITHEL, HENRY C.—To one whose memory shall live forever in my heart, Henry C. Reithel, who met death so tragically after being compelled to join company the army of occupation, Ehrang, Germany, Jan. 29, 1919.
My dear, the world now knows why
And for whom you had to die
So far away from home.
CLARA.

SCHOMBERG, RICHARD—In loving memory of my beloved husband, our dear father who died five years ago, Jan. 31.
Missed by WIFE AND CHILDREN.

WINKELMEYER, MARY—In loving memory of our dear mother, who departed this life three years ago, Jan. 28, 1933.
Your memory is as dear today
As in the hour you passed away.
Sadly missed by
CHILDREN AND GRANDCHILDREN.

IN MEMORIAM

BRENDLE, CLEMENCE—In loving memory of our dear mother, who passed away Jan. 25, 1933.
Sadly missed by
HER CHILDREN.

BURWITZ, FRED—In loving memory of my dear husband and uncle, who departed Jan. 25, 1935:
God called him home—it was His will,
But in our hearts he lingers still.
By all he always did his best;
May God give him eternal rest.
Sadly missed by his WIFE and nephew, VIRGIL SMITH.

FISCHER, CORA M.—In loving memory of our dear mother, who departed Jan. 31, 1932:
God's golden sun is shining
Upon our mother's grave;
The one we love so dearly and
Wanted so much to save.
Sadly missed by
CHILDREN.

HAAS, HENRY SR.—In loving memory of our dear husband and father and grandfather, who passed away Jan. 26, 1935:
One year has passed since that sad day,
The one we loved was called away;
God took him home, it was His will,
But in our hearts he liveth still.
Sadly missed by
WIFE, CHILDREN AND GRANDCHILDREN.

HEMENWAY, MRS. A. C.—In loving memory of our darling mother who died Jan. 23, 1932
Sadly missed by
BEULAH AND LOIS.

JARRETT, RICHARD H.—In loving memory of my dear husband, who passed away Jan. 29, 1935.
Sadly missed by WIFE.

KALTENRIEDER, DONALD A.—In memory of our darling son who departed this life Jan. 23, 1935.
God's golden sun is shining upon our darling's grave.
The one we love so dearly and tried so hard to save.
Sadly missed by MOTHER, DAD and all who loved him.

LAMPERT, THERESA—In loving memory of my dear wife, who passed away Jan. 28, 1933. Sadly missed by HUSBAND.

LAUX, HENRY—In loving memory of our dear father who died a year ago today, Jan. 26, 1935.
Surrounded by friends, we are lonesome;
In the midst of our joys we are blue;
With a smile on our face we have heartaches.
Longing, dear father, for you.
Sadly missed by his DAUGHTERS.

LIESER, WILLIAM R.—In loving memory of my dear husband, father, son and brother, who departed from life Jan. 29, 1935:
There is someone who thinks of you always,
And tries to be brave and content;
Surrounded by friends I am lonesome
In the midst of my joy I am blue;
With a smile on my face I have
A heartache longing, dear William for you.
Sadly missed by
WIFE, SON, MOTHER, FATHER, SISTER AND BROTHER.

MOLLER, MARY—In loving memory of my dear mother, who passed away Jan. 25, 1913.
Sadly missed by
Daughter, MRS. LORETTA BRANDLEY.

NIEMEYER—In loving memory of my dear father, John F. Niemeyer, who departed this life Jan. 22, 1934, and our dear brother, Emma Niemeyer, who passed away Jan. 31, 1934.
The golden sun is shining upon our parents' grave;
The ones we loved so dearly and tried so hard to save,
And when we lost our parents, we lost our dearest pals.
We loved you and we miss you and we ever shall.
Sadly missed by
Children, Grandchildren and All Who Loved Them.

QUELMALZ, ARTHUR F. JR.—In loving memory of our dear husband and son who passed away Jan. 23, 1935.
Gone but not forgotten.
Sadly missed by WIFE AND FAMILY.

REITHEL, HENRY C.—To one whose memory shall live forever in my heart Henry C. Reithel, who met death so tragically after being compelled to accompany the army of occupation, Ehrang, Germany, Jan. 29, 1919.
My dear, the world now knows why
And for whom you had to die
So far away from home.
CLARA.

SCHOMBERG, RICHARD—In loving memory of my beloved husband, our dear father who died five years ago, Jan. 31.
Missed by WIFE AND CHILDREN.

WINKELMEYER, MARY—In loving memory of our dear mother, who departed this life three years ago, Jan. 28, 1933.
Your memory is as dear today
As in the hour you passed away.
Sadly missed by
CHILDREN AND GRANDCHILDREN.

SALESMEN WANTED

OPPORTUNITY

We have an opportunity for a few men of the right kind. Men in this business from all walks of life are big earners right here in St. Louis and vicinity. When they learn this profitable business thoroughly, their incomes range around $2000, $4000, $7500, and more, per year, yet they had no previous experience in this kind of work.

Our company is rapidly approaching, in this country, the complete dominance of the market it has already secured in other countries, with five European and American factories busy supplying our product. 1935 was our sixth consecutive record sales year.

Beginners may have to get along temporarily on $125 to $200 per month. However, you are placed on the same basis of compensation as the others and you make no investment or deposit of any kind. If you are selected for this opportunity, you will be given complete training at our factory branch at no expense to you. We will teach you this business, help you to real and permanent success, and will not ask you to make any investment.

This opportunity is open to you NOW, because of the ever-increasing demand for our product. If you are between the ages of 25 and 50, are willing to work and study conscientiously to secure the success and large earnings possible in this business, this opportunity concerns you.

We are sincere in offering it to you, and you will find that 20 minutes spent in an interview will be the most valuable 20 minutes you ever invested. For a personal interview, see Factory Representative, at 512 Paul Brown Bldg., 9th and Olive Sts., Monday morning, 9:15 to 1:15 only.

Resort Property For Sale

DAY FOREST ESTATES

1600 acres of rolling forested land in Leelanau County, Michigan, half surrounded by

Beautiful Glen Lake

and with large frontage on Lake Michigan, may be acquired at a reasonable price.

This splendid property, lying west of Traverse City, is a real buy for an individual, club or group of investors for redistribution into smaller estates.

Has been partially developed, with seven miles of graded and graveled roads, 18-hole golf course in use for several years, water system throughout entire course, and other improvements.

Landscaping plans for dividing into 120 estates of from five to thirty-five acres each are available. Plans made for airplane landing field, polo field, tennis courts, clubhouse, bathing pavilion, etc. Also for a winter sports area, including toboggan slide and ski jump, for these 1600 acres are as desirable for winter residence as for summer occupancy.

One of Few Remaining Large Sites

Day Forest Estates is one of the few remaining large-acreage sites in perfect natural setting. More than half a century ago David Day, coming west from New York, selected this site among all others as the most ideal for development. He planted trees of many northern varieties, now well grown and part of a hillside forest designated as one of the finest in the United States. David Day's good judgment has been acclaimed by every visitor to Northern Michigan.

An American Switzerland

Travelers have declared that for sheer beauty and location Glen Lake is comparable to Lake Geneva in Switzerland. Its waters are crystal clear, deep blue in the depths, reflecting sunlight in all colors of the rainbow. On moonlight nights it presents a fairyland picture that attracts thousands of visitors.

Glen Lake is in the picturesque Leelanau Peninsula, in the center of Michigan's famed summer resort region. From the heights of Day Forest Estates one commands a view of Sleeping Bear Bay and South Manitou Island in Lake Michigan, as well as of miles of charming countryside.

Glen Lake is on Michigan's scenic route M-22, and only a few miles off U. S. Highway 31, with excellent roads connecting. By motoring over hard-surface roadways one can reach it in a few hours from all central western states.

Webster Groves

IT'S OUR BUSINESS
To tell you what we consider good buys. We have the key to an exceptionally well-built brick residence, having tile bath with shower and hot-water heat; located between Bristol and high schools. We think the house alone cost over $10,000 to build and it is in good condition. The bare ground is probably worth $10,000, because there are two 100-foot lots. (The house is on one lot, so the other lot could be sold off if desired.) Yet we can probably sell this choice property for $10,500. Key at

THESE Ford Dealers seek to gain your confidence. FIRST, they want you to come to their place of business; SECOND, they insist that complete satisfaction be given the used car buyer after the purchase.

To do this, these Ford dealers have adopted the policy of reconditioning their used cars with Ford Motor Company factory reconditioned parts, or with the factory produced parts of the car's original maker.

To keep this confidence, these Ford dealers now offer a MONEY-BACK GUARANTEE.

Typical of their efforts to give the public the highest value obtainable in any used car at any price, is a special quality repaint process, developed and applied at their insistence through factory type production methods.

Reconditioning of Ford parts, repainting, etc., all require that these Ford dealers become active participants in a mammoth organization specializing in the safe and efficient maintenance of motor vehicles on highways.

To prove that their policy of reconditioning deserves your confidence, they offer you a MONEY-BACK GUARANTEE.

MONEY-BACK GUARANTEE

In announcing this Money-Back Guarantee on used cars priced over $100, these Ford Dealers have just one idea in mind. That is to convince you beyond a doubt that theirs is the place to buy your used car with complete confidence.

They are established merchants with good names to protect. They want your good will after you buy. Their Money-Back Guarantee is as good as gold.

★ THESE CARS ARE EASY TO BUY — You can pay as little as $25 a month on these Ford Dealers' 1934 and 1935 Ford V-8s under their new Universal Credit liberalized finance payment plan. Other models may be purchased on the easy payment plan that has always been obtainable at all Ford Dealers.

DECEMBER SALES TAX ESTIMATED AT MILLION

This Figure, If Reached, Will Set Monthly Record for Collections.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 25.—Collections of the State sales tax of 1 per cent for December were estimated today at $1,000,000 by the State Auditor's department, based on December tax payments and returns already compiled by the department. If this figure is reached it will be the high monthly total for the tax since the sales tax went into effect in Missouri on Jan. 15, 1934.

The department already has received $800,000 in sales tax payments for December. The tax returns and payments for the month were due on or before Jan. 15, but compilations have not been completed, and the department books for the month will not be closed until about Feb. 10.

The final compilation of data on the tax for November, completed today, shows a total of $915,300 collected. This is the largest monthly total so far. The previous high total was $866,440 for last October.

Record Number of Returns.

The November tax of $915,300 was paid on 56,698 returns. This is the largest number of returns filed in any one month. For the first 11 months of 1935 the number of tax returns filed monthly varied from 37,561 for May, to the 56,698 for November.

When the original sales tax law, imposing a levy of one-half per cent, was passed by the 1933-1934 Legislature, and again when the 1935 Legislature increased the rate to 1 per cent, effective last Aug. 27, it was estimated that between 65,000 and 70,000 persons, firms and corporations would be subject to filing of returns.

Collection of the tax for the first 11 months of 1935 totaled $5,567,094, as compared to $4,257,190 collected during the 11½ months the sales tax law was in effect in 1934. The figure for the first 11 months of 1935 includes slightly more than three months at the increased rate of 1 per cent.

November Tax by Groups.

The retail food group led the various classifications for November, both in number of returns and tax paid. This group filed 17,887 returns on which a tax of $223,473 was paid.

The number of returns filed and tax paid by other classifications, for November, were as follows: Apparel, 2326 returns, $69,620; general merchandise, 5140 returns, $137,912; automotive, 8893 returns, $107,305; furniture, 1721 returns, $26,477; lumber and building, 2562 returns, $36,327; agricultural, 1650 returns, $8820; natural resources, 317 returns, $3045; miscellaneous group, 11,985 returns, $162,235; admission fees and charges, 660 returns, $16,362; electric, water, sewer and gas service, 308 returns, $58,790; telephone and telegraph service, 275 returns, $21,156; news and advertising, 1056 returns, $18,659; laundry and cleaners, 863 returns, $9381; transportation, 993 returns, $15,070, and outdoor advertising, 62 returns, $659.

Attorney-General McKittrick is preparing to file suits against several Missouri cities and towns owning municipal utility plants, to compel them to pay the tax on sales of service. Municipally owned water plants in St. Louis and Kansas City are among the plants involved in the suits.

CHINESE OFFICER IN WAR GAME KILLS SELF TO 'SAVE FACE'

Captain Ends Life After Trying and Failing to Carry Out Impossible Order.

By the Associated Press.

NANKING, Jan. 25.—A Chinese army Captain killed himself recently to "save his face" in a sham battle.

The "enemy" general ordered the bridging by 4 o'clock in the afternoon of a river held by the "defenders." Attacking units of the "enemy" toiled for hours to capture this key position.

Two o'clock struck, then three, as the captain of engineers intrusted with the task of throwing a bridge across the river waited for the signal that the way was clear, or for new orders setting ahead the hour when the river must be crossed.

At 3:30 the engineers received the signal to advance. The captain of engineers urged his men to their impossible task, but still no word from headquarters that would allow the extra hour required for the bridge building. Fifteen minutes to go, 10 minutes, five, but no new orders.

As 4 o'clock struck a single shot was fired. The engineers toiling at rafts and pontoons in the river looked up to see their young captain fall to the ground, his service pistol slipping from his hands.

The captain had failed to carry out impossible orders, but his failure, in the words of the director-general of military training, Gen. Tang Seng-chi, was "the greatest moral victory of the maneuvers."

By G. K. CHESTERTO

ONLY once I have had the honor of speaking my sovereign, at a literary fund dinner, a writers., And I feel like a very struggling scribe anything so indescribable as England an larity of the English monarchy.

He had just spoken to the effect that his father, his grandfather and his great-grandfather had all spoken for the same fund; and, he added gravely: "It is also true they all made the same speech."

And that is symbolic in two ways. First, that this modern monarchy is continuous in action or (what is often more important) inaction. And second, that the monarchy nevertheless mirrors the mood of every generation. For I can hardly imagine Prince Albert making that joke about his father; George V might have done it in private; but somehow I think not in public. A grave and graceful flippancy was of the new world.

The new King has always been and even looked very much a young man of his period. But he is also of his nation; and it is a curious nation; which the more you love the less you understand.

A British Paradox.

In domestic affairs, the problems facing the public-spirited Prince stands somewhat thus:

In various countries and for various reasons politicians are unpopular. The difference is that in England politics is unpopular. By paradox, politicians are a shade more popular than they would be if politics was popular. They are regarded by a sporting nation as "toffs," pursuing one obscure sport, like drawing badgers; but national leaders are those in the national sports; and politics is not national and hardly normal.

The King is the leader of the social world; and with us, the social eclipses the political.

The late King was very largely influential because he was a very good shot. The second fact is that England, more than most people understand, is ruled by permanent officials. It is our way of balancing the difficulties of government by assembly; in America it is balanced by presidential initiative and the Supreme Court.

Royalty's Influence Indirect.

The King is the first permanent official. His Ministers are supposed to advise him; and he very often advises them, like other officials; being very permanent. Those two functions represent what royalty really does in England; and both mean that influence is deliberately indirect.

He can have policy in private which takes effect in public. For instance, the late King had a very strong policy, as the social leader, of resisting the modern looseness in manners; he was what used to be called "a regular guy." Only what makes the present problem is this. With King George it was conviction, but it was also tradition, and it was one tradition, the one ideal that had once been common.

The new King faces the world with widely different ideals, apart from the wild, bewildering realities. We do not know which of several branching paths of progress we shall follow, however unobtrusively. It is not his national office to start a public movement, like the American President; but it will make a monstrous difference where he wishes us to move. And this is equally true in domestic and foreign policy.

What Royalty and the King Mean To People of British Empire Explained by G. K. Chesterton

Influence of George V Rested Very Largely on Fact That He Was an Expert Wing Shot.

By G. K. CHESTERTON,
(World Copyright, 1936.)

LONDON, Jan. 25.

ONLY once I have had the honor of speaking with the man who is my sovereign, at a literary fund dinner, a charity for struggling writers. And I feel like a very struggling writer striving to describe anything so indescribable as England and the profound popularity of the English monarchy.

He had just spoken to the effect that his father, his grandfather and his great-grandfather had all spoken for the same fund; and, he added gravely: "It is also true they all made the same speech."

And that is symbolic in two ways. First, that this modern monarchy is continuous in action or (what is often more important) inaction. And second, that the monarchy nevertheless mirrors the mood of every generation. For I can hardly imagine Prince Albert making that joke about his father; George V might have done it in private; but somehow I think not in public. A grave and graceful flippancy was of the new world.

The new King has always been and even looked very much a young man of his period. But he is also of his nation; and it is a curious nation; which the more you love the less you understand.

A British Paradox.

In domestic affairs, the problems facing the public-spirited Prince stands somewhat thus:

In various countries and for various reasons politicians are unpopular. The difference is that in England politics is unpopular. By paradox, politicians are a shade more popular than they would be if politics was popular. They are regarded by a sporting nation as "toffs," pursuing one obscure sport, like drawing badgers; but national leaders are those in the national sports; and politics is not national and hardly normal.

The King is the leader of the social world; and with us, the social eclipses the political.

The late King was very largely influential because he was a very good shot. The second fact is that England, more than most people understand, is ruled by permanent officials. It is our way of balancing the difficulties of government by assembly; in America it is balanced by presidential initiative and the Supreme Court.

Royalty's Influence Indirect.

The King is the first permanent official. His Ministers are supposed to advise him; and he very often advises them, like other officials; being very permanent. Those two functions represent what royalty really does in England; and both mean that influence is deliberately indirect.

He can have policy in private which takes effect in public. For instance, the late King had a very strong policy, as the social leader, of resisting the modern looseness in manners; he was what used to be called "a regular guy." Only what makes the present problem is this. With King George it was conviction, but it was also tradition, and it was one tradition, the one ideal that had once been common.

The new King faces the world with widely different ideals, apart from the wild, bewildering realities. We do not know which of several branching paths of progress we shall follow, however unobtrusively. It is not his national office to start a public movement, like the American President; but it will make a monstrous difference where he wishes us to move. And this is equally true in domestic and foreign policy.

Party System Dead.

The old English party system is much more dead than the American. We used to chaff the French about their group system; but we ourselves have now got nothing but the group system. This is obvious, in England as elsewhere, touching ethical and economical problems.

It is not only no longer a choice between Toryism and Liberalism, or Toryism and Labor. It is no longer a choice between socialism and capitalism. The very word Socialist has come very near to meaning merely a sentimentalist.

The real difference is in the history and philosophy of the slump. Did the slump mean that modern finance, industrialism and the wage system are showing the cracks of catastrophe, and that a new social life must be built on the ruins; or was the slump only a slump, no more final than a snow storm?

I try to put the question fairly; though I happen to be firmly of the first opinion.

But a new social life is not necessarily Socialism; and hardly anybody in England wants it to be Communism. But a very vast number of people in England feel caught in the mechanical trap of trusts and banks and feel an unnatural dependence, but they would mostly break out in different directions — the Douglas scheme or distributism or what is called functionalism.

These are new words now; but in 20 years they may be the main political divisions.

International Policy.

It is the same in international policy. There is a group for British isolation; generally trying to identify itself with American isolation. I think myself that it misses on both sides what can be discovered on a map—that England is in Europe.

American isolation has a meaning manifest on a map. I think my countrymen have hardly realized that the natural desire not to be bothered with Europe includes not being bothered with England. But anyhow, it is a group—it corresponds to no party.

There is a group so sincerely hopeful of the League of Nations that it is willing to wage another war to establish a peace. There is a group that would fight Italy as an imperial rival; a group that would fight Germany; there are even some anti-militarists who have heard of Japan. There are some who swear never to fight anybody, but find it difficult to keep it up.

But the point is that all these things can be called ideals; there is no longer a party of idealists. And those who have to choose between ideals have the horrid task of thinking about ideas.

'King of the Whole People.'

It is therefore in a new sense that we say we have a new King. He is new to new things not to be simplified by any political placards. Here he has an advantage in that very differentiation of father and son that has become a historical joke about his house.

He knows the young. He has heard of all these things; he approaches them without any tangle of fictitious loyalties. But on him is put a heavier burden than the old burden of just doing his best —the burden of deciding what is best.

The only certain thing is that his office will be supported by the populace, especially if it quarrels with the oligarchy, for in the sunken subconsciousness of England are certain words written by a great defeated man:

"The Parliament is the Parliament of a class. The King is the King of the whole people."

State's Expenditures Less Than Those of St. Louis

What Put Landon's Name in the Political Pot

He Cut Expenditures and Salaries, and Adjusted Tax Rate —Federal Farm Benefit Money Helped Farmers Pay Levies.

State Spends About $30,000,000 a Year—Governor Took Hand Also in Finances of Counties, and Other Governmental Units.

By CURTIS A. BETTS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

TOPEKA, Kan., Jan. 25.

GOV. ALF M. LANDON of Kansas balanced his State budget, had a directing hand in balancing the budgets of more than 11,000 counties, towns and other governmental subdivisions in Kansas, and thereby has come under the scrutiny of Republican President-makers, who are raking the political fields of the Middle West for a promising candidate for whom there would be some talking point besides the mere fact that he is a Westerner.

Emissaries were sent to look over this man who was virtually unknown outside of Kansas. They came from Republican national headquarters, from Wall street and from the offices of William Randolph Hearst. The reports they submitted apparently were satisfactory, because within a few months Landon appeared near the head of those receiving serious consideration for the nomination in a field which practically had been limited to former President Hoover, Senator Borah, Frank Knox, Senator Vandenberg of Michigan, Senator Dickinson of Iowa and former Senator Wadsworth of New York.

As a consequence of the comment favorable to Landon at the recent meeting of the Republican National Committee in Washington and the trickling rumors that have reached many states that the East is friendly to him, his office has become a mecca for politicians who consider themselves local leaders at home and who are endeavoring to form connections which will put them actively into the Landon campaign.

The budget-balancing record of the prospective candidate is the one thing which has been used to promote him nationally. To find out what balancing the budget of this State of 1,900,000 means in terms of the national budget problem was the purpose of the correspondent's visit to Kansas.

Taxes Are Reduced and Expenditures Cut.

There is no doubt that in the administration of Landon as Governor taxes have been reduced, State and local expenditures have been decreased and the State and nearly every governmental subdivision in Kansas is on a pay-as-you-go basis. Whther this has been a good thing for Kansas, its municipal governments, its institutions, its schools and its highways, is debatable. Landon's critics say that it has been accomplished at great sacrifice to public service.

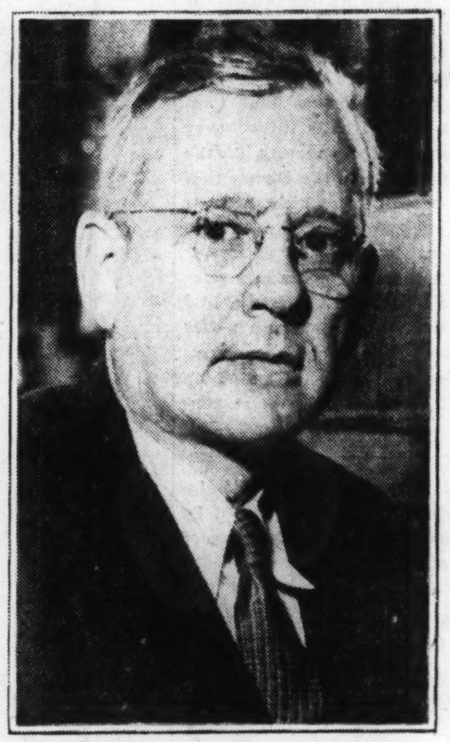
The size of the Kansas State budget is not staggering. For this year it is approximately $30,000,000, including more than $5,000,000 of the Federal funds which have been allotted to the State for highway construction. This is about three-fourths the expenditures of the city of St. Louis for municipal affairs, including the public schools, and less than half the Missouri State budget. It amounts to less than one-half of 1 per cent of the total of the national budget recently submitted to Congress by President Roosevelt and, of course, is nothing like as diversified.

When Landon became Governor in 1933, he found the State in an unsatisfactory financial condition. Expenses, to the Landon way of thinking, were high, and the State was operating under a reduced assessed valuation of property and a tax rate of 1.33 mills, which had been fixed on instructions of his predecessor, Gov. Woodring, a Democrat, now Assistant Secretary of War.

Tax Rates Changed Valuations Reduced.

However, Landon, though increasing the tax rate to 1.88 mills, directed his State Tax Commission to further reduce assessed valuations 16 2-3 per cent with the result that about $700,000 more revenue was obtained than in the preceding year. The following year he cut the tax rate to 1.30 mills, even below the Woodring figure, and property tax collections dropped $1,500,000.

In the first year of the Landon administration, operating under the old tax rate, he found that expenditures exceeded receipts by $445,790, and the State Treasurer followed the usual custom under such conditions by selling that amount of State warrants to the State School Fund Commission. By 1935, Landon had paid this debt and there was a cash balance of $1,137,303 in the treasury, $513,000 more than the cash on hand at the end of the fiscal year in the middle of his first year as Governor.



GOV. ALF M. LANDON.

Landon's balancing of the budget was accomplished mainly by two means. First he reduced salaries of all State employes, 25 per cent in the higher salaries and graduating down to 5 per cent for employes receiving $100 or less a month. The Governor cut his own $5000 salary 25 per cent. The second factor was the Federal farm benefit money which was sent into the State. This enabled many farmers to pay their back taxes and enabled them to meet current taxes which otherwise might have become delinquent.

Boosters Point to Work in Counties.

But the State budget is a small part of the Kansas picture. The Landon boosters point to the situation in the counties, towns and school districts as the real feat of the administration.

The actual cost of government is the amount taken from the taxpayers in direct taxes, licenses and fee, rather than the amount expended. In Kansas, the two amounts differ only slightly, the Landon policy being to reduce expenditures to the limit and then collect only enough to meet them and have a safe working balance in reserve.

In 1929 the total collected by all governmental units in Kansas was $133,612,000. Under the Landon administration in 1935 the amount was $100,386,000, a decrease of 25 per cent. The per capita cost of State and local government in 1929 was $55.91, and in 1935 it had dropped to $39.13. In 1929, the assessed valuation of property was $3,813,034,125 and in 1935 it was $2,713,328,650, a decrease of more than 28 per cent.

Under the higher income a very large number of counties, towns and school districts continuously, year after year, expended more money than they received, and unpaid warrants, which were met in the next or succeeding years were common. This has been changed until now there are few, if any, unpaid warrants. When the fiscal year ends the bills have been paid. The budgets are balanced.

This has been made possible through the enactment of four State laws governing expenditures of counties, towns and school districts. Three of these existed in a different form before Landon took office. They were changed and strengthened in his administration, and a new one, the cash basis law, enacted. The others were a tax limitation law, a budget law and a uniform accounting law.

Budgets Required of All Tax Bodies.

Under these laws every tax levying body in the State is required to prepare a budget in detail, limiting the amount to be expended to the estimated income which would accrue under a law which placed a definite limit on the tax rate, and taking into consideration the probable tax delinquency based on experience.

Once a budget is fixed no official, under penalty of removal from office, may incur an indebtedness beyond its limits, and any warrant, voucher or statement of account for an expenditure after the budget is exhausted is void.

When the cash basis law went into effect in 1933 it was found that counties, towns and school districts had $11,000,000 of unpaid warrants outstanding. Under the law they were required to fund these debts immediately. As a result, provision was made to pay them over a period of time, and no additional debt of the kind could be incurred.

In addition to reducing direct property taxes, Landon forced through the Legislature a bill reducing automobile license fees 50 per cent, or about $3,000,000 a year. This loss in revenue was in part made up by what must be conceded to be more efficient enforcement of the laws. Under the Landon administration collections under the 3-cent gasoline tax increased about $1,000,000 a year, and many a Kansas automobile owner who had been escaping payment of the tax on the representation that his gasoline was used for agricultural purposes but who actually used it in his passenger car, began paying.

Income Tax Rates From 1 to 4 Per Cent.

While decreasing the direct property taxes and automobile license fees, a graduated income tax law with rates from 1 per cent to 4 per cent was passed. This is now producing more than $1,000,000 a year.

When Landon entered office, Kansas, as were all the agricultural states, was suffering in the lowest depths of the depression in farm prices, and was feeling the effects of the drouth years. Assessed valuations of property, which probably were far below actual value in the prosperous farming years, were far above any values which could be fixed on the basis of income derived. Landon recognized this and lowered the assessments and lowered the amount the taxpayers paid.

Kansas farm income dropped from $548,421,056 in 1929 to $204,868,996 in 1932. A 180,000,000-bushel corn crop in 1928 brought $117,000,000, while a 140,000,000-bushel crop in 1932 brought only $21,631,892. A 177,000,000-bushel wheat crop in 1928 brought $167,000,000, while a 106,000,000-bushel crop in 1932 brought only $31,000,000.

Kansas, though it has oil wells and coal mines, is essentially an agricultural state, and the absence of money among the farmers means heavy losses in the Kansas towns and resultant decrease in town property values as well as farm property values. The total assessed valuation of tangible property in the State was reduced from $3,663,173,426 in 1929 to $2,549,714,099 in 1935.

While these tax reductions were being carried out, Kansas communities also were reducing their bonded indebtedness. In 1932 the local governments (exclusive of the State) had a total bonded indebtedness of $139,651,328. In 1934 it was $122,889,370, a net decrease of $16,761,958, or 12 per cent. The only state debt is on soldiers' bonus bonds, which now amount to $19,250,000 outstanding, and are being retired at the rate of $1,000,000 a year.

Voters Approved in 1934 Election.

Though there are many in Kansas who criticise Landon and who insist that a balanced budget was not worth a sacrifice in public good, the taxpayers of the State must have been in a mood to suffer from lack of progressive services in return for a tax bill they could pay, because they re-elected him in 1934. Incidentally he was the only Republican Governor elected in the United States that year.

What effect the Landon method has had on public service is a matter of much dispute. Social workers and many Kansas school teachers insist it has not been a benefit but the Governor's supporters say there has been little decrease in any expenditures except for salaries and employes have been giving the same service for less money.

But there is no doubt that there has been a sharp decrease in the expenditures for education, for the care of the patients in eleemosynary institutions and on the public roads, leaving out of consideration Federal funds which have gone to the State for road construction.

Except for institutions for higher education the State government in Kansas contributes nothing for education. The public schools in the towns and in the rural sections are maintained locally. From 1930 to 1935 there was a drop of $10,000,000 in the amounts expended for the public schools, and a drop of $800,000 in the State appropriations for the higher educational institutions.

It is difficult to believe that the public schools could be as efficiently operated on $30,000,000 a year as on $40,000,000, or that an $800,000 cut in revenue of the university and other higher schools would not impair them.

Reports of Closed Schools, Low Pay.

One hears reports of schools that have been forced to close and of rural school teachers receiving salaries as low as $25 a month, but the

Kagawa, Japanese Christian, Says Only Co-Operative Trade Between Nations Can Assure World Peace

Organizer of Labor Movement in Japan, Credited With Saving Nation From Communism, in U. S. to Spread His Doctrine.

By MARQUIS W. CHILDS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.

A SMALL, thickset, youngish-looking Japanese is in this country on an intensive lecture tour, speaking from six to ten times a day about his belief that only a system of co-operative trade between nations—economic democracy on an international scale—can bring world peace. This man, Toyohiko Kagawa, is the outstanding Japanese liberal, organizer of the Japanese labor movement and of the Japanese co-operatives in which more than half of all families in Japan are now enrolled.

He Preaches Christianity and Co-Operative Economy

Toyohiko Kagawa

TOYOHIKO KAGAWA.

In his own country he is a sort of Samuel Gompers with overtones of Norman Thomas. Besides this he is perhaps the outstanding convert to Christianity in his land and an evangelist of great emotional force. Kagawa's followers compare him to Gandhi and they say that when the history of this troubled age is written from the perspective of a century or more he will be ranked with India's leader and with Russia's Lenin as one of the great figures in the renascence of the Orient.

Entry Into U. S. Delayed.

And yet, until his visit, it is doubtful if one out of a thousand Americans had ever heard of Kagawa. Nor would they have heard very much of him if it had not been for the fact that during his early work with the poor in the slums of Tokio he had acquired trachoma, a contagious disease of the eyes. Immigration authorities at San Francisco at first decided this was sufficient to bar him from America. His friends carried an appeal from this decision to Secretary of Labor Perkins and President Roosevelt and the resulting publicity made Kagawa known at least momentarily to a large public. He was finally admitted for six weeks on condition that a doctor accompany him throughout the tour to make sure he would not contaminate Americans with trachoma.

According to the carefully planned itinerary he is now following, Kagawa will be in St. Louis from next Friday, Jan. 31, to Feb. 2. He will talk before various church groups, co-operative societies and others in the St. Louis area.

His Status in Japan.

Japan is just now attempting to gain further territory in China, having already annexed a large slice of Manchuria in the form of the puppet state, Manchoukuo. This attempt is being carried out at the instigation of the militarist-imperialist group who, it is generally understood, rule the affairs of Japan. One of the first questions that occurs is why this all-powerful group has allowed Kagawa to organize labor unions and co-operatives.

It is apparent that the answer is that Kawaga is regarded by the militarist-imperialist group as the lesser of two evils. Communism in Japan, according to literature printed by Kagawa's sponsors, in this country, was at one time a real threat which the militarist-imperialists were well aware of. This was particularly true after the earthquake that devastated Tokio in 1923. Although Kagawa had at one time been in strong disfavor with the government, after the disaster he was asked to co-operate in the work of rehabilitation and for three years took a most active part in close association with the Premier. By many he is credited with saving Japan from Communism.

Opposed to Communism.

The reasons he is opposed to Communism are obvious. He is deeply imbued with the Christian ethic and the conviction that Christ's teachings contain a direct command to socialize the world. Kagawa, moreover, is committed to gradual change rather than revolutionary overthrow because he is opposed to all violence. Communism, he believes, is unworkable for the reason that it is too materialistic.

"As long as a mechanized civilization and capitalism did not oppress the urban laborers and the farming folk," Kagawa says, "an individualized gospel was abundantly able to meet the needs of the Japanese people. Now, however, that the workers of both the cities and the farms are suffering from the oppression of the machine and capital, they are no longer satisfied with a purely individual gospel.

"The same is true in the West. East and West the proletarian class, forgetting that even the machine is the product of the human intellect, and that capital is the product of the system of social values, is madly endeavoring to right the present maladjustments through materialistic measures. The upshot of it all is that the proletarian revolutionary movement will continue until knowledge becomes dominated by love, and the system of values in the social order becomes subservient to the law of love. . . .

How Co-Operatives Work.

"Japan's experience will become America's experience. Impelled by the poverty that has prevailed in my land since the World War the co-operative movement has made significant progress. America, because of her wealth, has felt no incentive to further the development of this movement. Consequently the economic crisis in America, since 1930, has been tragic in the havoc it has wrought.

"Countries in which co-operatives flourish are not harassed by the Leftist movement. Denmark is a shining example of this. Politically, Russia is Communistic, but is it not a fact that her economic system is built on a co-operative basis? However, no matter what form co-operatives may take, unless they are motivated by the redemptive love of Christ there is little hope of their success. This is of prime importance. Unless present day Christendom awakens to the vital importance of developing this co-operative movement it can never save the world."

Lenin Changed His Mind.

Kagawa says that while the Soviets abolished the co-operatives shortly after the revolution, Lenin re-established them in 1921 at the time of the famines. Previously, according to Kagawa, Lenin had regarded them as too "pale and palliative" to be included in the program of the revolution. But he found they were essential to the job of distribution.

In Japan Kagawa has sponsored

Limitations of the AAA Ruling.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

COMMENTS on the AAA decision almost without exception view it as a pronouncement on the merits of the act. Walter Lippmann wasted space discussing the wisdom of it, and on the same page an attorney saw the decision as a revelation of constitutional forethought.

The majority of the Justices take pains to aver that they acted only as referees. The AAA (so far as they were interested) may have been a ground gainer, a splendid forward pass in the battle against farm depression, or it may not have been. What the court looked for and saw was Congress offside when the ball was thrown. The administration's touchdown, if it was a touchdown, therefore, cannot be allowed.

That is all there is to the decision, that is all there can be to any constitutional decision, within the Constitution. The AAA ruling apparently would permit to the states severally that which it denies to the states collectively. E. J. B.

Saving Grace.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

MELISSA tends her garden in high-heeled satin sandals—
She grows more weeds than flowers, and no vegetables at all.
And from the finest china cups, which long since lost their handles,
She serves the most expensive tea, when any come to call.

She doesn't set a day aside for baking, washing, sewing,
She sleeps till afternoon sometimes, then sits up half the night.
She'll sit right down upon wet ground, and swear she sees things growing.
She doesn't even halfway dust—her house is just a sight.

"Melissa has no saving grace," that's what the neighbors say.
"A summer-singing grasshopper, improvident and shiftless.
"She never plans tomorrow's meals, she throws away today,
"She never cans a pear or peach—she's wantonly thriftless."

But, oh, you folk who live next door,
And you across the way,
Should see her laughter all in store
Against a rainy day;

Should see the shining shreds of song,
The threads of poetry
She has been saving all along
With shrewd economy;

And count the jars of kindness
Lined on her pantry shelves—
Oh, you who call her shiftless,
Look you, look you to yourselves!

Drivers' License Law Enforcement.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IT appears as though we saps who rushed to secure our drivers' licenses are coming in for a lot of laughs from the automobile driving populace who have refused to pay any attention to this so-called law. The law, a splendid thing, should be enforced. Either the city should admit failure to enforce the law and repeal it, and make a refund to all persons having obeyed it, to date, or prove sincere in its effort to make the law binding on all drivers. Masefield's Sonnet on George V.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IT is expected though not required of the Poet Laureate that he give appropriate expression to events of importance and significance to the English and to their far-flung empire. In this connection it might be observed that Mr. Masefield does well by the office of Laureate in his memorial sonnet on the late King George V of England. As a work of art, this sonnet is worthy of the colorful personality whose death it commemorates.

Though not a strict Italian sonnet, the poem is fashioned upon the Italian framework of an octave and sestet. The first eight lines not only identify the King with the epoch in which he reigned, but they also re-create for us the actual spirit of the times. The six lines of the sestet are a pulsing recital of the qualities which justly earned this King the tribute of "the best, the gentlest and the most beloved."

The sonnet reveals, among other things, that Mr. Masefield is still great at the writing of great individual lines. "His steadfast spirit shewed him King indeed" is not a bad line of poetry, nor is the line, "By time so savage to the thrones of Kings." Another of the lines, it seems to me, is sufficiently descriptive of the King's way of life to be regarded as his epitaph—"He was most royal among royal things."

CITIZENSHIP AND ARMS.

American public opinion has accepted as a high compliment the application of Albert Einstein for citizenship in the United States. The reaction is a proper one. When the distinguished 57-year-old physicist, banished by Nazi Germany, appeared at the Naturalization Bureau in Trenton, N. J., the other day to obtain his first papers, he paid tribute, in doing so, to the political ideals of the nation which guarantees freedom of thought in a written Constitution.

But do we Americans really want Albert Einstein to be a citizen of this country? If the question seems a contradiction, it is none the less in order. As an opponent of war and a stanch worker for international peace, Einstein might very conceivably have moral scruples against saying that he would bear arms to kill in defense of this country. Should he so decline, the United States would find itself with another Schwimmer case unhappily on its hands. This is something to think about in advance of the day when, at the end of his required period of residence, the propounder of the theory of relativity presents himself for the citizenship oath.

What sort of citizen the applicant would make in daily life ought to be the test of acceptance for citizenship in the United States, but, strange to say, it is not. This was brought out the other day at Peoria, Ill., when Werner E. Scherler, a native of Switzerland and father of three children, for many years a resident of Peoria, appeared before Federal Judge Briggle to ask for abridgement of the oath to bear arms. The applicant said he had no objection to participating in the defense of the United States if necessary, but did not want to be required to kill his fellow men.

Judge Briggle commended Mr. Scherler for his faithfulness to his principles and could not refrain from speaking of his qualifications for good citizenship. "No fault," said the Court, "can be found with you for your belief, and I am sure you would make an excellent citizen, but I am forced to deny your petition."

This issue has been ruled on by the United States Supreme Court twice in the last seven years, each time by a divided bench. The first case, decided in 1929, was that of Rosika Schwimmer, who was born in Hungary in 1877 and came to Illinois in 1921. She said she preferred the Government of the United States above all others, but as a conscientious objector to war she could not take the oath to bear arms. This reservation led the Federal Court of Northern Illinois to reject her application.

What the late Oliver Wendell Holmes said in the Schwimmer case remains one of that grand old man's greatest declarations for freedom of conscience. Pointing out that the rule of the court would bar the Quakers from citizenship were they to present themselves for admission, and amounts to an expression of regret for our inability to expel them "because they believe more than some of us do in the teachings of the Sermon on the Mount," Justice Holmes said:

> . . . if there is any principle of the Constitution that more imperatively calls for attachment than any other, it is the principle of free thought—not free thought for those who agree with us but freedom for the thought that we hate. I think that we should adhere to that principle with regard to admission into, as well as to life within, this country.

In his dissent, Justice Holmes was joined by Justice Brandeis. The late Justice Sanford also voted with the minority, agreeing with the reasoning of the Circuit Court of Appeals, which had reversed the lower court on the score that women were considered incapable of bearing arms. The majority opinion was written by Justice Butler and concurred in by Chief Justice Taft and Justices Van Devanter, McReynolds, Sutherland and Stone.

Two years later, almost to the day, the Supreme Court handed down its decision in the cases of Dr. Douglas Clyde Macintosh, professor of theology and chairman of the department of religion in the Yale University Graduate School, and Miss Marie Averill Bland, nurse—two Canadians who had served in France during the World War as army chaplain and nurse, respectively. As in the case of Rosika Schwimmer, their right to citizenship had been upheld by a Federal Circuit Court of Appeals.

This time, with two changes in its personnel, the court divided 5 to 4. Justice Sutherland delivered the majority opinion, in which he was supported by Justices Van Devanter, McReynolds, Butler and Roberts. Chief Justice Hughes read the minority opinion, concurred in by Justices Holmes, Brandeis and Stone. (Justice Stone, it is interesting to note, had abandoned his earlier stand against admitting a conscientious objector, and was now found voting with the members of the court who would accept such an applicant.) The Chief Justice, in vigorous language, said that Congress had not required all applicants for citizenship to take up arms and urged that the religious scruples of those opposing war be respected. Said the Chief Justice:

> That the Congress has not made such an express premise is apparent. The question is whether that exaction is to be implied from certain general words that do not, as it seems to me, either literally or historically, demand the implication.

The rejection of the applications of Dr. Macintosh and Miss Bland was a great disappointment to the press of the country. The Daily Oklahoman said: "A profound scholar and a gentleman like Dr. Macintosh is excluded from citizenship while a South European gunman who is willing to fight is admitted." The Baltimore Sun said: "The idea that people obviously far better equipped for citizenship than the vast majority of successful applicants should be rejected because of honest reservations as to what they will do in some hypothetical war in some uncertain future, is repulsive to good sense." To quote from only one more paper, the Washington Star said: "Congress should decide whether admission to citizenship shall be determined upon an examination of character and the life history of the applicant, or whether it is to depend upon a 'Yes' or 'No' answer that no one can give with absolute truth, and which, as a practical matter, connotes nothing of actual importance."

The course of common sense in this matter lies clearly before us. It is for Congress to declare that there shall be no bar against citizenship for qualified applicants who happen at the same time to be conscientious objectors to bearing arms. During the war-time, conscientious objectors were excused from fighting and concessions were made by placing certain persons in non-combatant services that were necessary in the conduct of the war. As much should be done in peace-time for applicants for citizenship who have moral scruples against war. A bill looking to this end was introduced by the late Representative Anthony J. Griffin of New York City in 1929. Some Representative or Senator who believes in freedom of thought should sponsor a similar bill today.

The United States does want Albert Einstein as a citizen. We do not want to be made inconsistent in the eyes of the world by having him rejected in the end if he prefers to cherish his belief that wars are needless and only bring suffering and misery to the world.

THE BOOST IN MARGIN REQUIREMENTS.

The unexpected action of the Federal Reserve Board in boosting margin requirements from 45 to 55 per cent of the value of securities purchased apparently must be viewed as representing the Board's uneasiness for the future. Transactions on the securities exchanges, it is true, have greatly increased in recent months, but not in such volume as to cause alarm. The increase showed a renewed interest in common stocks as a result of higher earnings, and the failure of brokers' loans to rise appreciably indicated that most transactions were for cash.

In fact, Chairman Eccles of the Federal Reserve Board stated two months ago, citing the numerous transactions for cash, that the stock market was in a sound condition. Recently, however, brokers' loans have increased by $200,000,000, and this has been coincident with the practical assurance that Congress would pass a bonus bill, with its inflationary possibilities. Aside from all other aspects of the bonus bill, its greatest danger lies in the chance that it may be the opening wedge by which Senator Thomas and his bloc may succeed in pushing through other inflationary measures.

It remains to be seen whether or not the new powers of the Federal Reserve Board and the restraining hand of the Securities Exchange Commission would be effective against a serious inflationary movement, but at least the board has shown by its action on margin requirements that it is alive to its responsibilities.

WHAT THE CONSTITUTION SAYS.

Messrs. Pearson and Allen recently said in their Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round column: "There is nothing in the Constitution which empowers the Supreme Court to declare acts of Congress unconstitutional."

That is only what Messrs. Pearson and Allen say. Let us see what the Constitution says. Here are the pertinent clauses from Article III, which creates the judicial department:

> Section 1—The judicial power of the United States, shall be vested in one Supreme Court and in such inferior courts as the Congress may from time to time ordain and establish. . . .
> Section 2—The judicial power shall extend to all cases in law and equity arising under this Constitution, the laws of the United States and treaties made, or which shall be made, under their authority. . . .

Joining the sense of these two clauses, we find that the Supreme Court is vested with a judicial power which includes all cases coming up under the Constitution and the laws of the United States. If this is so, then a suit by a citizen challenging an act of Congress as an invasion of his rights as a citizen is a case under the Constitution and the laws of the United States and so is within the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court. Finally and obviously, if the Supreme Court has judicial power in such a case it can decide the case, for decision is the very essence of judicial power.

That is the constitutional basis for judicial review of an act of Congress. There is the common-sense basis as well. In a Federal system such as ours, the States and the central government each exercise powers in their separate spheres. Manifestly, there must be a referee to say when one has invaded the rights of the other. Moreover, our central government consists of three balancing branches, the legislative, executive and judicial departments, each independent of the others. Again the need for an umpire to preserve the rights of each is clearly manifest.

The architects of the Constitution knew that the system they were creating called for a judiciary empowered to pass on all cases arising under the Constitution and subsequent laws and they of necessity made proper provision for it.

Through the mists of time, it is remembered merely as a trivial offense, a schoolboy disagreement. Another fraternity, Beta Theta Pi, admitted young Van Devanter as soon as he was dropped and the world whirled on. But now, in "kindly and fraternal" spirit, as the Justice himself termed it in accepting reinstatement, the rift has been healed. If, during a long and boresome argument before the court one of these days, the Justice whiles away the time by humming "The Sweetheart of Sigma Chi," everyone will understand.

"Of Making Many Books"

JOHN G. NEIHARDT

Woman's Supreme Gift.

JOSEPH CONRAD AND HIS CIRCLE. By Jessie Conrad. (E. P. Dutton & Co., New York City.)

DURING the 12 years since Joseph Conrad's death, various studies of his life and work have appeared, notably those by Jean Aubrey, Richard Curle, Arthur Symons, and the characteristic (and therefore occasionally dubious) reminiscences of Conrad's one-time friend and collaborator, Ford Madox Ford. Doubtless there will be others in the years to come, as much because of a certain baffling strangeness in the personality of the man as for the unique quality of his product. But whatever may be written, one work can scarcely fail to remain of prime importance in any consideration of Conrad as a man and a maker. It is by his wife and is listed here.

By no means can it be assumed that the wife of a man of genius, because of intimate association through many years, is necessarily the one most able to portray him. The very intimacy, especially with a man of Conrad's disposition, could easily serve to accentuate relative trivialities to the exclusion of the deeper-lying greatness, the ethos of the man's mind and spirit. (One remembers Tolstoy's wife in this connection.)

It is not then merely by virtue of her having been his wife for 28 years that Jessie Conrad has produced a work of enduring value on Joseph Conrad; nor yet is it because of any special gift of critical insight or of scholarly attainment. Neither of these is in evidence, and nothing of the sort is affected. But something of greater importance than these—greater than the unassuming intelligence and the consistent common sense that are felt in every page—has made the book a warmly living thing.

That something may perhaps be described as the mother-genius of woman, a primordial gift of unconsidered intuitions, of unconscious wisdom and of instinctive patience that are perhaps only so many aspects of self-forgetting love. And surely from the time of Conrad's amazingly abrupt and unromantic proposal—"Look here, my dear, we had better get married and out of this—look at the weather!"—from the time when he left the bride-to-be waiting at the church, "feeling physically sick at the delay," until the day when he fell dead from his chair, burned out by some torturing fire of the spirit, few great men can have been more constantly in need of such ministering genius.

When this supreme gift of woman takes the morbid form of jealous possessiveness, as it sometimes does for lack of a healthy sense of humor, it can be a truly fearful thing; but Jessie Conrad's sense of humor, unobtrusive as it is, has very much to do with the simple charm, the lovableness, the revealing character of her work. Her lifelong attitude towards the man who was at once her child and the remote object of her awe, is presented in the following, bearing on his death:

"The day passed and night came once more. There beyond that closed door lay all that remained of perhaps the strangest being one could ever know. In death he seemed to have retired completely from his fellows. I, too, shared in the impression that there was still something I did not know and now could never know. . . .

"He had passed on and left me with my two sons, with some true, tried friends, and enough memories to keep me company if I lived to be a hundred. Each trivial happening crowded into my mind during those lonely hours, taking precedence, in a curious way, of matters much more important. He had been to me as much a son as a husband. He claimed my care and indulgence in the same manner as the smallest infant would have done. And yet, at the same time, there was that sense of pride in the great achievement, admiration for the volume of work done under difficulties that were unique.

"Who can speak with such sympathy and understanding of those difficulties as his wife, now his widow? My personal pride is three-fold. First of all my care of the artist in words, that had to be constant and unremitting, in every sense of the word, watchful that his mood should not be ruthlessly invaded or disturbed by outside influences. This, at least, was often no light task. Secondly, the care of his material well-being, his home, and his children. For the first half of his writing life I was also his secretary, and each book became like another infant. And lastly, I have the privilege and the immense satisfaction of being considered as the guardian of his memory, and of the inheritance of fame that comes to his sons, and through them to their children in turn."

ATLAS OF HUMAN ANATOMY. (Barnes & Noble, Inc., New York City.)

OF geographic atlases there is profusion, but atlases of the human geography are rare in home libraries. This is a small volume, compact and comprehensive, that seeks to meet the need. The anatomical charts are beautiful examples of the printer's craft, in eight colors, and the explanatory text is clear and enlightening to the layman, without over-simplification. Three years of planning and research, the publishers assert, went into the book. The explanatory text of the atlas was written by Dr. Jesse Feiring Williams of Columbia University, and the illustrations were made by Franz Frohse of the University of Berlin and Max Broedel and Leon Schlossberg of Johns Hopkins University. THE FABULOUS WILSON MIZNER. By Edward Dean Sullivan. (The Henkle Co., New York City.)

WILSON MIZNER, who died almost three years ago in Hollywood, was a picturesque product of the American scene. He was by turns a Klondike prospector and gambler, an actor, a playwright, a short-story writer, pugilist's manager, art dealer, Florida real estate promoter, trans-Atlantic gambler and movie scenarist. Always he enlivened his surroundings with epigram and anecdote, thereby winning a reputation as a Broadway wit. The present volume (about half of it written by Mizner himself) is a rapid-fire sketch of his rapid-fire career. Much of the book consists of anecdotes. The impression left by the whole is of a boisterous, buoyant, uninhibited individual, and the tremendous energy he put into realizing his ambition of living well without working. F. G.

MEDITATIONS ON THE CROSS. By Toyohiko Kagawa. (Willett, Clark & Co., Chicago, New York City.)

SPECIAL interest attaches to this book because of the presence in the United States of the author, Japan's great Christian evangelist. Pre-eminent as pacifist, social reformer and economic leader, he here expresses his conception of the Cross and its implications for individual, social, economic and international life, transmuting the experience into a great adventure for the lifting of humanity. Even those who are not wholly in agreement with his theological interpretation, will be humbled by his sublime devotion.

He prays for China and for America. The super-patriot in this country who objected to Kagawa's admittance as having a circuitous connection with "a campaign to undermine all our agencies of national defense," might ponder this excerpt: "When I say war is wrong, people say Kagawa is a dangerous character. And yet it was because war is wrong that we wanted to form the peace pact, and even Gen. Tanaka, while Premier, affixed his seal to it. So different are our insides and outsides that even while we are affixing our national seal to peace pacts, anyone inside the nation who speaks against war we dub a traitor. . . . It is hard to understand our national psychology with reference to world peace."

It becomes clear that the widening cleavage in the world is not so much between nations as between the people in all lands who desire peace and development, on the one hand, and on the other, those who insist upon force for the settlement of controversies.

"HERE I HAVE LIVED." By Paul M. Angle. (The Abraham Lincoln Association, Springfield, Ill.)

THE ABRAHAM LINCOLN ASSOCIATION is a non-profit corporation founded 26 years ago for the purpose of promoting "the collection and dissemination of authentic information" regarding the great Civil War President. In addition to a quarterly bulletin and an annual volume of "Papers," it issues special publications from time to time, the volume here noted being the fourth in its list.

"Here I Have Lived" is a history of Springfield from its founding by Elijah Iles in 1821 to the year of Lincoln's death. The author, Paul M. Angle, has served as secretary of the Lincoln Association for the last 10 years, and since 1932 has been librarian of the Illinois State Historical Library at Springfield. He collaborated with Carl Sandburg in the writing of "Mary Lincoln, Wife and Widow," is the editor of a collection of Lincoln's writings and of Herndon's "Life of Lincoln," as well as author of a work entitled "Lincoln, 1856-1861."

HIRTH ANNOUNCES PROGRAM IN RACE FOR GOVERNORSHIP

Says Smashing of Pendergast Political Machine Is Overwhelming Issue in Missouri.

ADVOCATES REPEAL OF THE SALES TAX

Favors Shift in Taxation From Real to Tangible Property, Net Incomes — Other Planks.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Jan. 25.—Shift in taxation from real to tangible property and net incomes, repeal of the sales tax and a fight against chain stores are major points in a program on which William Hirth, president of the Missouri Farmers' Association, announced today he would seek the Democratic nomination for Governor.

In a statement defining his stand on state issues, Hirth again denounced T. J. Pendergast and his Kansas City Democratic organization, declaring that "the days of the Pendergast machine are numbered. I consider the smashing of the powerful and corrupt Pendergast machine as the overwhelming issue in Missouri and one which vitally concerns all our people irrespective of party." Hirth said: "A situation under which a great political boss decides who shall had high public office in Missouri, and who likewise ruthlessly dictates our policies of state government, is intolerable."

The Question of Taxes.

"Next to Pendergastism I consider lower taxes as the greatest issue before our people," Hirth said. "If I should become Governor, I pledge myself to do everything in my power to bring about such a revision of Missouri's antiquated tax system as will compel our 'hidden wealth' and net incomes to pay their fair share of taxes to the end that in this way we may correspondingly reduce the present intolerable tax burden upon farm lands and town and city real estate, for under existing conditions we are increasingly penalizing the ownership of homes and other real estate; furthermore, I pledge myself to the elimination of hundreds of needless job holders, and to such a reorganization of our various agencies of government as will reduce tax expenditures to bedrock.

"Not only must we stop increasing governmental costs, but we must cut our present costs to the bone—on the one hand we must so revise our tax system that every individual and corporation in Missouri will pay what they should pay, while upon the other we must so reorganize government that every tax dollar will mean real service to the people rather than mere tribute."

Hirth asserted, "I regard the sales tax primarily as a tax on the poor man's bread and meat, and thus I favor its repeal as soon as possible."

"Clean Up Legislature."

Hirth said that during the coming campaign he would do what he could to obtain the election of a Legislature "free from the influence of the special interest lobbies which have so long infested our State capitol. We cannot hope to clean up Missouri until we clean up the Legislature," the statement added.

"I think we should watch carefully the performance of the one body chamber recently created in Nebraska under the sponsorship of Senator Norris," Hirth said. "Meanwhile I favor the creation of a legislative council which can sit between sessions to formulate necessary legislation, thus supplying guidance that is now impossible."

Hirth stated he favored "putting enough 'teeth' into our existing laws so that the man who buys a vote, or who casts a fraudulent vote, will face a certain prison sentence," adding, "In this connection I favor a permanent registration law in St. Louis and Kansas City."

"I promise to sponsor legislation to tax chain stores not only as a matter of protection to our home merchants, but to reimburse our State for the taxable wealth which we are losing," he said.

With reference to old-age pensions, he declared: "We must see to it that all who are justly entitled to a pension shall receive it, and a special session of the Legislature should be called in order that more revenue may be provided and in order that Missouri may receive the 50 per cent that is available from the Federal Government."

Says Only Co-Operative Trade Can Assure Peace

many kinds of co-operatives, but particularly consumer and producer co-operatives in the agricultural areas. Japan is 70 per cent rural and co-operatives have had their principal growth among the hard-hit farmers. Consumer co-operative stores in the cities have had very little development, enrolling less than 1 per cent of the industrial population, according to Kagawa.

There are many different kinds of co-operatives in Japan, Kagawa pointed out. Several silk mills are operated on a co-operative basis and market about 80,000,000 yen (approximately 3½ yen are equal to $1) worth of silk annually in New York. Kagawa has organized 25 health co-operatives and these associations have built and equipped 91 hospitals, distributed throughout Japan. In all leading universities there are chairs of co-operation. Kagawa himself is professor of co-operatives at the University of Doshisha.

"Rationalizing" Industry.

The sphere of big industry in Japan is not disturbed by the development of the co-operatives, according to Kagawa. But because of the severity of the depression which lasted nearly twice as long as the American depression has endured, industry is being "rationalized" by the Government, Kagawa says. Thus, where formerly there were many steel companies competing with each other, none of them operating at a profit, there is now one steel company. The price of steel is controlled by the Government and fixed at a level which permits the steel company to make a moderate profit. All large-scale industry is being rationalized in this way, according to Kagawa.

Says Expansion Will Fail.

Two or three years ago, Kagawa says, Communism was still very strong in Japan, but it is now on the wane. He insists that the Japanese people are not militaristic or imperialistic and in an interview expressed doubt that they would go to war against Russia. The Japanese expansion in Manchoukuo and North China is bound to be a failure in Kagawa's view.

"The Chinese," he says, with a curious, selfless kind of laughter, "are a very old people. They have absorbed many conquerors. They will absorb the Japanese. It may take a hundred years. But it will happen.

"In Manchoukuo there are 22,000,000 Chinese of Shantung origin, 22,000,000 Shantung coolies. They work for a third of what the Japanese will work. So no Japanese go there. Or very few. It costs Japan one billion yen. And it will cost Japan more still. So it cannot go on."

Ran Away From Home.

Kagawa has had a highly dramatic life. He is the illegitimate son of a wealthy, landed Japanese nobleman and a geisha girl. At the death of his mother, his father's lawful wife took him into her home to rear, but subjected him to every form of humiliation and abuse. He ran away from home eventually and became a Christian, a dark disgrace to all his relatives. Living in abject poverty in the slums, he became a lay preacher, then, after graduating from Princeton University in this country, an ordained minister. He has published more than 100 books which have sold in enormous numbers. His income from these books with the exception of $40 a month for himself, his wife and three children, he gives away, supporting 50 workers in the causes in which he is interested.

Oriental in appearance and manner, with a bland, smiling countenance, on the platform he has the fervor and not a little of the emotional appeal of an American evangelist. His Christianity is tied up with a social philosophy that would bring the world to international co-operation. If the co-operatives can develop surely and slowly in each nation, a world war may be averted, says Kagawa. But he is not overly hopeful that there will be time for this gradual growth. With apparently unflagging energy, he gives himself to the task of converting the world to his views.

KAGAWA TO SPEAK AT COLUMBIA FIRST

Plans for the series of public meetings and private conferences which will be held for Toyohiko Kagawa during his three-day visit to St. Louis this week, have been completed by the Kagawa Committee of the Metropolitan Church Federation, sponsors of the visit, it was announced yesterday by Dr. Arnold H. Lowe, chairman.

Dr. Kagawa will arrive in St. Louis from New York Wednesday at 1 p. m. He will be accompanied by Dr. Velva Brown, missionary physician and nurse of Canton, China, and Rev. Dr. C. C. Cunningham, chairman of the Kagawa Itinerary in America. A reception committee, headed by Rev. Dr. C. Oscar Johnson, president of the Church Federation, and composed of leading ministers and lay church members, will be at the Union Station to meet the Kagawa party.

The St. Louis committee has arranged to take Dr. Kagawa to Columbia, Mo., immediately after his arrival. He is scheduled to speak at three separate meetings to be held at the University of Missouri, Stephens College and Christian College on Thursday in connection with Religious Emphasis week being observed for students there.

The Kagawa party will return to St. Louis in time for the first conference scheduled for 10 o'clock Friday morning with ministers of Greater St. Louis and the surrounding cities and towns, at Centenary M. E. Church, Sixteenth and Pine streets. This meeting is under the auspices of the Ministerial Alliance.

Friday afternoon at 2:30 and Saturday at 9.30 a. m. and 2:30 p. m. Kagawa will meet with a group of 400 civic, social welfare and religious leaders in a series of conferences to be held in Union Avenue Christian Church, Union boulevard and Enright avenue. In these conferences, limited to 400 by special request of Kagawa, he likely will discuss intimately his social, economic and religious philosophy and answer questions.

Three hnudred young persons, chosen by various local organizations to represent them, will confer with Kagawa at the Union Avenue Church at 7:30 p. m. Friday.

The meeting of chief public interest will be the mass meeting to be held next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Washington University field house, Big Bend and Lindell boulevards, at which Kagawa is expected to deliver an evangelistic sermon. Anticipating a large attendance, the committee has announced that the field house doors will be open by 2 o'clock and that only a small section has been reserved for special guests. No admission will be charged.

Immediately following the mass meeting Kagawa will go to Alton, to address a meeting prior to departing for Kansas City. The Kagawa party will stay at the Gatesworth Hotel, 245 Union boulevard, during its visit.

NEW COURSES AT ST. LOUIS U.

Principles of Boy Work and Seminar to Be Offered.

New courses will be offered in the School of Social Service and the Department of Sociology of St. Louis University during the second semester, university officials announced yesterday.

Principles of boy work will be taught by Edmund J. Radzuk, a former Buffalo (N. Y.) social worker, and a seminar in case work will be conducted by Miss Weltha M. Kelley, both of the School of Social Service. New classes in the sociology department will include ecology, social change, city social and industrial problems, and economics for case workers.

FRANK LOWDEN'S IDEA OF FARM AID PROGRAM

Let State Agricultural Colleges Administer Federal Funds, He Suggests.

(Copyright. 1936, by the Associated Press.)

OREGON, Ill., Jan. 25.—A proposal looking toward a permanent farm program within the framework of the Constitution was advanced today by former Gov. Frank O. Lowden. He gave his views in an interview on the eve of his 75th birthday tomorrow.

Under his plan, the Federal Government would make grants to the states. The states, in turn, would pay bounties to farmers for removing 25 or 30 per cent of their acreage from production. The retired land would be planted to legumes and thus saved from the effects of overcropping and erosion. The undertaking would be administered by the staffs of the State agricultural colleges.

In its soil conservation aspects, the Lowden program corresponded generally to the bill recently rejected by the Senate Agricultural Committee, but Lowden's plan differs in administrative provisions. Under the Washington plan, the old Agricultural Adjustment Act personnel would have been the administrators. Under the Lowden proposal, the Federal Government would see that the money it allotted was properly expended, but actual administration would be vested in state agricultural college staffs.

Lowden — former Governor of Illinois, twice a member of Congress, lawyer and farmer since the day of the hand plow—said he based his suggestion on long study and experience.

The idea lodged in his mind shortly after the World War. He was riding over his 4500-acre Sinnissippi farm. The yellow glint of erosion in the black soil caught his eye. He outlined the fundamentals of the project in an address at Madison, Wis., in 1930. Today he gave a complete outline of his scheme.

"The program of land utilization, taking a substantial portion of our cultivated lands out of cultivation and planting them to legumes or other permanent grasses, should be supervised by the State Colleges of Agriculture," he said.

"Through their extension service they now have innumerable agencies reaching into all parts of the States. Through surveys already made or being made they have the requisite knowledge for almost every farm. They know the needs of agriculture in the several States better than anyone else. And so far they have been kept out of politics."

He pointed to the erosion that preceded the ruin of once prosperous nations. He warned that, unless steps were taken to keep the soil from being overcropped or washed away, the United States in 50 years would raise food and fiber only for itself at "prohibitive prices."

He cited estimates that $4,500,000,000 worth of fertility is carried down the Mississippi River alone each year. He quoted Director H. H. Bennett of the Federal Soil Erosion Service as stating 75 per cent of the nation's cultivated land suffered erosion in some degree. He said statistics indicated 50,000,000 acres have been destroyed by erosion, 125,000,000 have been largely stripped of productive top soil and that within the next 50 or 75 years at least 100,000,000 additional acres would become "severely impoverished." This compares with 350,000,000 acres under cultivation now.

RECEPTION TO BE HELD TODAY AT ARTISTS' GUILD

Will Be Under Auspices of Group Favored to Promote Larger Attendance at Exhibition.

A reception will be held this afternoon at the Artists' Guild, 812 Union boulevard, under the auspices of the Galleries Association formed recently to promote larger attendance at exhibitions and encourage wider public interest in St. Louis artists.

The reception will serve as the formal opening of the current exhibition in which the work of 15 St. Louis painters and two sculptors is displayed. Hostesses will be Mrs. George C. Smith, Mrs. Frank Clifford, Miss Josephine Johnson, Miss Lucy Mackay, Mrs. Scott MacNutt, and Mrs. Walter Baumgarten.

The exhibition will be on view until Feb. 3 when it will be replaced by an exhibition and sale of oil paintings, sculpture, water colors and craft work donated by artist members of the Guild toward a fund to improve the galleries and to continue the services of Peter Mariner, representative for the artists.

BILBO BREAKS WITH HARRISON

Begins Open Fight Against Re-election of Colleague.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Senator Bilbo announced today his open opposition to the re-election of his colleague, Harrison of Mississippi, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee. Harrison said he was not "deterred or frightened by the threat."

The split came in the wake of hearings before a Senate Judiciary Subcommittee in which Harrison supported and Bilbo opposed confirmation of Judge Edwin R. Holmes for the Circuit Court of Appeals. The committee recessed today to consider the nomination. Both the Mississippians are Democrats and a nomination is tantamount to election. Harrison is up for re-election this year.

URGES EARLY ACTION ON ARMORY SITE

A. L. Shapleigh Tells Aldermen Neither Coliseum Nor Arena Is Suitable.

Neither the Coliseum, 2608 Washington boulevard, nor the Arena, 5700 Oakland avenue, is suitable for the use of the 138th Infantry, National Guard, A. L. Shapleigh, chairman of the Citizens' Military Committee, declared in a letter yesterday to the Board of Aldermen, urging prompt action on the choice of a site for the armory.

Likewise he objected to a lot on Market street, beween Prospect and Spring avenues, which has been under consideration. Writing in behalf of the committee, he urged the Aldermen to approve a location covered by a pending bill, for property adjoining Camp Jackson Plaza, a short distance east of Grand boulevard and extending between Pine and Lawton boulevards.

"The advantage of this site," he said, "are manifold, such as the very central location and the reasonable price at which the property can be had (about $125,000).

"The city boasts an excellent infantry regiment, one of the best in the United States, as shown by frequent Government inspections. I earnestly trust that you gentlemen will not lose further time in making a decision. I am informed there is danger, unless prompt action is taken, that the city may lose the benefit of PWA funds.

"Our military units have long been without satisfactory accommodations. Notwithstanding this, through devotion to their commands they have kept themselves adequate and in a condition of preparedness for any emergency that may arise. The voice of the people has said that the infantry regiment should have the new armory, and it should be had."

For years the regiment has used an armory leased by the city at Grand boulevard and Market street. The 1934 bond issue provided $1,000,000 for a new one and the PWA, in addition, has allotted a $347,500 grant for it.

Bill Held Up.

Early this month the aldermanic Streets Committee held up the bill providing for purchase of the site adjoining Camp Jackson Plaza, members of the committee saying they wanted to inspect the property. Later, the board unanimously set up a special committee to inquire into the possibility of acquiring the Arena. Several years ago the city was told the Arena and grounds could be purchased for $750,000, compared with a reported construction cost of $2,500,000.

Last Tuesday a real estate dealer offered to sell the Coliseum building and ground to the city for $200,000. The Deputy Comptroller was authorized to consult Col. L. C Kingsland, new commander of the 138th Infantry, about the proposal. The bond issue proposition provided for either erection or purchase of an armory, but the bond issue was predicated on the city's desire to provide employment.

BUSINESS REPORTED TO BE "ON UPGRADE" IN ST. LOUIS

Department Store Sales 4 Per Cent Higher Than in Same Week Last Year.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25. — The Commerce Department found today that business conditions in Kansas City and St. Louis were "on the upgrade" during the week ended Wednesday.

Reports from St. Louis placed department store sales 4 per cent higher than the same week last year but 14 per cent lower than last week. The Agricultural Adjustment Act decision was said to be developing "considerable confusion." Weather conditions favored agricultural conditions but handicapped actual work on farms.

Early reports of revenue freight cars last week indicated another sizeable increase over the preceding week in loadings for the country. St. Louis employment was about the same with a slight increase in placements in private industries.

His Law Clerk Says Early "Dissenting Opinion" Caused Sigma Chi to Expel Him.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—It was an early "dissenting opinion" that caused Sigma Chi fraternity to expel Justice Willis Van Devanter of the United States Supreme Court 55 years ago.

Confined to bed by bronchial trouble, the 76-year-old Justice confirmed through a law clerk today that he had accepted reinstatement by his fraternity. He said the cause of his ouster in 1881 was a "disagreement over minor matters within the fraternity."

"Justice Van Devanter merely dissented," his law clerk added, jokingly.

MONTICELLO COLLEGE GIFT

$13,000 Donated Anonymously to Institution.

Receipt of an anonymous gift of $12,000 and another of $1000, was announced yesterday by George Irwin Rohrbough, president of Monticello College at Godfrey, Ill.

The funds will be used, it was stated, for rebuilding driveways, improvement of the campus, purchase of a school bus, scholarship expenses and expenses of maintaining a stable of saddle horses purchased last fall.

Balancing Kansas' Budget With Gov. Alf M. Landon

administration answer is that these are rare cases and that the schools which have been closed consolidated with other schools, providing better service at lower cost.

Eleemosynary institutions have been going along under greatly reduced budgets, but that was a situation which developed before Landon was elected. In 1931, the State expenditure for these institutions was $2,124,607. In 1932, the year before Landon took office they were cut more than $600,000 to $1,484,435, and in Landon's first year they suffered another cut of $356,000. In 1934, about $160,000 was added to their previous appropriation, and in 1935 another $100,000 was added. Yet last year they received $731,908 less than in 1929.

The Landon supporters defend this reduction by saying that in addition to reduction in salaries, there has been a big saving through lower commodity prices, making possible the purchase of the same amount and quality of food and clothing for inmates for much less money.

Pay As You Go Basis.

One has only to ride over Kansas roads to know that they are not maintained as are Missouri roads. The State has been building its roads out of current revenues and consequently has not constructed hard-surfaced roads on anything like the scale Missouri has with its bond money.

This is the administrative record of the Kansas Governor, who is now being talked about for President.

He has been a success in Kansas politics, in which he has been active since he was graduated from the University of Kansas in 1908. He was a Bull Mooser in 1912, but with that exception has been a regular Republican, though inclined to the more progressive William Allen White faction than the always regular Charley Curtis faction.

He is 48 years old, and, except for a brief experience as a small town banker immediately after finishing school, has been an independent oil operator. Reputedly, he has acquired a comfortable fortune.

In politics he has served as precinct chairman, county chairman and State chairman of his party, in the latter position having managed the successful campaign of Clyde M. Reed, a rather extreme liberal, for Governor in 1928.

Kansas, which usually is Republican by a wide margin, elected Woodring, a Democrat, Governor in 1930 as a result of the candidacy of Dr. Brinkley, goat gland specialist, who split the Republicans. At that, Woodring won by only 252 votes.

Landon's Personality.

Prior to the 1932 campaign, Landon engaged in a harmonizing campaign, a job at which he is said to be particularly good, and succeeded in winning the Governorship by a plurality of 5637, though Roosevelt carried Kansas that year by 74,706. Landon was the only Republican Governor elected west of New England in 1932. He was reelected in 1934 by a plurality of 62,153.

He is a very friendly person, not a back-slapping Babbitt type, but just friendly, easy-to-talk-to. He knows he is a candidate, but he doesn't say so. In fact, he is doing very little talking for publication. Just sitting tight, letting politics take its course, but keeping in touch with "the Landon situation" throughout the country. Landon organizations are being quietly perfected, but no noise is being made about it.

It is impossible to say just what Landon's position is on the major issues before the country. He talks with seeming frankness, but does not get down to particulars. After an hour of conversation with him his attitude could be summed up in this sentence: "He is in rather thorough accord with the aims of most of the New Deal, but he is opposed to the Roosevelt methods of accomplishing those aims." And when one has reached that summation he realizes that he has no idea of how Landon would go about it were he President. It is probable Landon himself doesn't know now.

In a speech before the Ohio Chamber of Commerce in Cleveland last November, he said:

"It is not my place here to discuss the weakness or the strength of new policies in government. I shall not attempt to characterize them as successes or failures, or as revolutionary or evolutionary. For better or for worse, such laws are here. We are faced with a condition of fact, not of speculative theory. So, the major task ahead in the main is not more laws, or more program or more experimentation, but sound common sense administration."

In his second inaugural address a year ago he said:

"Never in the history of our country have we attempted so many great political experiments in such a short time. America bids fair to join the procession of nations of the world in their march toward a new social and economic philosophy. Some say this will lead to Socialism, some Communism, some Fascism. For myself, I am convinced that the ultimate goal will be a modified form of individual rights and ownership of property out of which will come a wider spread of prosperity and opportunity for a fuller, richer life for man.

"The phases of the present social and economic experiments which will survive will be determined eventually when they have been threshed through the mills of time, circumstances and experience."

The Landon record on prohibition is one which is causing no end of concern to many of the active Landon boosters, though there is no indication that he would attempt to conceal it. In almost every discussion of his availability it is brought up.

Landon is a dry, personally and politically.

CORRECTION ON ARTICLE ABOUT RURAL TEACHER

Rolla School Head Says He Replied to Board Member's Letter; Explains Circumstances.

B. P. Lewis, superintendent of schools at Rolla, Mo., has requested the Post-Dispatch, through its Rolla correspondent, to correct a statement made in a news article published in the Post-Dispatch Jan. 12, under Rolla date line. The article told how a young man, whose spelling was below accepted standards, had been engaged for a time as teacher of Relfe rural school, in Phelps County. His educational deficiencies, and the fact that he was, as he stated in a letter, a "gragurate" of Rolla High School, caused criticism of the local and county school system.

Walter Rolaff member of the present school board in the Relfe district, sent a letter of inquiry and complaint to Superintendent Lewis. Rolaff said, and the article, stated, that he had not received a reply. Superintendent Lewis asked that this statement be corrected. He said that he not only replied, but sent two Rolla teachers to discuss the matter with the Relfe school board.

Superintendent Lewis said the young man obtained his teacher's certificate not in the teacher training course of Rolla High School, but by taking an examination before the county superintendent. He said the young man had most of his schooling elsewhere, and that while his spelling showed signs of neglect, he showed fair mental ability.

Lewis said also that the statement that the Relfe teacher was paid $50 a month for an eight-month term was misleading. While the records of the State Superintendent of Schools show that salary, Lewis said the actual pay was nearer $30 a month. He said the county records showed that the young man taught for only a few days, and was not paid for his service, so far as reported.

PROF. R. F. JONES TO SPEAK

To Address St. Louis Writers' Guild on Poetry.

Prof. Richard F. Jones of Washington University will speak on poetry at a meeting of St. Louis Writers' Guild, to be held Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock at the home of Capt. and Mrs. Donald T. Wright, 609 Sherwood drive, Webster Groves.

Names of the winners in the annual writing contest will also be announced by Mrs. Guthrie McConnell, chairman of the contest. There will be election of officers.

St. Louisan Shows Paintings.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—With a group of paintings of wheat fields, Joe Jones, young former house painter from St. Louis, opened a one-man show here last week at the Walker Galleries. His first show here last year attracted favorable critical attention.

DICKINSON SAYS G. O. P. MUST NOT 'PUSSYFOOT'

"There Can Be No Compromise or Equivocation," Iowa Senator Declares.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—Senator Lester J. Dickinson (Rep.), Iowa, said today that the Republican party "cannot pussyfoot its way to victory" in the coming presidential election.

"Against a foe who will neither give nor ask quarter, there can be no soft pats on the wrist, no amenities, no compromise or equivocation," he said in a luncheon address at the National Republican Club. His speech was broadcast over Station WOR, Newark, N. J.

"It is no simple task to rouse the nation from its lethargy," he declared, "to make it see that, beneath pleasant and appealing catch phrases, subtle poisons are being brewed which are destructive of self-reliance and of liberty, or that through various monetary and economic 'shots in the arm,' a sense of false security has been created while the public's pocketbook has been picked and stuffed with Government I O U's."

Tells of Two Roads.

He said that the country was confronted with a choice between two roads which lead in opposite directions.

"One," he asserted, "veers off sharply to the 'left' into an uncharted no-man's land. It has never been explored except by socialistic dreamers. New Deal reforms, it is now clear, are merely a disguise under which to hide the erection of an entirely new social order. . . .

"The other road leads straight ahead and offers no enticing adventure. It is not a pleasure boulevard, but a work-road, deep-rutted and dusty. It is the traveled road of experience and common sense. . . . Perhaps in appearance it may be a bit somber and unpromising, but at least it is an honest road.

"The 1936 campaign calls for that same straightforwardness and honesty of approach. It will be fought with a bitterness never equaled in American political history. While this is regrettable, it is none the less inevitable when two basically antagonistic economic and political philosophies are joined in a life and death struggle."

What Happened in 1860.

Dickinson said that in 1860 the Republican party "repulsed attacks from those who sought to destroy the Federal Government."

"This year," he continued, "it must again endure assaults from those who would undermine the union. This time its enemies would strike down all of the 48 pillars upon which it rests. The attempt is being made to alter that partnership of the State created under the Constitution and to erect in its stead what the President calls a 'people's government.' How strongly that phrase—the 'people's government'—echoes of Moscow and of those European states where democracy today lies trussed and strangled."

Theater Season To Get Second Start On Feb. 3

Renewal With Nazimova In "Ghosts" to Carry Activity Well Into Spring

THE current legitimate theater season, which started out as the most buoyant since the financial excitement of 1929 and then came to a dead stop early this month, will get back on its feet a week from tomorrow night and promises even yet to overtake a few records.

Mme. Alla Nazimova will stop in for six days beginning Feb. 3, then Cornelia Otis Skinner returns for a three-day engagement starting Feb. 10. "Personal Appearance," movie-lampooning comedy which arrived in Chicago at Christmas, stands a good chance of packing up in a few weeks, with St. Louis as the next point on tour.

Walter Huston's three-season success, "Dodsworth," which took the Chicago-Kansas City route to the West Coast, shows signs of heading back and quite possibly may arrive at the American Theater ahead of its present booking, March 16. At any rate, Walter Hampden will play "Cyrano de Bergerac" at the American on March 9, 10 and 11.

"Porgy and Bess," the George Gershwin folk opera which burst forth on Broadway last fall in sepia glory, will come to town late in March. The road company of "Boy Meets Girl," current Broadway hit, is in Chicago and has St. Louis on its spring schedule.

The local following of Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne will be disappointed to learn that the popular pair will not bring their "Taming of the Shrew" west of Chicago. In fact, only Boston, which has seen the show, and Chicago, will get an opportunity. Lunt and Fontanne themselves will begin rehearsals immediately of a new play, "Idiot's Delight."

"Anything Goes," from which most of the original and first substituted principals have disappeared by now, is another show that turned down a week at the American. After a tepid term in Chicago, the ex-Broadway musical is going to wind up in Detroit. The picture version is coming out, anyway, so a further tour would be precarious.

THE reception of Nazimova in "Ghosts" is one of the surprise events of the American Theater this season. Through Philadelphia, Baltimore, Boston, Buffalo and Toronto, her performance and the production generally elicited highest praise. At the opening in the Empire Theater, New York, the star received more than 20 curtain calls, which the historians on the spot called the great acclamation accorded a star since Bernhardt. The two weeks' engagement was extended to four, then the company went to Chicago, where it is now.

Although Mme. Nazimova played in the Theater Guild version of "A Month in the Country," at the American in 1930, her activity since then has been confined mainly to New York. Florence Reed replaced her in the cast of "Mourning Becomes Electra" when it went on the road. "The Good Earth," "The Cherry Orchard" and "The Simpleton of the Unexpected Isles," were other Nazimova vehicles not seen here.

Last spring, the Russian actress was induced to revive "Ghosts" for brief presentation in Milwaukee, Detroit and Ann Arbor. The sensation the play created resulted in the present tour, for which nearly an entirely new cast was assembled.

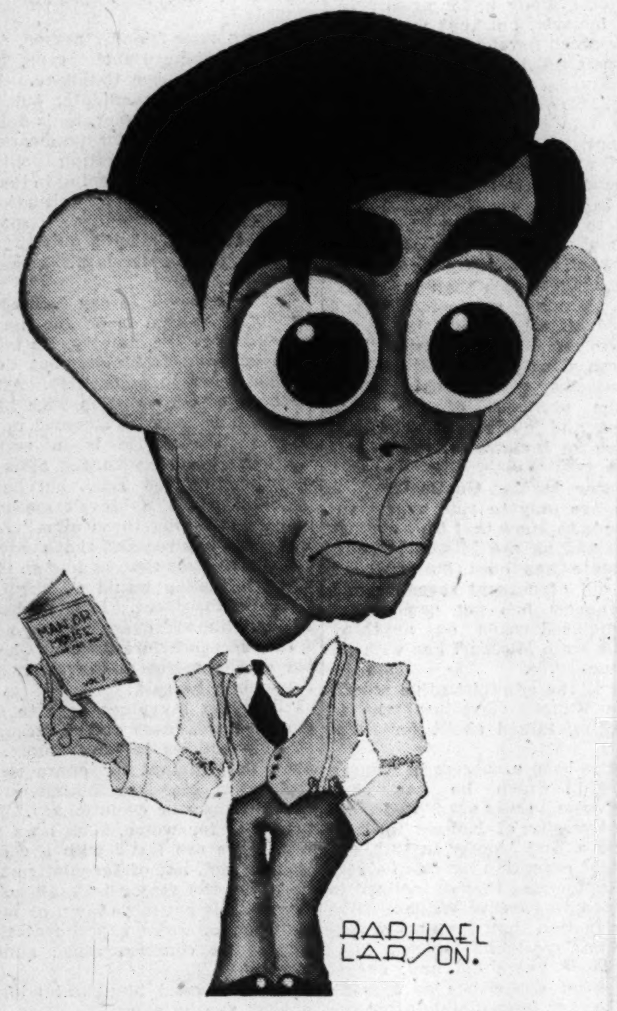
With Nazimova as Mrs. Alving, the other players are Harry Ellerbe as Oswald, McKay Morris as Pastor Manders, Beatrice De Neergaard as Regina and Raymond O'Brien as Engstrand. The script is a revised edition of William Archer's translation of the half-century old Ibsen masterpiece. Nazimova herself directed the play, through eight weeks of rehearsals.

"Journey To Mars" As Full-Color Film

With "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," an outdoor film in full color, nearing completion, plans have been announced for another full color picture from the same studio, Paramount. The new picture, entitled "The Journey to Mars," will be an adventure melodrama purporting to show life on the red planet. W. H. Christie of the Mount Wilson Observatory will furnish the scientific collaboration with the authors of the story.

Camera Tricks on "Good Earth."

Karl Freund, European cameraman who filmed "Metropolis," "Variety" and other notable pictures, will try out several new photographic experiments on "The Good Earth," which features Paul Muni and Luise Rainer. One device is a "corrector," within the camera lens, whereby complexions of the players may be photographed to simulate different make-ups. In "The Good Earth" most of the characters are Chinese.



RAPHAEL LARSON.

Eddie Cantor in "Strike Me Pink," at Loew's.

Reiner to Conduct Symphony Concerts; Three New Works

FRITZ REINER, well-known Hungarian conductor, will direct the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra at its concerts in the Municipal Auditorium Opera House on Friday afternoon and Saturday evening, replacing Vladimir Golschmann, who will be guest conductor of the Detroit Symphony this week. The principal work on Reiner's program is Brahms' Symphony No. 2 in D major.

Reiner, who succeeded the late Eugene Ysaye as conductor of the Cincinnati Symphony in 1922 and remained in that position for nine years, is now conductor of the Philadelphia Grand Opera and head of the orchestral and opera department of the Curtis Institute of Music at Philadelphia.

Born and educated in Budapest, where he also obtained his first experience as an assistant conductor of the Opera Comique, his later directorial posts were in Leibach, Yugoslavia; Dresden, Hamburg, London, Vienna, Rome and Barcelona. He returns annually to Europe for opera and concert hall engagements. In this country, he has held the baton for the New York Philharmonic, Philadelphia Symphony, Los Angeles, San Francisco and Rochester orchestras.

Three of his numbers here will be new to St. Louis. They are Handel's Overture in D major, an adaptation of two of the composer's works into one by Dr. Frank Wullner; the Ballet Suite from Andre Gretry's "Cephale et Procris," arranged by Feliz Mottl, and Debussy's "Danse," orchestrated by Ravel in 1923 for Serge Koussevitsky of the Boston Symphony. Also on the program are Debussy's Nocturne No. 2, known as "Fetes," and Berlioz's Overture, "Le Carnaval Romain."

On Feb. 7 and 8, Eugene List, 17-year-old American pianist, will be soloist with the orchestra, Golschmann conducting. The youthful artist will introduce Shostakowitch's piano concerto, which he played at its American premiere in Philadelphia in 1934.

This week's complete program:

Overture in D Major — — — — —Handel
Symphony No. 2, in D Major,
Op. 73 — — — — — — — —Brahms
I—Allegro non troppo
II—Adagio non troppo
III—Allegretto grazioso, quasi andantino
IV—Allegro con spirito
Ballet Suite from "Cephale et Procris" — — — — —Gretry-Mottl
I—Tambourin
II—Menuetto
III—Gigue
Nocturne No. 2 "Fetes" — — —Debussy
Danse (Orchestrated by Ravel) —Debussy
Overture "Le Carnaval Romain"
Op. 9 — — — — — — — —Berlioz

Eddy Describes Hollywood Voices.

Nelson Eddy, baritone who is co-starred in "Rose Marie," has worked out "word pictures" of the voices of some of his fellow Hollywood players. A few descriptions are: Jack Benny: A traveling salesman's "Good Morning!" Joan Crawford: An actress breakfasts at a cafeteria; Madge Evans: Graduation at Wellesley; Katharine Hepburn: The other world is heard at a seance; Myrna Loy: Young wife on the telephone; Clark Gable: Truck driver buying lingerie on Fifth avenue; Freddie Bartholomew: "Silent Night, Holy Night."

Russian Film at Auditorium.

"The Youth of Maxim," a Russian film, will be shown in Assembly Hall No. 1, Municipal Auditorium, this evening, as one of the features of a program sponsored by the St. Louis Lenin Memorial Committee.

"Petrified Forest" Premiere at Orpheum

"The Petrified Forest," Leslie Howard's picture version of the Broadway success in which he appeared last season, will have its world premiere at the Orpheum Theater next Thursday evening, amid the usual ceremonies attending such events. In the cast with Howard are Bette Davis, Humphrey Bogart, Charles Grapewin, Dick Foran, Genevieve Tobin, Eddie Acuff and Paul Harvey. Written by Robert Sherwood, "The Petrified Forest" tells of a disillusioned writer and his gallant sacrifice for a little waitress in an Arizona wayside restaurant.

Kirkwood Guild Play.

The Kirkwood Theater Guild will present Somerset Maugham's "Sacred Flame," at the American Legion Hall, 310 East Argonne drive, at 8:30 o'clock tomorrow and Tuesday evenings. The cast includes Lakme Perez, Josephine Farrington, Christine Hedges, Marjorie Eubank, Bill Berthold, Claude Ryan, Frank Eubank and John Lord.

Stuart Erwin, James Cagney and Pat O'Brien in "Ceiling Zero," at the Shubert.

Dolores del Rio, "The Widow From Monte Carlo," Orpheum.

Chamber Music At Sheldon Memorial

The second concert of the Ethical Society chamber music series will take place Thursday evening at Sheldon Memorial, 3648 Washington boulevard. A horn and clarinet quintet will be offered as a novelty feature, with the Max Steindel Ensemble augmented by James Stagliano, horn, and Rocco Zottorelle, clarinet, of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra. The program is:

Quartet in D major, Op. 76, No. 5—Haydn
Horn Quintet (K. 407) — — — —Mozart
Clarinet Quintet in B minor, Op. 115 Brahms

The St. Louis Chamber Music Society will give its next concert Sunday, Feb. 9, playing works of Haydn, Sibelius and Debussy.

Lillian Gish in "Old Maid."

Little Theater to Play 'Captain Brassbound's Conversion' Thursday

"Captain Brassbound's Conversion," the George Bernard Shaw comedy which the Little Theater has chosen for its repertory during the coming month, will open at the Union boulevard playhouse at 8:30 o'clock Thursday evening. Performances will be given on Friday and Saturday nights, with Merton Hodge's "The Wind and the Rain," another repertory play, opening a week from tomorrow night.

Seldom, if ever, performed in St. Louis in the past, "Captain Brassbound's Conversion" shows an English jurist and his sister at the mercy of the swashbuckling Captain, who has waited all his life to avenge a wrong done his mother. How he is "converted" by the Judge's sister, Lady Cicely, is told in a characteristically Shavian manner, with the merciless wit of the playwright directed at the English judicial system, militarism and the British Colonial policy as well.

Bruce MacFarlane has the title part, Rozene Johnson is Lady Cicely, Gordon Sommers the Sir Howard Hallam, John Dawson and Wieder Sievers have important roles. In the cast are also Warren Smith, William Scully, Barney Ofner, Haskell Schwartzberg, James Gillis, Rudolph Schlecter, Herbert MacCready and John Bainbridge. Gordon Carter designed the scenery, Mary Taussig the costumes.

Ed Lowry to Return With Own "Brevities" At Ambassador Friday

Ed Lowry, whose name used to be synonymous with stage shows at the Ambassador Theater by virtue of his long tenure of the office of master of ceremonies there, will return for a week's engagement beginning next Friday. He will bring in a show called "Ed Lowry's Brevities," with which he has been on tour.

Featured with him are Elaine Arden, recently of Earl Carroll's "Sketch Book," Helen Compton's Bryn Mawr Orchestra, two dance teams, Rita Royce and the Reese brothers, Joyce brothers and Sylvia Dean, and Lillian Dawson, who appeared with Lowry on the stage here.

Cornell Starts on "St. Joan."

Katharine Cornell has begun rehearsals for a revival of George Bernard Shaw's "St. Joan." Her cast includes Arthur Byron as the Inquisitor, Brian Aherne as Warwick, Maurice Evans as the Dauphin, Charles Waldron as the Archbishop of Rheims, Kent Smith as Dunois and John Cromwell as Brother Martin Ladvenu.

"The Three Stooges," on the stage at the Missouri. Regardless of appearances, they are: left to right: Larry, Moe and Curley.

Perils of the Airmail Make Sturdy Melodrama

"Ceiling Zero" at Shubert Recalls Thrills of "Night Flight"—Eddie Cantor Picture Tries Many Stunts, and Comes Through, at Loew's.

By COLVIN McPHERSON.

FOG, sleet and the other dangers which beset airmail flyers have again been employed to make a nerve-straining melodrama, in "Ceiling Zero" at the Shubert. Not since "Night Flight" has there been an aviation picture to seize so cleanly the imagination and bring into dramatic view the activity which is a Sunday afternoon's incident at the airport, or a line in the general weather story when schedules are canceled. For any who see "Ceiling Zero" must certainly revise the sympathy of an old saying to "Heaven help the poor airmail flyers on a night like this." "Ceiling Zero" was made from a New York thriller of last spring, with both the stage and screen plays by Lieutenant-Commander Frank Wead. The studio admits, since it would be no secret, anyway, that the language for the films was cleaned up considerably and that much of the descriptive dialogue became photography. Without having seen the play, I suspect that the deodorizing took a great deal from the story. Since the theme is built on James Cagney's unethical conquests in love, his harmless, even cute, little advances in "Ceiling Zero" seem hardly serious enough to justify tragedy, which is the wind-up. Yet this flabbiness of motive does not keep "Ceiling Zero" from having a thrilling fascination or from remaining firm until Jimmy's last plunge to earth. Many amusing, realistic and subtle lines are still there, with serious discussion of the new transportation that will inform many, and I suppose, misinform others. The title, incidentally, is defined as an aviators' term for "that time when fog, rain or snow fills the flyable air between the ceiling, or sky, and earth." The scene is at Newark Airport, with a few California foothills around, where Pat O'Brien is in charge of pilots, two of whom are the brilliant but unreliable Cagney, and methodical, efficient Stuart Erwin. June Travis is Cagney's newest glow and Isabel Jewell (the little seamstress in "A Tale of Two Cities") has a beautiful, bitter scene for her own. Acted with ability, directed with a care for details and developing a quivering excitement in some scenes, "Ceiling Zero" stands out among many shows. Dead-heading on the bill is "Her Master's Voice," from the stage comedy. Not enormously clever even when blessed by Broadway production, it is now just another movie.

STRIKE ME PINK. The new Eddie Cantor picture at Loew's can't miss, for it is loaded with enough merry shrapnel to hit funnybones all over the house. Cantor's character is that of the mouse who learns to be a man, bags all the outstanding public enemies in one grand coup and gets the girl, Sally Eilers. Most of the button-eyed comedian's efforts are directed to keeping slot machines out of the amusement park, of which he is manager. The entertainment is not unlike a day amid roller coasters and merry-go-rounds, ending up in pleasant exhaustion when every gag has been tried once and many more than once. Ethel Merman comes in as the "menace" used by the slot machine racketeers to trap Eddie and does some torrid night club numbers, one in the arty fashion of impressionism that cultured theater groups were getting off their chests a few years ago. Parkyakarkus, the neo-classic companion of the radio broadcasts, does a good turn as Eddie's bodyguard. Then there is an extended chase finish that might have been clipped from Chaplin, Lloyd or Buster Keaton comedies in the dear, dear days before Hollywood learned to speak with tongues. Loew's, too, has a fine review of the late King George's career, as do several of the other houses. The surprising feature is that the news-reel companies are able to go back to the beginning of the monarch's quarter-century reign and bring forth pictures in a fine state of preservation, as if the events had taken place only yesterday. The funeral procession of Edward VII, the coronation of George V, the historic Durbar in India for King George and Queen Mary, the friendly meeting of the sovereigns of Great Britain and Germany on the eve of the World War and war scenes themselves are some of those brought forth at the various theaters.

HITCH HIKE LADY. Deserving more than the short shrift which closes this column is "Hitch Hike Lady" at the Ambassador. Plainly a recollection of two Frank Capra successes, it sets Alison Skipworth off on a trip across the States, to see her son in San Quentin. Her casual acquaintances, Mae Clarke, Jimmy Ellison, Arthur Treacher and Warren Hymer, learn that she has a faulty knowledge of her son's circumstances, so turn to various benevolent acts to keep her in the dark. The result, by its inherent familiarities, ought not to succeed but it does. "The Invisible Ray" is the second picture. Boris Karloff discovers and plays around with a powerful new element which makes his face shine like that of an alarm clock in the night, and gives him a touch that will kill anybody. After he has committed several crimes, his mother tells him that what he has been doing is unethical and that burns him up, literally.

EAST OF JAVA. The Missouri comes back to the first-run lineup this week with "East of Java," a jungle melodrama chiefly notable for the fact that there was no faking for a scene where a lion playfully chews Mr. Charles Bickford's neck. That is history, and has even been seen in a news-reel at the Ambassador, when it occurred, as well as the public press. Coming at the finish of the film, however, it is no more exciting than earlier incidents where the lions devour other good Christians, and heathen. The scene is set on an island of the Indian Ocean, where Bickford, a fugitive Dillinger, is pretty much of a beast among his fellows, marooned by shipwreck. The Missouri's stage show, with "The Three Stooges," a dancing chorus and a better grade of variety acts, is plentifully amusing. "The Three Stooges," former satellites of Ted Healey in the films, exhibit the brand of humor which made them an attraction of themselves.

SEVEN KEYS TO BALDPATE. Getting ready to bring in "The Petrified Forest" next Thursday night, the Orpheum offers nothing startling now. "Seven Keys to Baldpate" is the old George M. Cohan thriller worked over in the patois of today's bad men. Gene Raymond, a novelist, goes up to a woodland inn to write a novel. The holders of the other six keys arrive and play games all night with him. "The Widow From Monte Carlo" is a feeble romance involving Dolores del Rio, Warren William and Colin Clive. Dolores, who is Latin, can't stand Clive, an unthawed Englishman to whom she is engaged. And Warren William, a gentleman who kisses without looking, proves to be exactly the person for her.

Informal Gathering in Italian Quarter Precedes Evening's Entertainment at Lorelei—Basketball Adds to Gaiety.

WATCH AND WARDERS neither watched nor waited for moderate weather to give their one big party of the winter, but braved the heavy snow and cold of Friday night to gather for "a small, informal meeting." Though decidedly informal, it was not small, for 50 or 60 members wound their way over snow-covered streets in the Italian quarter in search of the Club Savoy, arriving any time from 8 o'clock, the designated hour, to 10, for refreshments and dancing. They distributed themselves in groups in the taproom and at tables surrounding a dimly-lit dance floor, and sang or danced as the mood suggested.

The singers, whose repertoire varied from "In the Gloaming" to Sousa's marches and "The Road to Mandalay," competed with indifferent harmony against tunes from a corner radio and orchestral music for the dancers who tried the piccolino around a fountain.

As enthusiasm waned, coats were again donned, and cars, piled increasingly high with snow, slipped and slid to the Lorelei for roller skating which continued until after midnight. The uninitiated skaters had ample opportunity to try their luck and some became quite proficient before the evening was over. Seasoned roller veterans cracked the whip, crouched low in duck spins and skated in long lines that brushed novices into the rails at frequent intervals. They played basketball with an elusive pigskin that flew to the four corners of the room, and sometimes they played ball without a basket.

Coats and ties were removed as the skaters warmed up, and their erstwhile wearers fell, arms and legs flying in all directions, giggled and got up again, bruised but undaunted. One overall-clad figure, skates dangling from an upset, crawled on hands and knees to avoid the speeding figures, looking for a helpful attendant. There were no serious casualties, but one girl fell 20 times by actual count, and another has a black and blue shin. Rail sitters occupied themselves with soft drinks and making fun of their struggling companions until the bottles were knocked from their hands by passing racers.

The brief season of grand opera which the St. Louis Opera Company will give in the convention hall of the Municipal Auditorium will open April 14 with the appearance of Giovanni Martinelli in "Carmen," "Aida," or "La Traviata," to be decided later. The second performance will be "Die Walkure," in which Paul Althouse will sing. Lily Pons and Joseph Bentonelli will be starred in the next performance—"Lucia di Lammermoor."

The final performance on April 22 will be "La Gioconda" with Martinelli again as leading tenor. Rita de Leporte has arranged the choreography for the Dance of the Hours.

For the spring season of opera, the foyer of the hall will be redecorated and equipped with a lounge buffet and "snack bar," a feature suggested by Louis Sherry's bar at the Metropolitan Opera House this season.

Box-holders for the four performances already include: Mayor Dickmann, Walter W. Head, David L. Grey, Frank M. Mayfield, Morton J. May, John S. Leahy, Arthur B. Baer, Lynton T. Block, Mrs. Paul Brown and Albert M. Keller.

officers, organized the party hurriedly last week at informal meetings in the homes of members, so hurriedly that a new list of members, compiled from memory, was substituted for the lost original, and invitations were issued only Tuesday.

The result, however, made for an amusing evening. The old guard—young brides and bridegrooms whose weddings threatened havoc to the organization (it was originally intended for the unmarried) joined the crowd, as did second and third year girls, in addition to the debutantes. Many went immediately to the Lorelei instead of taking part in the early evening festivities.

The committee includes Mr. and Mrs. Richard S. Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Corley, Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Lamy, Miss Katherine Mahaffey, Warren Wagner, Glennon McDonald, Miss Frances Bates, David Wells, Thomas Dempsey, Frank Corley and Hugh Logan, all veterans of other Watch and Ward parties, and a few of this year's group, including Miss Kathleen Wallace and Miss Ann Shapleigh.

In addition to the committee, those who attended Friday night's function included Miss Frances Charlot, Miss Marion Ewing, Miss Jessie and Miss Nancy Connett, Miss Carroll West Jones, Miss Louise Goddard, Miss Jane Wells, Miss Katherine and Miss Elizabeth Myrl James, Miss Eugenie Evans, Miss Ruth Deibel, Miss Mary Josephine Wagner, Miss Sally Bridge, Miss Blanche Fischel, Miss Laura Baumgarten, Miss Eleanor Pendleton, Miss Edwina Nugent, Miss Joy Gross, Miss Irene Pettus, Miss Lila Marshall Childress and her guest, Miss Elise Sortwell, Miss Lindsdale Watson, also of Washington, Miss Marcella Berkley, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Holmes Gardner, Miss Elisabeth Freeman, Miss Grace White, James V. Dr. M. O. McNay Weds Miss Rosemary McNatt

ANNOUNCEMENTS were received in St. Louis yesterday of the marriage of Miss Rosemary McNatt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene J. McNatt, Aurora, Mo., and Dr. Miller Ost McNay, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde McNay, 6232 Northwood drive.

The ceremony was performed at noon, Wednesday, before an improvised altar of calla lilies, huckleberry and palms, in the home of the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Miller, of Aurora. The bride, in white satin, wore a veil on which were appliqued rose point medallions from the wedding veil of her maternal great-great-grandmother. She carried a shower bouquet of valley lilies and gardenias.

Mrs. Hord Wilson Hardin of St. Louis, sister of the bridegroom, was the bride's only attendant. She wore yellow chiffon with matching slippers and carried Joanna Hill roses. Miller Coleman, cousin of the bride, served Dr. McNay as best man.

Immediately after the ceremony, Dr. and Mrs. McNay left for New Orleans, where they will sail next Wednesday on a cruise to Central America. The bride was graduated from Wellesley College in June, after having spent three years at Science Hill School in Kentucky, a preparatory school for Wellesley.

Dr. McNay is an alumnus of Virginia Military Institute at Lexington, Va., and of the St. Louis University School of Medicine.

THIS NEW YORK

By LUCIUS BEEBE

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.

MOST of the town recalls Harry Bannister's production of "The Drunkard" a season or so ago, up at the American Music Hall, in Fifty-fifth street, as one of the most amiable lunacies ever perpetrated in the name of Thespis. One sat around at tables and drank beer during the show, and afterward every one sang old-time songs with Kathryne Parsons, the Bowery Nightingale, at the piano. Now Mr. Bannister, with John Krimsky as an accomplice, is reopening the Music Hall with what promises to be an entertainment of opium-dream proportions and an incidental melodrama called "Murder in the Red Barn."

The play involves a seduction, two murders by shooting, one by poisoning and an ultimate hanging, all of which Mr. Bannister plans to depict in a manner fit to raise the hair of each and every auditor. There also are to be vaudeville acts during the intermissions, just to make sure that nobody holds the thread of the play, and the place has wines and liquors to augment the refreshments of last year. There will be outrageously beautiful hussies to wait on the tables and participate in a midnight cancan.

In the cellar there is to be a "Beachcomber Bar," which will have all the best features of a saloon, a Sadie Thompson honkeytonk and Halloween at the madhouse. Every so often thunder rolls, lighting plays across the tropic scenery (three potted rubber plants) and the lights grow dim, while a deluge of rainwater from a garden hose lashes the background. The darkened interlude, Mr. Bannister explains, is so you can kiss your girl and is not an opportunity for picking pockets, puleese! If the citizens take to "Murder in the Red Barn" the way they did to "The Drunkard," Mr. Bannister will be buying Rolls Royces and lunching at the Colony practically any minute now.

Sooner or later your crimes come home to roost, and one of our inadvertant ones came and roosted all over us last week. Back in August, at the solicitation of various members of the Fire Island Chamber of Commerce, whose members include Lillian Hellman and John Chapin Mosher, we printed an account of the lyric joys of this secluded plaisance, hymning its pastoral ways and hailing its simple life. We hadn't been there and didn't know. Last week we made a purchase at Tiffany's glass shop (it was just what you think), and when we gave our name for its delivery the pretty girl who took our order turned on us like a trampled adder. "So," she hissed, leveling a finger of scorn approximately at our nose, "you're the wretch that sent me to Fire Island last summer! Sylvan retreat! Abode of Georgic simplicity, indeed! Well, let me tell you, you

Seventh Annual Triple "A" Ball

INVITATIONS headed by the Triple "A" insignia have been mailed to members of the St. Louis Amateur Athletic Association for the seventh annual ball sponsored by the organization Saturday, Feb. 1, at the Westwood Country Club. Dinner will be served at tables seating from 4 to 40 at 7 o'clock, and there will be bridge and dancing afterwards. Special ceremonies to honor the club champions in golf and tennis have been arranged.

The Dinner Dance Committee is headed by Dr. J. F. Ailworth as chairman, assisted by George Dieckman, J. F. Furlong, M. Scott Gardner, Dr. T. R. Hollingshead, A. F. O'Brien, Frank Reedy, R. J. Schanuel and F. C. Stuckman.

Sports committees of the club include golf, of which Charles Hatfield is chairman; tennis, headed by H. F. Boettler; handball, Dr. Ailworth, and volleyball, in charge of Carl Burst. Mrs. Arthur Fritschle is chairman of the Ladies' Reception Committee, which includes Mrs. Don Alnutt, Mrs. J. P. Altheide, Mrs. Harry Carp, Mrs. H. F. Hagemann, Mrs. Charles Hatfield, Mrs. Ben Richter, Mrs. J. A. Singmaster and Mrs. A. Wittcoff.

Exhibitors at Wednesday Club.

Mildred Bailey Carpenter and Fred Green Carpenter are the present exhibitors at the Wednesday Club, in the monthly series of painting displays being conducted this winter by the art section of the club. The paintings of Oscar Thalinger and Florence B. Ver Steeg will follow after Feb. 12.

THIS NEW YORK

By LUCIUS BEEBE

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.

MOST of the town recalls Harry Bannister's production of "The Drunkard" a season or so ago, up at the American Music Hall, in Fifty-fifth street, as one of the most amiable lunacies ever perpetrated in the name of Thespis. One sat around at tables and drank beer during the show, and afterward every one sang old-time songs with Kathryne Parsons, the Bowery Nightingale, at the piano. Now Mr. Bannister, with John Krimsky as an accomplice, is reopening the Music Hall with what promises to be an entertainment of opium-dream proportions and an incidental melodrama called "Murder in the Red Barn."

The play involves a seduction, two murders by shooting, one by poisoning and an ultimate hanging, all of which Mr. Bannister plans to depict in a manner fit to raise the hair of each and every auditor. There also are to be vaudeville acts during the intermissions, just to make sure that nobody holds the thread of the play, and the place has wines and liquors to augment the refreshments of last year. There will be outrageously beautiful hussies to wait on the tables and participate in a midnight cancan.

In the cellar there is to be a "Beachcomber Bar," which will have all the best features of a saloon, a Sadie Thompson honkey-tonk and Halloween at the madhouse. Every so often thunder rolls, lighting plays across the tropic scenery (three potted rubber plants) and the lights grow dim, while a deluge of rainwater from a garden hose lashes the background. The darkened interlude, Mr. Bannister explains, is so you can kiss your girl and is not an opportunity for picking pockets, puleese! If the citizens take to "Murder in the Red Barn" the way they did to "The Drunkard," Mr. Bannister will be buying Rolls Royces and lunching at the Colony practically any minute now.

Sooner or later your crimes come home to roost, and one of our inadvertant ones came and roosted all over us last week. Back in August, at the solicitation of various members of the Fire Island Chamber of Commerce, whose members include Lillian Hellman and John Chapin Mosher, we printed an account of the lyric joys of this secluded plaisance, hymning its pastoral ways and hailing its simple life. We hadn't been there and didn't know. Last week we made a purchase at Tiffany's glass shop (it was just what you think), and when we gave our name for its delivery the pretty girl who took our order turned on us like a trampled adder. "So," she hissed, leveling a finger of scorn approximately at our nose, "you're the wretch that sent me to Fire Island last summer! Sylvan retreat! Abode of Georgic simplicity, indeed! Well, let me tell you, you hireling of the Long Island Railway, I went to Fire Island at your recommendation. Some folk down there did one thing, and some another. But me, I didn't like any of them, and I took the next train home." This seemed to sum up the situation, and we backed hastily into Fifth avenue, where panic overcame us and we ran.

The birthday dinner party given Howard Barnes by his friends the other evening turned out to be one of the gastronomic events of the season, and even Frederick Wildman, president of Bellows and Company, and Frank Schoonmaker, who is in the wine business on his own, were impressed. Paul Moreau, the chef at the Madison, outdid himself and produced in succession caviar as big as pearls, a miraculous double consomme, a broiled redsnapper, an entire roast baby lamb, a mousse of foie gras with the salad, and a cheese souffle which would have blown away if there had been an electric fan in the room.

The wines included a Veuve Cliquot 520, England, a 1921 Steinberger Auslese, Kabinett Wein from the celebrated lot auctioned in Berlin in October, 1927; a magnum of Romanee-St. Vivant '23, and two perfect bottles of Cote Rotie, 1895, which, once it had been exposed to the air a while, proved to be a wine past all description. The souffle was accompanied by a bottle of Chateau Yquem, Creme de Tete '21, from Lur Saluces's private cellars, certainly the rarest and most masculine of Yquems, and afterward there was a bottle of Medford rum, of the 1875 bottling from the estate of the late General Lawrence, and a Bellows Centennaire Cognac which had been in the same bottle for more than a century.

Most of the guests never before had experienced a Medford rum, and Richard Watts Jr. admitted it had won the place in his heart hitherto held by Irish whisky, which is by way of being an achievement. Afterward, to descend from the sublime to the less pretentious, every one went over to Tim Costello's bar, in Third avenue, to look at the new Thurber art on the walls. Toward breakfast there was some falling down and rolling among the kittens and the cuspidors. We can't recall just who it was, but it may very well have been this department.

So you're passing the winter in Haiti? Well, then, don't imagine that just a sun helmet and tank suit are going to be sufficient wardrobe. Stephen Etner, the artist, started for Port au Prince last week and, at the advice of folk who have been in the Negro republic themselves, he took with him every stitch of formal clothing he owns. A top hat, a morning coat, evening tails and plenty of starched linen were included, for it appears that the Haitians are long on formality and that one can't get around at all without going en grande tenure. Reports from Ethiopia are in the same vein. The American war correspondents attached to the forces of Haile Selassie never thought of taking formal clothes with them into the war zone, with the result that there is only one evening tailcoat in the entire newspaper party. It gets worn four or five times every night, as nobody can get an audience with the Emperor without it.

ALONG THE BOULEVARD: They have hung a portrait of Oscar of the Waldorf in Peacock Alley . . . Most of the cast from "Jubilee" assemble nightly after the show at Martin's Bar, opposite the stage door in Forty-sixth street, and carry on like crazy . . . Bernie Hart, Moss Hart's brother, who is stage manager, is a sort of cheer leader and can make a pun out of any word you give him just like that . . . Stanley Walker is displaying a leg wound he says was given him by Alice Leone Moats, the beautiful knife thrower, in a careless moment . . . Pat Rafferty's red-wheeled hansom is in great demand for moonlight rides through the park these evenings . . . He's on the Plaza cab rank. . . , Frank Chapman, in town with Gladys Swarthout, on the way south from Hollywood, has been on a sartorial buying binge . . . He created, among other things, a champagne-colored tropical dinner packet, with notched lapels, to be worn with a madder brown waistcoat and midnight blue trousers. . . .

MOVING OF MARINE HOSPITAL APPROVED

$30,000 to Be Available for New Site, Congressman Cochran Reports.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
201-205 Kellogg Bldg.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25. — The Government has approved selection of a new site fo rthe Marine Hospital which is to replace the present structure, at 3640 Marine avenue, St. Louis, Representative John J. Cochran said he had been informed by Treasury officials today.

The procurement division of the Treasury is to make $30,000 available for the new site and bids will soon be called for, Cochran said. He has long advocated a new site for the hospital which was established originaly near the river front when it was used almost entirely by men injured in the steamboat service on the Mississippi.

The original plan was to rehabilitate the present structure at a cost of $575,000. Later Cochran gained approval of the United States Bureau of Public Health for a plan to rebuild the hospital entirely at a cost of $1,080,000. Treasury and public health officials concluded that this would be more economical in the long run.

Investigators from the health service and the supervising architect's office in the Treasury have completed an intensive study of the hospital in its present location and of prospective sites for the new one. Today's action is a result of this investigation, Cochran said.

Medical groups in St. Louis have opposed rehabilitation of the Government's hospital, urging that Government patients be placed in existing private hospitals. Because of the nature of the hospitalization required, this would not be possible, Cochran said.

Many of the patients at Marine Hospital are there for observation in connection with claims against the Government. They are drawn from the entire Ninth Civil Service District which takes in about a dozen states. Also, when facilities for hospitalization at Jefferson Barracks have been overcrowded, the veteran's administration has placed patients in the Marine Hospital.

Ultra Short Wave Station Permits Rush

Several Dozen Similar to Post-Dispatch's W9XPD Licensed—Many Applications to FCC.

By MARTIN CODEL.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.

UNOFFICIALLY but quite descriptively called "apex stations," because their antennas must be located at high points to gain the greatest possible radius of reception, an entirely new class of broadcasting stations is springing into experimental existence with the encouragement of the Federal Communications Commission and its engineers.

These "apex" transmitters, among which is W9XPD of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, are operating on what are officially called by FCC engineers the "very high" frequencies, but are popularly known as the ultra-short waves, beyond 30,000 kilocycles and shorter than 10 meters.

W9XPD was one of the very first of the "apex" stations to go on the air with a regular program service. Its first broadcast was on Oct. 30, 1935, and since then it has transmitted programs virtually all the time from 8 a. m. to midnight every day. Its high fidelity transmitter is of 100 watts power, and it uses the 31,600 kc. frequency, although licensed to use a number of others.

May Be Important.

Whether the several dozen experimental "apex" stations already authorized, and the many others being sought almost daily in FCC applications, presage the ultimate establishment on a commercial basis of a new class of highly localized broadcasting stations, no one can say with any degree of certainty now. But the ultimate hopes held out for them were clearly suggested in the FCC's own recent annual report, which stated:

"The very high frequencies above 30 megacycles have such characteristics that they will serve a small area, and then beyond this no interference will be caused to other stations. This is different from the propagation characteristics of the stations on the regular broadcast frequencies (550 to 1500 kilocycles) which have a moderate primary service area, but whose signals continue for hundreds of miles so that their interference range is enormous compared with the primary service area.

"Due to this characteristic of the very high frequencies, it has been considered that they offer a means of supplying strictly local service to any number of centers of population with frequency assignments duplicated at relatively low mileage separations. The individual stations would serve only a few miles, probably in the order of two to 10 miles, depending upon the power, location of the transmitter, its efficiency and the radio propagation characteristics of the surrounding terrain."

The Potentialities.

Although the foregoing statement would indicate that FCC engineers are confident of the local receptivity characteristics of the channels they have set aside in the "very high" frequency bands, they admit that they are really not so sure how these waves will act. The reason the FCC is being generous in assigning the waves to bona fide experimenters is that it wants to know more about how efficient such wave lengths actually can be made. About a score of experimenters, many of them newspapers now operating regular broadcasting stations, have obtained licenses within the last six months or so to work the ultra short waves.

Most of these experimenters are not only interested in the local service possibilities in the "very high" frequencies, which would seem to indicate that "room in the ether" may eventually be found for hundreds and perhaps thousands of new local broadcasting stations. They think their tests will point the way to ultimate technical efficacy of television transmission and reception in their areas.

This is a logical assumption since the "apex" group of waves is in the same part of the spectrum that is being reserved for visual broadcasting, regarded by competent observers as an inevitable development in American radio in the next half dozen years.

The "apex" group of wave lengths includes the 31,600, 35,600, 38,600 and 41,000 kilocycle bands. Also, when asked for, the extremely short waves in the 86,000-400,000 kilocycle bands, which are still regarded as radio's No Man's Land because so little is as yet known about them, are assigned.

Television Some Day.

Television, when it eventually emerges from the laboratories, will be assigned to the 42,000-56,000 and the 60,000-86,000 kilocycle bands, with its "sound tracks" carrying synchronized sound and music on immediately adjacent wave lengths. Thus, when television sets are on the market, since they will undoubtedly be combinations of "all wave" sets capable of tuning in both sight and sound on a wide range of wave lengths, the new "apex" stations will be within easy tuning range.

FCC engineers think that within a year or two they will know enough from the required reports greater degree of assurance. In

Picked by "NTG" as Radio's Prettiest

HARRIET HILLIARD. HELEN MARSHALL. DOROTHY LAMOUR.

Three NBC network singers who have been selected on the basis of their good looks by Nils T. Granlund ("NTG") as his choice for Miss Radio of 1936. "NTG" catalogues Miss Hilliard, who is the wife of Ozzie Nelson, the orchestra leader, as "the perfect show girl." She will have a part in the next Fred Astaire-Ginger Rogers movie. Miss Marshall sings on KSD's Sigmund Romberg Studio Party program. Miss Lamour, youngest of the three, is billed in network broadcasts as "NBC's Dreamer of Songs".

Toscanini Returns to Radio Today

Will Conduct N. Y. Philharmonic at 2 P. M.—Melchior Soloist at 9 P. M.—The Week's Concerts.

BEETHOVEN'S Sonata in D-major, the largo movement of which is regarded by many as one of the finest in piano literature, will be played by Alexander Semmler at 9:35 this morning on KMOX and the CBS net.

Dr. S. A. Lieberson's symphonic suite, "In a Winter Garden," will be played in the Radio City concert at 11:30 this morning on KWK. Viola Philo will sing an aria from "La Gioconda," and several songs.

Arturo Toscanini will be the conductor for this afternoon's New York Philharmonic concert, at 2 o'clock, on KMOX. He has programmed Cherubini's Symphony in D, a string quartet by Verdi, the overture to "Der Freischutz," Saint-Saens' "Danse Masabre," and "Daybreak" and Siegfried's Rhine Journey from "Die Gotterdammerung."

Four Scotch songs, including "Loch Lomond" and the moving "Land o' the Leal," will be sung by Cameron McLean, a Canadian baritone, with Victor Kolar's symphony orchestra at 8 p. m. today on KMOX. Orchestra pieces will include the overture to "Hansel and Gretel," the Bach Suite in B-minor for flute, Strauss' "Perpetuum Mobile and Liszt's "Les Preludes."

Lauritz Melchior, the Metropolitan Opera's Wagnerian tenor, will sing the Prize song from "Die Meistersinger," Sigmund's Love Song from "Die Walkure," Schubert's "Serenade" and songs by Hageman and Hildach, in the symphony concert at 9 p. m. today on WSM, WMAQ, WHO and WEAF. In addition, the orchestra will perform the Bach "Arioso," Debuss'ys "The Sunken Cathedral." the Infante "Ritmo," excerpts from Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Coo d'Or" and the overture to Verdi's opera, "Vespri Sicilienne.'

Among Richard Crook's songs at 7:30 p. m. tomorrow on KSD will be the "Una Furtiva Lagrima" aria from "Elisir d'Amore." Grace Moores' recital is scheduled as usual on KSD at 8:30 tomorrow night.

Guy Maier and Lee Pattison, pianists, will be featured in the Library of Congress concert at 3:30 p. m. Tuesday on KWK. Lawrence Tibbett plans to sing the "Credo" from "Otello," "Sylvia" and "The Two Grenadiers" at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday on KMOX.

Wednesday's concert schedule includes: Rochester Philharmonic orchestra at 2:15 p. m. on KWK; Frank Simon's band at 7:30 p. m. on KWK; Lily Pons, singing an aria from "The Barber of Seville," "Solvejg's Song," by Grieg, and several songs, at 8 p. m. on KMOX; John Charles Thomas, singing the Prologue to "Pagliacci" and songs at 9 p. m. on KWK.

Thursday will bring: a broadcast from La Scala, Milan, of part of Donizetti's "Lucia di Lammermoor," with Tito Schipa, the tenor, heading the cast, at 3 p. m. on the WEAF network; Frank Black's string symphony, at 7:15 p. m. on the WJZ net.

Friday, at 10 a. m., Walter Damrosch will conduct his weekly Music Appreciation concert on KSD.

Saturday's schedule lists a concert for children and young people by the New York Philharmonic Orchestra, Ernest Schelling conducting, at 10 a. m. on KMOX and the CBS net, and the Boston Symphony Orchestra at 7:15 p. m. on KWK and the WJZ net.

Lucrezia Bori, who was unable to sing with Victor Kolar's symphony orchestra recently, is announced as next Sunday night's soloist. Robert Casadesus, the French pianist, who played with the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra here Friday and last night, will be the soloist in Toscanini's New York Philharmonic Orchestra concert next Sunday, performing the Brahms Piano Concerto No. 2, in B-flat major. Richard Bonelli, the baritone, will sing in the 9 o'clock concert next Sunday night.

"Snoonie" and Her Dog

BARBARA BLAIR as "Snoonie" on Fred Waring's program. As listeners will recall, her dog's name also is "Snoonie".

HERE AND THERE ON THE AIR

BY J.L.S.

New Tenor On KSD Sunday Night Program.

ERNEST CHARLES, the young American tenor and composer, will be starred with Rachel Carlay on KSD's Manhattan Merry-Go-Round at 8 o'clock tonight. He will take the place of Georges Metaxa, who has gone to fill engagements in Florida. Charles has sung on Broadway in the Greenwich Village Follies, George White's "Scandals" and in vaudeville, and has written more than 50 songs. His first song tonight will be his own "Dis-Oui," which he wrote for Odette Myrtil.

Giovanni Martinelli, the Metropolitan Opera tenor, will sing in the hour-long program at 1 p. m. today on the WJZ net and KWK.

A broadcast from Berlin, to illustrate the type of jazz music that is permissible in Germany as opposed to the type that is not tolerated, will be carried by the WJZ network and KWK at 10:30 this morning.

Toyohiko Kagawa, the Japanese Christian who is a world figure in religion and is touring this country, will speak on Dr. S. Parkes Cadmans' Radio Pulpit, at 9 o'clock this morning on the WEAF network. WMAQ (670 kc.), WHO (1000), WSM (650) may carry his address.

Mrs. Phil Baker is to rejoin her husband today on his program.

Joseph Bentonelli, the tenor who recently made a success at the Metropolitan Opera through a turn of fortune, is to play himself in a Robert L. Ripley "Believe-It-or-Not" dramatization at 6:30 p. m. today on KWK.

Mary Livingston, recovered from the laryngitis which kept her off the air last week, is expected to be back with Jack Benny this evening.

Leslie Howard, off the air last Sunday because of the President's address, is to play the "lead" in "There Always Juliet," a romantic comedy by John Van Druten, the British playwright, at 1 p. m. today on KMOX.

R. C. Goshorn and Lester E. Cox have formed the Capitol Broadcasting Co. and have applied to the FCC for a 500-watt daytime station on 920 kilocycles in Jefferson City. Cox is operator of a station in Springfield, Mo.

Rumor has it that Lennie Hayton is being considered as orchestra leader for a CBS network series next month featuring Ed Wynn.

Rosa Ponselle In "Carmen" Next Saturday on KSD.

KSD listeners will be able next Saturday to judge for themselves Rosa Ponselle's conception of Carmen, as to which there has been considerable difference among critics. For she will sing the title role in a performance of the Bizet opera, which will be broadcast from the Metropolitan Opera, starting at 12:55. Charles Kullman will be the "Don Jose"; Hilda Burke, "Micaela"; Ezio Pinza will be the Toreador. Others in the cast will be Marek Windheim, Thelma Votipka, Angelo Bada, Louis d'Angelo, George Cehanovsky, and Helen Oelheim, known to the KSD audiences for her singing Thursday nights, who will be the "Frasquita."

Broadcast From Windsor Castle Today

Description to Come From Tower Begun in 11th Century by William the Conqueror — On British Stations at 5:30 P. M.

WINDSOR CASTLE, one of the palaces of the King, is the next "high spot" to figure in the BBC Empire programs. From a vantage point in the Norman Tower—the Castle was begun by William the Conqueror in the Eleventh Century—Eric Parker, a well-known London writer, will describe the scene. Parker was at school at Eton, which is in the neighborhood, so from an early age he had an opportunity of getting familiar with the castle. He was at Eton during Queen Victoria's jubilee celebrations in 1887, and listeners may expect to hear one or two stories of these. The talk from Windsor Castle will be broadcast today at 5:30 p. m., over GSC (9.58 meg.), GSB (9.51), GSL (6.11) or GSA (6.05).

Besides the technical "Letterbox" which the German shortwave station maintains to care for technical questions about receiving on short waves, a new series of broadcasts has been instituted under the title, "Hour of the short wave amateur." The first is set for 5 p. m., on Jan. 28. The purpose is to invite amateurs to go on the air and discuss their work and experiences.

JVM and JVN relaying the Tokio program are on the air every Monday and Thursday from 3 to 4 p. m., E.S.T. Their assignments are 10.74 and 10.66 meg. respectively. These stations are also on the air from 12:50 to 6:40 a. m. daily and at night are sometimes joined by JVT, 6.75 meg.

With the nations spending millions on battleships, what are they spending for peace? asks W1XAL, Boston, in announcing a talk by Sir Herbert Ames, former treasurer of the League of Nations, at 4:45 p. m. tomorrow.

Senator Nicola Pende of the Royal University of Rome, at 5 p. m., Jan. 27, will talk over 2RO Rome, on "New Theories on Food and Living."

School Broadcast Based on Early History of St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS will be the scene tomorrow of the American School of the Air broadcast at 1:30 p. m. on the CBS network and KMOX. Episodes to be dramatized in the broadcast include the establishing of a trading post to Auguste Chouteau on the site of St. Louis, the making of the city the capital of upper Louisiana, the change from French to American status with the Louisiana Purchase, the formal incorporation, the first arrival of a steamboat on the Mississippi River, and the chartering of St. Louis as a city.

Lionel Barrymore will be starred in "Grumpy," in the Radio Theater tomorrow night. The title role was created by Cyril Maude, who played it on Broadway and in the movies.

Bruna Castagna, the contralto, who sang at La Scala, Milan, and in this country in concert and with the larger symphony orchestras this past summer, has been engaged for a series of evening concerts on the CBS network, starting early next month.

Ted Royal's orchestra, new to listeners, will have a period on the CBS net at 11:30 p. m. Thursdays.

Sammy Kaye's orchestra will dedicate to members of the Delta Tau Delta fraternity the songs, "Delta Shelter" and "My Delta Queen," in its broadcast at 11:30 p. m. today on KSD and the WEAF network.

Broadcast From Windsor Castle Today

Description to Come From Tower Begun in 11th Century by William the Conqueror — On British Stations at 5:30 P. M.

WINDSOR CASTLE, one of the palaces of the King, is the next "high spot" to figure in the BBC Empire programs. From a vantage point in the Norman Tower—the Castle was begun by William the Conqueror in the Eleventh Century—Eric Parker, a well-known London writer, will describe the scene. Parker was at school at Eton, which is in the neighborhood, so from an early age he had an opportunity of getting familiar with the castle. He was at Eton during Queen Victoria's jubilee celebrations in 1887, and listeners may expect to hear one or two stories of these. Ultra Short Wave Station Permits Rush the meantime, the experimenters are bearing the expense of their tests with a twofold purpose in mind: (1) to learn about the characteristics of these wave lengths so as to be prepared either for local ultra-short wave broadcasting or for television, or both; (2) to be rated as "pioneers" in the field and thus to win priority rights for themselves if and when the "very high" frequencies become commercially valuable.

The list of authorized experimenters, curiously enough, so far includes, with few exceptions, companies already in the broadcasting field, nearly half of them newspapers, which are conducting their experiments largely during the regular operation of their broadcasting stations. Thus, for example, W9XPD of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, W9XAZ of the Milwaukee Journal and W8XH of the Buffalo Evening News are broadcasting the regular programs of their stations (KSD, WTMJ and WBEN, respectively) on their ultra-wave lengths at the same time that they are broadcasting over their normal wave lengths.

The only newspaper not now in the broadcasting field which has an "apex" assignment is the St. Louis Star-Times, but it is an FCC applicant for a new station in that city. Among others to whom "apex" permits have been granted, some of whom have yet to install their transmitters, are:

The National Broadcasting Co., Westinghouse Co., Yankee Network, Detroit News, Oklahoma Daily Oklahoman, Norfolk Virginian-Pilot, Memphis Commercial Appeal and Superior (Wis.) Telegram—all operators of broadcasting stations; also the non-newspaper operators of Stations WOR, Newark; KFI and KECA, Los Angeles; KMBC, Kansas City; WCAO, Baltimore; WFBR, Baltimore; WCCO, Minneapolis; KJBS, San Francisco; WHAM, Rochester; WDOD, Chattanooga, Tenn.; WCAC, Connecticut State College, Storrs, Conn.; WHEF, Kosciusko, Miss.

It is significant that the operators of WOR, KFI-KECA, WFBR, WTMJ and the Yankee Network are also licensed to utilize their "apex" stations for experiments in facsimile transmission and reception.

Ultra Short Waves Used as Aid in Weather Forecasting.

USE of short wave radio signals to forecast the weather was described recently by Prof. Charles F. Brooks, director of the Blue Hill Meteorological Observatory of Harvard University. The plan, termed new by the professor, is "in the experimental stage," but is predicated on experiments between various New England points.

"It was found a year ago," he said, "that ultra-high frequency radio signals from Blue Hill, received at Hartford, underwent variations in strength which almost matched the changes in temperature between the surface and a height of 600 feet." Such variations, he added, are used now for rough weather forecasting.

Trade Notes

7,000,000 Philco Radio Sets Marketed.

The Artophone Corporation, Philco distributor, announces that Philco has now passed the 7,000,000 mark in the production of Philco radio sets.

Philco now has more than 11,000 employes in its plant in Philadelphia, it was stated.

New Firm Becomes Crosley Radio Distributer.

The Stanley Distributing Co. has been organized to distribute Crosley radio sets in the St. Louis district. It is headed by Sam Hollender, who recently sold his interest in the Electric Lamp & Supply Co., of which he was vice-president. The firm has opened headquarters at 1904 Washington boulevard.

Mortimer Linderman is in charge of the metropolitan district for the company, and Howard Klein in Eastern Missouri.

Stockholm Now District Manager for RCA-Victor.

H. T. Stockholm, widely known radio executive, has been made district manager for R. C. A.-Victor of the territory including St. Louis. He succeeds Norman Bass, who for 10 years had his headquarters here. Bass has been transferred to Cincinnati, O.

Newest Sparton Sets Shown to Dealers.

Sparton radio sets that have been added to the line in the past few weeks were shown to dealers at a meeting held Thursday by the Mayflower Sales Co., distributer, for which Gene Strauss is radio division manager.

Among the newer Spartons are the high fidelity Triolian types designed by Walter Dorwin Teague, the noted industrial style designer. These models have three speakers and a special audio system for wide range tone coverage. One is in an Adam Brown mahogany console, with horizontal speaker openings and all trimmings in 14-carat gold.

A striking table model, called the "Nocturne," also is by Teague, its front consisting of a circle of glass in midnight blue or old rose set in a satin chromium frame.

The Sparton line includes sets with five to 15 tubes, all-wave coverage and a number of special features for easy and accurate tuning.

Program Changes, Features Planned On Station KSD.

JAC SCHOLL'S orchestra, playing in St. Louis, may be heard on KSD at 11 o'clock nights daily except Sunday.

A new "Truth Barlow" program on KSD is scheduled for 15 minutes—at 6:15 p. m. Monday and Friday, and at 9 p. m. Wednesday.

The last Sunday afternoon Vox Pop interviews program will be that at 1:30 this afternoon. Beginning this week, this program will shift to the 8 o'clock period Tuesday nights, replacing the Nils Granlund chorus girls' revue.

KSD's Saturday night show that has featured the "Jumbo" circus spectacle broadcasts from the Hippodrome has been revised into a musical show, with Jimmy Durante out of the cast. Gloria Grafton, Donald Novis, Eddy Duchin and his orchestra, Adolph Deutsch and his orchestra and Charles Henderson's singers are to be retained.

Jacob Dob, a Swiss, will be Phillips Lord's "three-minute thrill guest" Tuesday night, and will relate his experiences as a prisoner impressed into a work gang in the lumber district of the Gran Chaco in South America where Paraguay and Bolivia have been at war.

Tennessee, "the song stylist," is scheduled again today on KSD, at 5:45 p. m., with the trio of piano, guitar and bass.

Kitty Gordon, a Victor Herbert operetta prima donna, will sing on Ted Hammerstein's program tomorrow night.

Another child actor—4-year-old, blonde Ann Shelley—will join Dickie Svihus in the cast of KSD's Wednesday night One Man's Family. She will play "Joan," tiny daughter of Claudia's "first marriage to Johnny Roberts. She is the only child of a San Francisco family and was "discovered" in a private school by Carleton E. Morse, author-producer of the serial.

Studio Gossip

VIRGINIA RAE, who sings with Rubinoff Saturday nights on KSD, has been invited by Henry L. Doherty, chairman of the President's Birthday Ball Committee, to serve as executive member of the country-wide committee which will arrange for celebrations Thursday, Jan. 30, in aid of infantile paralysis sufferers.

Lou Raderman, the violinist, is the Ken Woods who leads the orchestra in the new CBS net series Monday nights.

Tex O'Reilly, the soldier of fortune who once had his own program on the networks, may be found on WLW Tuesday night at 10 o'clock when he is to tell of the origin of "La Cucaracha," the song that became famous through association with the fortunes of Pancho Villa. O'Reilly was fighting either with the Federals or the rebels throughout the Villa regime.

Bill Baar, who is the one-man radio show, "Grandpa Burton," broadcast at 3:45 Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays on the WEAF net, plans to sail Wednesday on a tramp steamer for a three-week cruise in the West Indies, hoping to gather a grist of "tall tales."

Gladys Swarthout and her husband, Frank Chapman, the baritone, plan to depart Jan. 30 for a vacation at Nassau until Feb. 8. On her return she will go on a concert tour, and expects to be back at the Metropolitan Opera March 3. Her second movie, "Give Us This Night," was made with Jan Kiepura, the tenor.

King Edward VIII Tutored Well in Boyhood; Taught To Enjoy Hardest Tasks

Historian Van Loon Says Young Prince, Like the Late George V, Learned to Be a Good Listener.

This is the fourth of a series of ten articles on King Edward VIII and the royal family of Great Britain.

By HENDRIK WILLEM VAN LOON.

(Copyright, 1936.)

CHAPTER IV.

THE sainted widow of Windsor would hardly have approved what I wrote yesterday. She was the Queen, Victoria. She had been brought up to think of herself as the Queen in the largest capital letters of the whole alphabet.

As a matter of fact, whenever she wrote to her Ministers she never used the first person singular. She invariably began her letters "The Queen thinks" or "The Queen noes not approve," thereby reducing her Ministers to so many pieces of animated office furniture.

All this changed slightly when she married. Poor Albert, with his melting eyes and his lovely side-whiskers (the old Queen would have underlined these last three words, for that was her way of indicating emphasis) was so hopelessly German and so even more incurably un-English that contemporary historians were less than fair to him.

But now that we are beginning to see him in his true perspective, we feel quite differently about this shy and formal young man.

Teutonic Ideas of Duty.

Together with his preference for sentimental German poetry, he also imported some highly useful Teutonic notions about certain ideals of self-discipline for those whom Divine Providence had placed in the seats of the mighty.

This eternal hammering upon "duty" had, of course, the usual effect upon his immediate offspring; and the present King's grandfather, the late Edward VII, was hardly a paragon of all those domestic virtues which had been so rigorously practiced and preached at the court of his dear mamma, who even when he was already past 60 treated him as if he were a boy of 12.

For a moment, there was the inevitable reaction. But that reaction never passed beyond certain very definite bounds because the late King Edward VII was, above all things, a man of eminent common sense and genuinely interested not merely in his fellow women but also in his fellow men. And if there is one thing which history shows, it is this: that subjects will forgive their rulers almost anything provided they sense a tie of a common humanity between the man whose head wears a crown and in those who pay for the upkeep of that expensive but necessary luxury.

Interest in Grandchildren.

And then, as so often happens in families, in yours and mine as well as in those of royalty, there came a whole raft of grandchildren, and the grandmother took a much more direct interest in her grandchildren than she had ever done in her own offspring.

Somehow or other, one always seems able to get a much clearer and unbiased view of one's grandchildren than of one's own children, and so it happened that the practical results of the rigorous educational system of Victoria and Albert did not really begin to show itself in the flesh until after the birth of the late King George V.

And as grandmother, Victoria lived on and on and on; she was able to extend her care also over the great-grandchildren. Probably the first definite recollections of the present King and his brothers and sisters are those of great-grandmamma, who was a very different personage from easy-going and pleasantly spoken grandpapa, who was a mighty important and imposing personage, nevertheless.

And these earliest memories may have been all the more vivid because it was at great-grandmother's funeral that Edward VIII for the first time took part in an official ceremony of state. That happened in January of 1901 and the little Prince was not quite seven when he sat beside his mother in one of the first carriages that followed the old lady of Windsor on her last ride through the silent streets of her loyal capital.

Also present among the mourners were the Emperor of Germany, on a fine white horse, and the Czar of Russia (on not quite so fine or so white a horse), and practically all the other crowned heads of Europe.

Today, Edward VIII holds sway over one-fourth of the earth. The others are gone. I don't quite know why. It can't be because they had no grandmothers or great-grandmothers, for the Emperor of Germany also called Queen Victoria his "liebe grossmutter."

Excellent Listeners.

But perhaps he did not listen, and that is one of the things the present King and his father, both of them, did—enormously well. They were excellent listeners. They were trained to be, and that brings us to His Majesty's earliest childhood.

But when it comes to King Edward's babyhood days, I shall be very brief. In the first place, in writing biography, I have found it a very satisfactory rule always to imagine that the person under discussion might come into the room at any moment; that he or she might look over my shoulder and might then remark casually, "Oh, is that so?" or words to that effect.

That does not mean that one must always be pleasant when the truth compels you to speak otherwise. But it will save one from committing certain errors, and from indulging in certain plausible exaggerations which enter so very easily into any discussion about "the third person absent."

And, in the second place, a careful study of the records of the past have definitely convinced me that all royal personages, from the days of Alexander the Great until our own times, have been exactly alike in their precocious brilliancy of mind, in their merry quips at the expense of their parents, grandparents, brothers, sisters, aunts and nursery governesses; and that all of them—without a single exception—had no other wish at the age of four than to wear the uniform of a Corporal of the Guards, and to beat a drum while 10 regiments of cuirassiers stood at attention.

Those of you who are particularly interested in such domestic details and who can find time off from looking at the daily pictures of the quintuplets will find a rich assortment of such quaint and whimsical details in the books that have undoubtedly been written upon the subjects of His Majesty's babyhood.

Child Taken Firmly in Hand.

I, therefore, refrain from these pleasant tidbits of how "one day when His Highness was two years old, an old servant came to the lodge keeper's door just as His Highness, dressed in his pretty satin ruffles, came home from a romp with his pet poodle, Eudoxia, a gift of the Czar of Russia," and I shall at once proceed to the point where this small child, who until then had been very much like your child or my child, was firmly taken in hand and was forcibly dragged to the altar of patriotism and was there solemnly dedicated to a life of duty and service.

This, again, may sound a bit bombastic to those who get their notions about royalty from the second act of the "Merry Widow," and who still firmly believe that the existence of a respectable European monarch is a round of pleasure, from caviar to caviar, from shooting party to shooting party, from the smiles of one lovely lady to the next, etc., etc.

I would like to ask them whether they have ever seen the daily curriculum of the little boy who afterward, as the Emperor Francis Joseph, was to play such an important role in history.

Why, a man working as a stoker on an old-fashioned coal-burner would a thousand times rather stick to that job (which surely is no sinecure) than spend a single month imitating that unfortunate scion of the house of Hapsburg-Lorraine, who began his day at seven with an hour of Hungarian and ended it at 10, reciting the irregular Slovak verbs.

No Language Troubles.

In the case of the present King Edward, it was not quite so bad, as he did not have to learn all the psky languages in which an Austrian ruler was supposed to address his multifarious subjects. But even so, it was bad enough, as you may judge for yourself.

It was still that memorable year, 1901, when Great-grandmamma Victoria, after a reign of 64 years (quite a long stretch of time, when you remember that George Washington only lived to be sixty-seven) had gone forth to be reunited to her beloved Albert.

Grandfather Edward VII was now King of England, and papa had succeeded him as Prince of Wales, when papa's elder brother died.

Little Prince Edward, therefore, had been moved up one peg on the ladder of succession. He, too, would soon be Prince of Wales, and it was fairly certain that some day he would be called to the throne of England, for grandpapa was already 60 years old and not in very good health.

The Care of a Man.

The day of the nursery governesses, therefore, was over. It was time to entrust the future monarch to the more uncompromising care of a man. That sounds all very easy, but when you remember the difficulties you experienced yourself whenever you have to make the choice of a school for your own little Eddie, or merely a summer-camp, you can understand.

It was hard to find just the right person to assure this Princeling a reasonably happy childhood without either breaking his spirit or turning him into a martinet, a highly trained automaton, who might be letter-perfect in the craft of kingship, but who at the same time had lost all genuine touch with the rest of humanity.

However, after a very careful search and endless inquiries, the ideal candidate seems to have been found in the person of the head of a small private school, a certain Mr. Hansell.

The luscious flower of publicity does not greatly flourish around the courts of Europe except in the form of the well-known weed called "gossip." Such men as a Prince's preceptor usually manage to keep themselves carefully hidden from the public view. They derive their satisfaction from the knowledge that by shaping the character of the man who will some day shape the destinies of the empire, they have also had a more or less direct share in the actual shaping of that empire. And, as a rule, they seem to ask for very little else.

Little Known of Tutor.

Even to the more intimate biographers of King Edward VIII, the figure of H. P. Hansell is a very hazy one. They knew that this Mr. Hansell had been the private tutor of Prince Arthur of Connaught, a nephew of King Edward VII, and that he had done a very good job.

They knew that shortly after the war he suffered a physical disability (a stroke) which forced him to withdraw completely from active life. For the rest they can only judge him by the visible and audible product of his educational endeavors.

During 12 years this lanky giant, a graduate of that same University of Oxford which the King was to attend just before the outbreak of the great war, was the guide, philosopher and friend of the young Prince.

He seems to have been ideally suited for his task. For not even the most severe critics of the royal pupil have ever denied his strong sense of duty, his personal courage, and his cheerfulness of spirit, even then when the job that confronted him must have been as pleasant as filling out one's income tax blank or anticipating a personal encounter (of a non-social nature) with one's dentist.

In England, one rarely hears the forbidding word "duty." The expression of "the thing to do" has taken its place. Mr. Hansell apparently knew how to make "the thing to do" so palatable that quite unconsciously it became part of the Prince's second nature.

Some day the world at large may owe this simple school-master a very sincere debt of gratitude.

ACCIDENT VERDICT IN CASE OF JANITOR FOUND DEAD

Carbon Monoxide From Heater in Basement Fatal to Alfred E. Blake, 69.

Alfred E. Blake, 69 years old, janitor in the abandoned Xenia Theological Seminary Building at 6834 Washington avenue, University City, was found dead in the basement there yesterday morning.

A Coroner's verdict of accidental death from carbon monoxide was returned. Police reported the carbon monoxide was produced by a defective gas heater. Blake's blind left eye had been cut and there were stains outside the room and on the floor beside his glasses. Police thought he had stumbled against the wall.

Efforts were made to find Blake's wife, named as beneficiary in an accident insurance policy found in his clothing.

FIRST DRIVER'S LICENSE REVOCATION IN CITY

Auto of Carl Hall, 19, Hit and Injured Man Standing in Safety Zone.

The first revocation of a driver's license by Police Judge Joseph Simpson was ordered yesterday in the case of Carl Hall, 19 years old, 2010 Branch street, charged with careless driving, passing through a safety zone and operating with defective brakes.

Hall, whose case was continued at an earlier hearing because he had no driver's license, appeared yesterday with the license, which the court then revoked for the two-year period for which it was issued.

Hall received no other penalty, but was warned that if arrested in the future he would be subject to a fine of $25 to $500 for driving without a license.

He was arrested Nov. 30 at Grand boulevard and Chouteau avenue after he struck and injured a man in a safety zone there. A policeman testified he swerved into the zone apparently to avoid striking another machine after his brakes failed to hold.

FUNERAL OF SERGT. ISING TO BE TUESDAY MORNING

Member of Police Force for 26 Years; Helped Capture Marty Durkin 10 Years Ago.

Funeral services for Police Sergeant Leonard B. Ising, member of the force for 26 years, will be held Tuesday at 8:30 a. m. at St. Wenceslaus' Catholic Church, 3034 Oregon avenue, with interment in SS. Peter and Paul's Cemetery. He died Friday at St. Anthony's Hospital following a stomach operation. He was 57 years old.

Sergt. Ising was in the Detective Bureau during most of his service. In December, 1933, he was demoted from a Detective-Lieutenant to a uniformed Sergeant in the political shakeup which followed appointment of a Democratic Board of Police Commissioners.

A powerfully built man, he was at one time instructor in wrestling and jiu jitsu for the Police Department. Ten years ago, when Marty Durkin, Chicago murderer, was seized on a train at Webster Groves, it was Ising who grabbed and held him so that he could not get to his weapons.

Sergt. Ising is survived by his wife, three sons and a daughter. The family residence is at 3222 Ohio avenue.

Talk on Social Security Laws.

Dr. Harry J. O'Neill, head of the economics department of St. Louis University, will talk on "Social Security Legislation" at a meeting of the Lutheran Men's Club at their Assembly Hall, Twenty-second and Angelica streets, Tuesday evening.

ST. LOUIS TO PIONEER IN EXPLORER SCOUTING

Chosen by National Officers for Trial of Activities for Older Boys.

The St. Louis Boy Scout council has been designated by national officers as the first council in the country for trial of the Explorer Scout activities, part of the Senior Scouting program for boys after they become 15 years old.

Similar pioneer work was assigned the local organization in 1930 when it was asked to initiate Cubbing, the section of the scout movement designed for boys from 9 to 12 years old, before they are eligible to pass the first scout tests.

Several troops of Rover scouts, another section of Senior Scouting, have been formed in St. Louis during the past month. The Rovers are boys 17 years of age or older who band together for community service enterprises. Another section is Sea Scouting, an established part of the movement here and elsewhere for several years.

Development of special interests, usually ones aroused by study of the various merit badges, is the aim of the Explorer division. If a number of the older boys interested in the same art, craft, academic subject, or hobby desire, they may form an Explorer troop. They may also work individually if they wish, retaining their association with the troop to which they have belonged during their scout careers.

Roy de Staebler, 12 Windemere place, will direct the Explorer section for the council. A committee of 10 scout masters will meet with him at his home Tuesday, at 8 p. m., for discussion of the program.

The first scout to register for the Senior Scouting activities here was Paul Cottin, 4320A North Twentieth street. A Star Scout, he is a junior assistant scoutmaster of Troop 12, Eliot School.

Division commissioners of North District will meet Tuesday noon at Hotel De Soto to plan a meeting of scout leaders in the district and their families to be held Feb. 11 at Friedens Evangelical Church, 3959 North Nineteenth street.

The Press Club will meet at 10 a. m., Saturday, in the Men's Club of the Bishop Tuttle Memorial.

Troop 8, Webster Groves, will conduct an investiture ceremony for Tenderfoot Scouts at the first court of honor of the Cairo, Ill. council Feb. 13.

Troop 115, St. Mary Magdalen Church, will entertain the parents of its members at dinner Wednesday. The troop will receive its standard troop award during the program following dinner.

Committeemen and officers of Troop 249, Mason School, decided last week to proceed with reconstruction of the troop camp at Spring Lake. It will be ready for use next summer.

Troop 161, formerly sponsored by Goodwill Industries, has been reorganized under the sponsorship of the Missouri Welfare League.

Troop 5, Robinson School, Kirkwood, observed its thirteenth anniversary with a dinner and court of honor at the school last night. A Life Scout badge was awarded to Carl Timpe, six Star badges were presented, and other awards, including 33 merit badges, were made.

Ford Coffman will receive an Eagle Scout insignia when his troop, Webster Groves 14, holds an award ceremony Feb. 5. The troop will celebrate its twelfth anniversary on that day.

GIRL SCOUTS.

Leaders of Brownie packs will receive instruction in songs, games, shadowcraft and puppetry in a training course to be held during February at St. John's Methodist Episcopal Church, from 7:30 to 9:30 on Monday evenings.

Members of Troop 83, an extension troop at the Missouri School for the Blind, have been busy recently with cooking, first aid and swimming activities. Both patrols have made confections to sell to other boys and girls at the school to raise money for troop enterprises.

A new undertaking of the scouts in Troop 83 is the development of a "foreign museum," composed of carved articles collected by friends of the girls in many parts of the world.

Three new troops will be organized soon in the County district. The troop at Price School, Clayton and Price roads, will be headed by Miss Adele Kroenlein and Mrs. W. R. Mayne. Miss Patricia DuVal has been named captain of the new unit at St. Peter's Catholic School, Kirkwood. The troop to be created at Central School, Wellston, will have Miss Ruth Dalton for leader.

Another of the series of nature talks by Miss Clara Heising will be given at 7:30 p. m., Feb. 6, at Westminster Presbyterian Church.

Bank Clerk Dies on Street Car.

William N. Naudain, 78 years old, died yesterday, apparently of heart disease, on a Manchester street car while he was on his way to the St. Louis Union Trust Co., where he was employed as a clerk, from his home at 908 Greeley avenue, Webster Groves. Police removed his body from the car to Croghan Undertaking Co., 7146 Manchester avenue.

THE three pictures shown here are of great scientific interest. They have also, it has been found, a special fascination for the layman. They show details too small or too distant to be seen by the human eye. That doesn't mean that they can be seen through microscopes or telescopes either. It means that the human eye will never look at them even that directly. Only the miraculous eye of the camera, which can stare unwinking for hours at a time, will—in all probability—ever be able to fix such images so that a man can see them and get some pictorial notion of how things look in outer space or in the equally obscure systems of the atoms which compose materials out of which man and the material objects with which he familiarly lives, are made. The pictorial notions may possibly give those who take them in a clearer idea of the immensity and complexity of the universe.

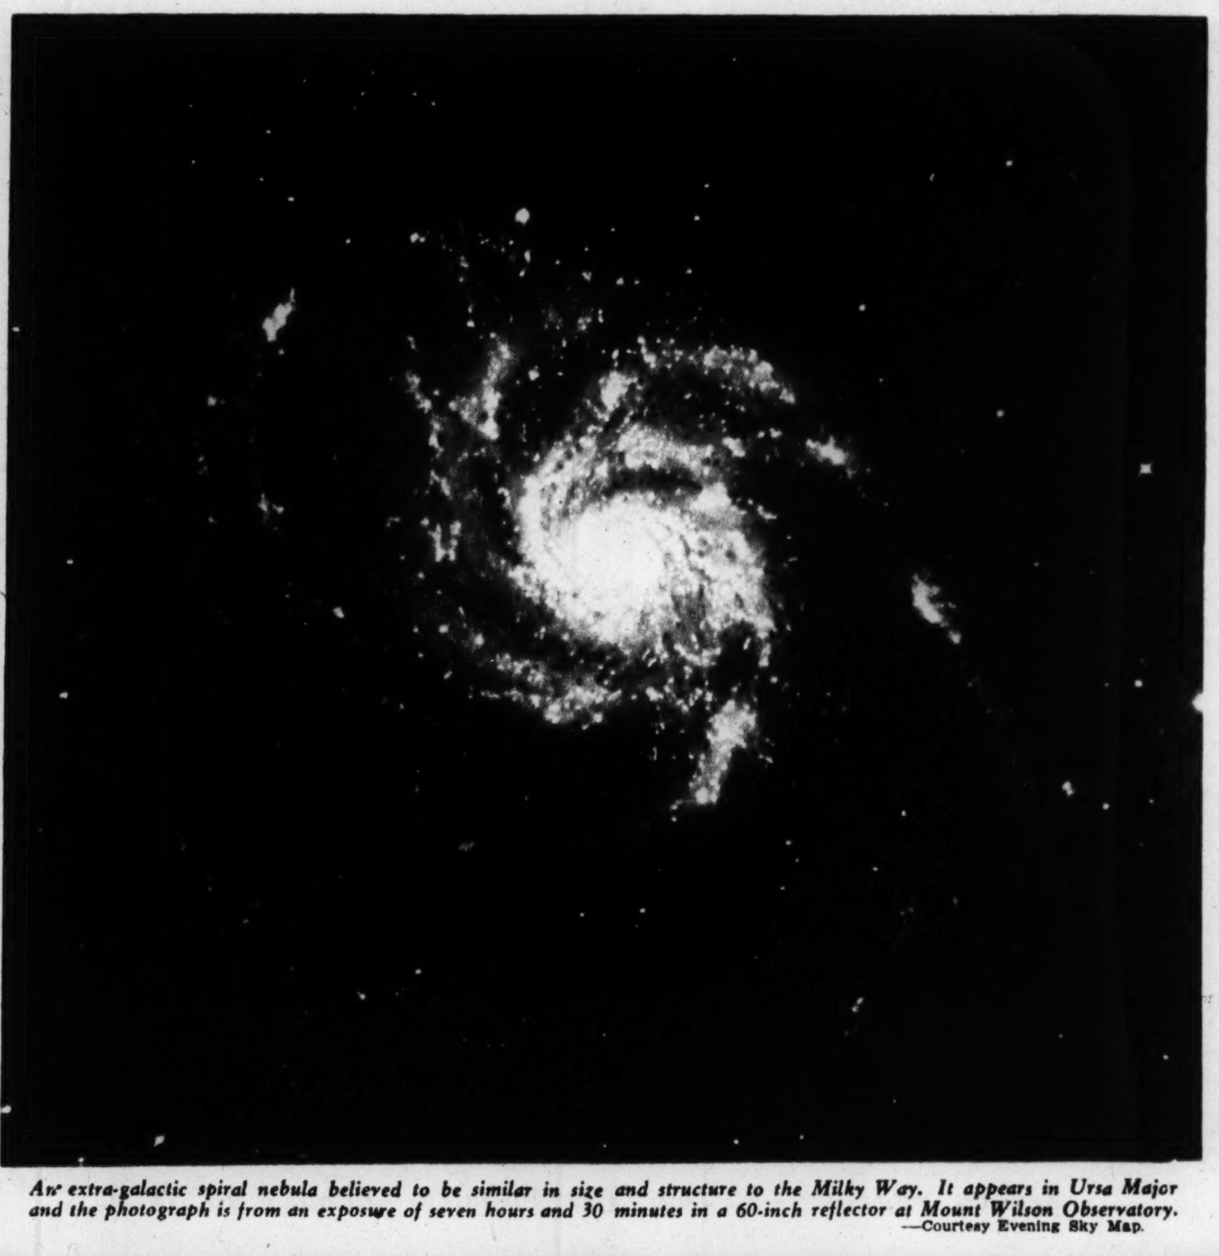
So far as news is concerned, the photograph showing black dots on a white field holds first place. It was made just recently by Dr. T. Russell Wilkins, who believes it shows the disintegration of a radium atom. Since he has devoted a great many years of investigation in the physics department at the University of Rochester to the problem of photographing this phenomenon, his explanation is regarded as correct. The particle which made the track of black splotches labeled B in the picture is a bit of the center, or "nucleus," of a radium atom. It is too small to see. In fact, its size is only about one-ten-trillionth of an inch, or, in figures, 1/10,000,000,000,000. When an atom goes to pieces and becomes another kind of atom (i. e., an atom of another substance or element), some of the particles of its central portion fly off at a tangent. If the photographs show what they are supposed to, the particles fly about one five-hundredth of an inch at a speed of 20,000 miles a second. Naturally, one couldn't get a snapshot of that. Dr. Wilkins has worked out a way of photographing it, though. He doesn't use a camera, just a sensitized plate. On this he places a drop of water containing a very little quantity of radium salt. When the radium atom goes off, alpha particles from the nucleus fly away one after the other. In the photographic emulsion, they are flying spots giving off enormous energy. Bits of the sensitive silver nitrate of the plate come in contact with these particles and turn black, just as they would if a ray of light were thrown on them through the camera lens. That is how the track of the alpha particles is recorded in the microscopic photographs that are shown on this page, which, of course, are enormously magnified.

There are pictures of two of the numerous stages in the disintegration of a radium atom. These are characteristic; the explosion always happens in pretty much the same way.

If one wants a general notion of what is happening in the universe, this phenomenon is important. Scientists agree, at the moment, that the universe is running down. The energy it contains can never be increased from outside. There isn't any outside. Neither can it be decreased. But it is always being transformed—as it is in industry when gravity is harnessed by making electric power out of a waterfall and heat out of the electricity. And its transformation is leading to a place somewhere incredibly off in the future, when all energy will have been spread out and dissipated to a place where it isn't of any use in keeping the universe moving and functioning in the way it functions now.

Likewise, all matter is becoming gradually uniform. So far as is known, there are now 92 kinds of matter. Each division is called an element. But at least half of the elements are merging into one, just as disintegrating radium atoms are merging into lead atoms. It was the hopeful dream of alchemists—the pioneers of chemistry and physics—that a way would be found to turn "baser elements" into gold. Nowadays nobody cares to do this, but scientists know that "transmutation," as alchemists called their dreamed-of process, is happening all the time. It happens faster in radium than in anything else. When the transmutation process is completed—some unimaginable millions of years hence — life will have stopped; the universe will have run down. It isn't anything to worry about; the children will have finished school and so on, long before even radium is all disintegrated. Much less such comparatively stable elements as oxygen or iron or gold.



An extra-galactic spiral nebula believed to be similar in size and structure to the Milky Way. It appears in Ursa Major and the photograph is from an exposure of seven hours and 30 minutes in a 60-inch reflector at Mount Wilson Observatory.

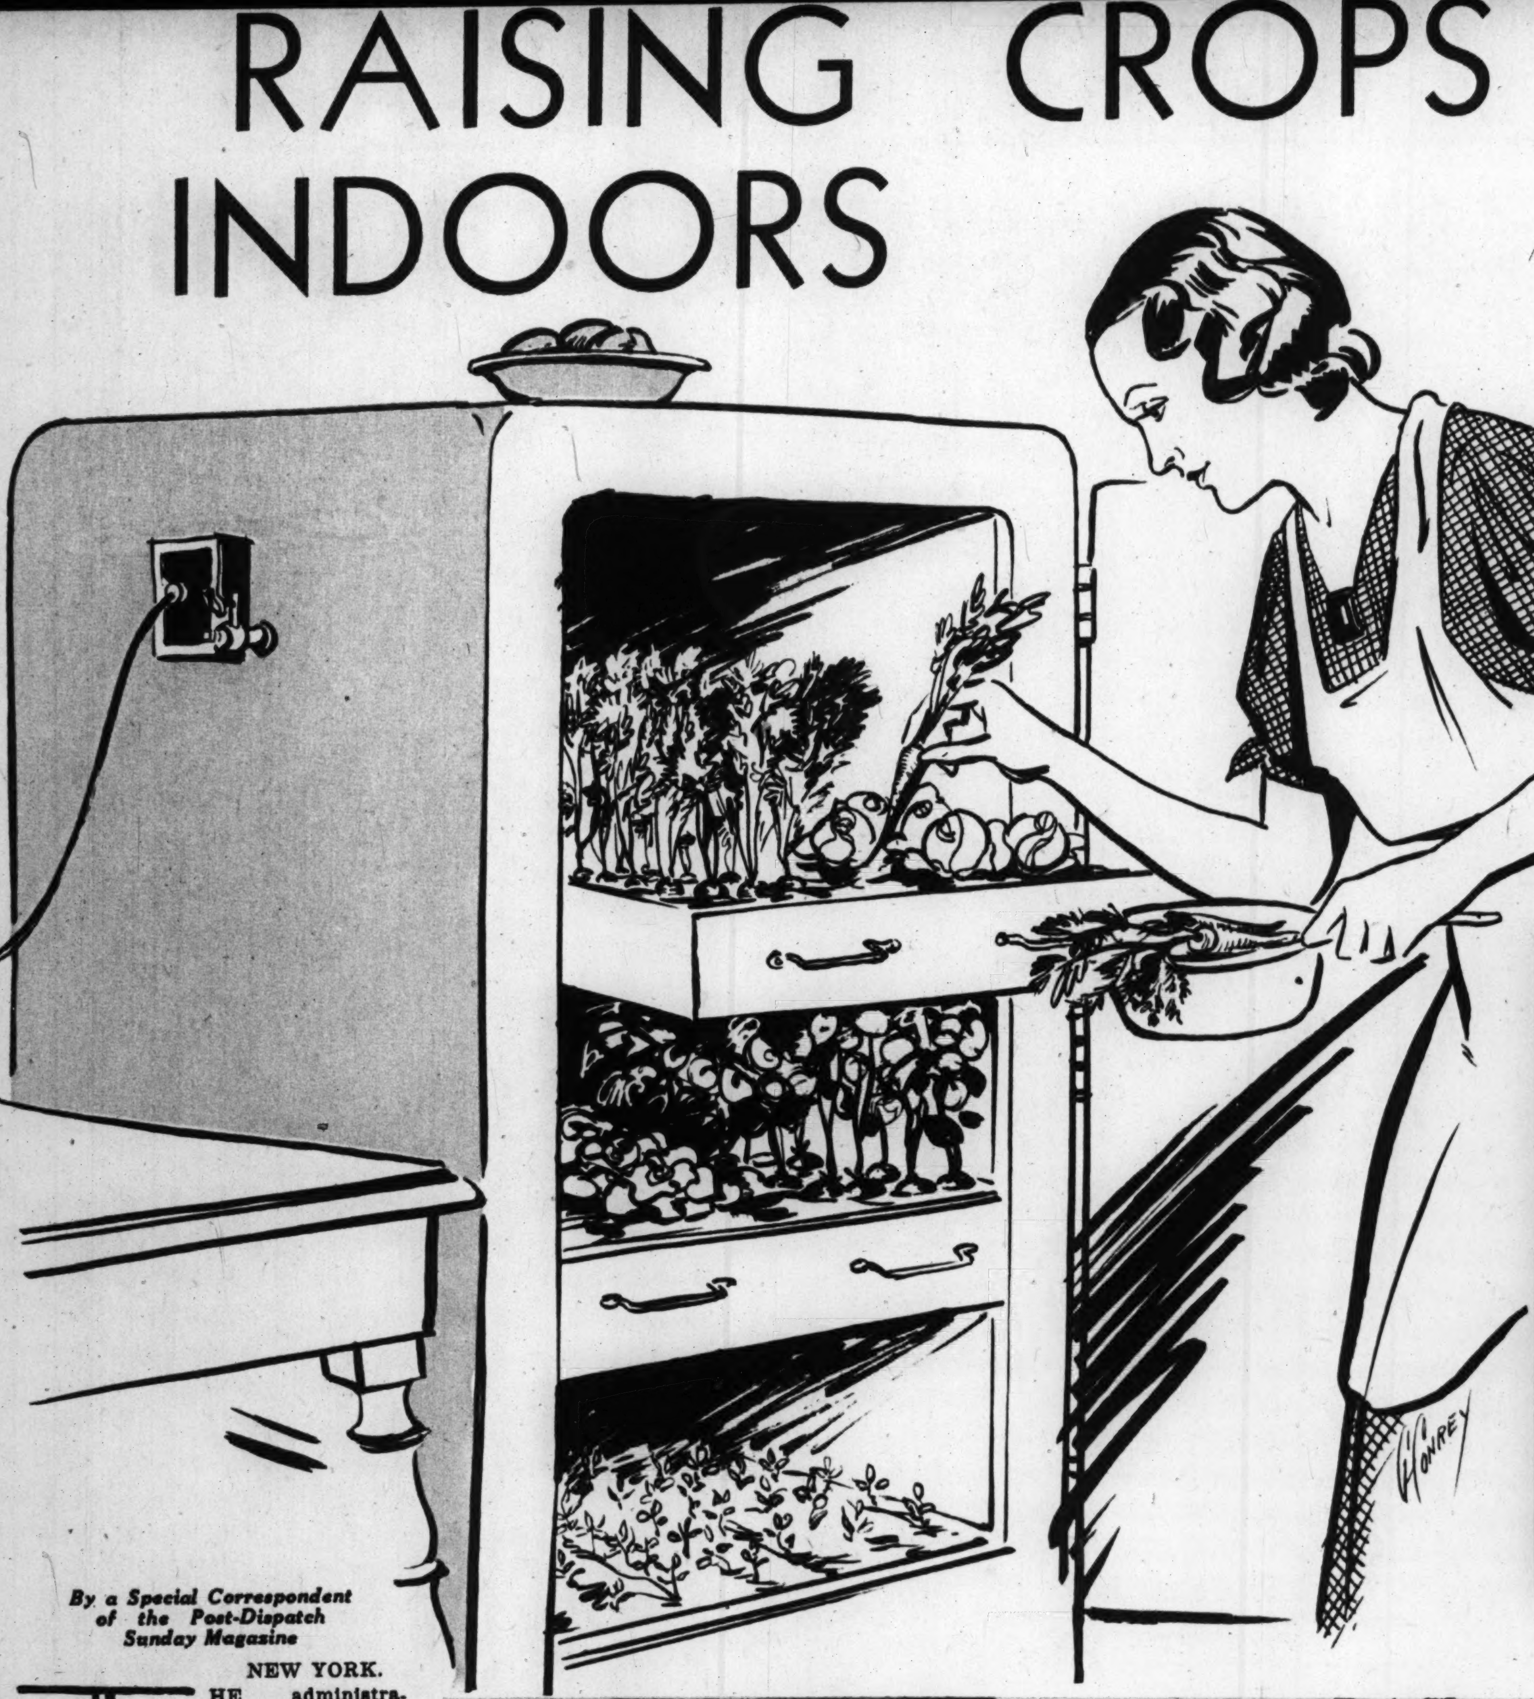
But to return to the photographs: The other two show sections of the universe, all consisting of just such atoms as have been described above. The pictures were made saveral years ago at Mount Wilson Observatory in California. So far as news is concerned, they are ancient history. This fact becomes insignificant, however, when one recalls that the cloudy celestial landscape (at top) beyond Zeta Orionis is at least 60 light years away. A light year is the distance light travels (at the rate of 186,000 miles a second) during one whole year—about six million million miles. Sixty light years is such a distance one simply can't use the crude mechanism of the human imagination to conceive of it. And yet the Zeta Orionis nebula, a cloud of fine particles (star dust, one might say) which makes a mysterious and suggestive blotch out in space, is within the system of the Milky Way, the cosmos within which the solar system appears as a microscopic fly speck.

THE other picture shows a nebula a great deal bigger and much farther away. As a matter of fact, it is millions of light years away. If one cannot conceive the meaning of one light year, it is better not to try to think of a million or several million of them. And the spiral nebula is also too big to imagine. Anyone planted out there with a telescope as strong as any known would find it impossible to see the earth, the sun or the whole solar system. He wouldn't even be able to see the Milky Way, the nebula which dominates the earthly sky. For the photograph reproduced here took seven hours and a half of exposure. Seen with the same telescope through which the picture was made, the whole nebula appears only as a blurred speck.

The light rays which carried this image to the camera on Mount Wilson started on their journey to the invisible earth so many million years ago that the whole miracle of the beginning of life and the whole fabulous process of evolution hadn't begun at the time. That is, anyone situated half way between the nebula photographed and the nebula from which this photograph was made, supposing he had eyes of incredible power, would have had to wait several million years from the time these light rays from Spiral Nebula G 9 M 101, N. G. C. 5457 reached him, until light rays from the earth brought him the image of the first microscopic droplets of living matter.

RAISING CROPS INDOORS

New Experiments With Cabinets, That Have Already Produced Fodder, the Basis for the Startling Prediction That All Foods Will Ultimately Come From the Laboratory and Not the Farm.



By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

NEW YORK.

THE administration's struggle with the farm problem, currently a burning social drama, will soon be as outdated as the ten-twent'-thirt' melodrama, if the experimental chemists are right. The men with the test tubes have devised what they say is a practical method of raising crops in cabinets, indoors. If they are correct, the rapidly declining virtue of wresting a living from the soil is now ready for its exit cue.

So far, the new technique has been employed largely to supply succulent fodder for livestock, but its logical ultimate development is the kitchen crop cabinet, no larger than a refrigerator. Within a few years, it is predicted, every family will be able to raise its own fresh vegetables all year around.

A new and more formidable farm problem seems to be very close—the elimination of the farm itself. That will face some future planner with this brain twister—what to do with the millions of farmers whom the administration is now trying to save from comparatively minor bugaboos like uncontrolled crop production and falling prices? For, if Mr. and Mrs. Jones can pluck fresh tomatoes and spinach from the magic cabinet in their flat, house or apartment, of what use to Farmer Smith is his rolling acres and his sun-up-to-sun-down toil?

This impending change in the social structure is no mere dream. The agrabiologists, in fact, have already sent scouting parties farther into the future. They feel confident that ultimately they will be able to produce plants, or products containing all their necessary food elements, in the laboratory. This synthetic stage, if it comes, will naturally make the magic cabinet, now looming so attractively, a back number.

But the cabinet is the thing now. It is new in the United States, but British experimenters have used it for two years, and the Germans for even longer. The Germans, masters of synthetics, started the movement. Experiments on farms in Summit, New Jersey, and Northport, Long Island, have demonstrated that not only does the cabinet produce fodder more rapidly, but that the product is richer in the nutritional components necessary for the growth and functioning of livestock.

The main importance of the cabinet, from the livestock raiser's standpoint, is the fact that he can give his stock fresh, succulent fodder every week of the year. At present, the succulent fodder season is limited to the spring. It is then only that the sprouting barley or maize, which for some reason is the most beneficial, is available. In spring, bullocks and young stock from the yards put on what cattlemen call "bloom." The milk yield rises, sows produce more populous litters and the pigs grow faster than in winter. It is due to this seasonal fodder improvement that spring lambs often catch up in growth with those born earlier in the year. By using the cabinet system, the stockman can make every season spring for his stock. At all times, even when snowstorms beat against the barn door, his animals can feed on sprouting fodder, fresh daily from the magic rays.

THIS, of course, spells the doom of the silo, which is now such an inevitable part of the farm picture. Silo fodder cannot compete with the spring type, which is richer in protein, carbohydrates, fats, lime and phosphorous, as well as in the lesser known constituents, such as vitamines, enzymes, hormones and amides. The latter are still the object of much research, but it has already been demonstrated that they are necessary to life, health, growth and fertility.

The blessings of the cabinet system are, as indicated, mixed. Besides the farm, the canning industry will also be affected. With fresh products so easily raised, few housewives will resort to the can-opener. Cows, in their way, will rejoice, if they appreciate labor saving. It now takes eight or nine hours of cud-chewing to prepare the fodder intake for digestion. The cabinet trays raise a more digestible type of fodder which requires only half that time. Apparently, the chemists haven't taken into account the possibility that cows may enjoy cud-chewing.

The cabinet processes currently used are the result of experiments by the late Dr. Paul Spangenberg of Germany; technicians of British Cultivations, Ltd., and Doctors Herman Beck of Berlin and C. A. Puddy of England. Dr. Beck is working at present with Dr. Scheunert, the eminent German authority on vitamins. Directors in British Cultivations, Ltd., include J. Arthur Rank, son of Sir Joseph Rank, wealthy miller, and Miss G. M. Yule, daughter of Lady Yule. Exploitation in this country is in the hands of Plant Cultivation Co., 80 Pine street, New York City.

IN A FEW years the work has progressed so swiftly that it is now possible to raise a sprout crop of barley, say, in four days. Under existing methods of farm production, given normal rainfall, such a crop would take about six weeks to grow.

One of the biggest advantages of this latest type of controlled agriculture is the elimination of the ordinary uncertainties which beset the man who tries to dig a living from the earth. Whether the sun shines or the rain falls, or both refuse to perform at the right time, makes no difference to the cabinet farmer. Erosion and drouth do not bother him. All the necessary elements that soil contains are supplied in a fluid, which, diluted with ordinary water, is the bed for the seed. Soil is almost all useless anyway, the chemists say. Its the chemicals the soil holds that count.

The cabinet seems to be the answer to the following challenge penned some years ago by Ford Maddox Ford, the British writer: "The final arcanum—the philosopher's stone—of agriculture is to discover a method of wastelessly administering nutriment to plants, An incredible dream.

"For, as manure is at present employed, an immense percentage of it is wasted in the ground or on the nourishment of weeds—and a vast amount of labor is wasted in the distribution. If, then, a method could be discovered by which each plant planted—or each seed sown—could be directly supplied with the nutriment it is to require, the addition to human wealth would be almost unmeasurable. As against that, the transmutation of base metals into gold would be a mere flea bite."

Here is the cabinet method: The cabinets are divided into compartments fitted with trays that are easily slid out and in. Superimposed is a water tank connected with each compartment by pipes, which are filled by an automatically controlled flooding device. Where warm water is not available a small stove is provided. It needs but a few shovels of coal per day to heat the water to about 80 degrees Fahrenheit.

Take corn seed. Soak it for from 24 to 36 hours in water, then remove and place in the trays in layers. Each tray, under present arrangements, will take from eight to twelve pounds of seed. A small dose of the special nutrient element—the two so far developed are Vitplant and Nutrisal—is added to the 200 gallons of water in the tank. Twice a day the farmhand pulls a lever, which releases the needed amount of solution to the trays. The automoatic control stops the flow at the right time. A thermostat automatically regulates the heat of the cabinet. Four or five days later the crop is six inches tall and ready to be used.

By the simple device of starting off the trays in rotation, the operator can assure himself of a brand new crop every day of the year. When this gets to the home use stage, Mrs. Jones may set a crop of vegetables on Monday, in anticipation of next Saturday's or Sunday's dinner, when many guests are expected.

In cases where the stock raiser needs an added element in his fodder to stave off deficiency diseases, such as that resulting from the lack of iodine, the missing ingredient can easily be added to the solution. It's as simple as adding vanilla to fudge. Among the crops which the cabinets have raised successfully on a large scale, besides corn and barley, are wheat, oats, soy beans, field beans, peas, linseed, clover, sainfoin, sunflower and cottonseed. Experimentally, household vegetables have been produced.

Of the value of sprout crops to livestock, Dr. Weston A. Price, in an address to the American Association of Medical Milk Commissions convention in 1934, said: "Evidence is accumulating from different sources indicating that great benefit is provided to animal life by rapidly growing young plants, particularly green wheat or rye. These aid nature in maintaining normal growth and function.

"A. F. Swanson, associate agronomist of the Bureau of Plant Industry, United States Department of Agriculture, at Hays, Kansas, has shown that chickens fed on grain concentrates and similar foods tend rapidly to deteriorate in physical well-being and egg production, but that these factors can be greatly enhanced by providing these chickens with green wheat in its early growth stage, even when dry or frozen. Studies made in Great Britain show that cows fed on rapidly growing green wheat or this product dried are supplied with protein in equivalent quantity to a liberal ration of grain, besides which they are furnished with minerals and activating substances carried in this plant.

"MY OWN investigations have developed data indicating that the milk and butter produced by cows pasturing on rapidly growing green wheat and rye carry activators in more liberal quantity than the average pasture fodder."

The off-season laying of hens was considerably enhanced by the introduction of cabinet-grown sprouted corn, according to a report from a farm in England operated by Michael Faraday, a descendant of the scientist of that name. Faraday mixed sprouted corn with ordinary chicken feed in a 50-50 proportion, which incidentally reduced the price of the combined feed to about 70 per cent of the normal chicken feed. Besides experimenting on his hens, Faraday fed a combined feed to day-old chicks. The chicks, in 12 weeks, fattened to four and a half pounds. The normal period is from 14 to 16 weeks.

Cabinet-raised maize, fed to Faraday's cows, failed to increase milk yield but boosted butter fat content by 25 per cent. The Northport, Long Island farm, however, reported that the normal seasonal decline in milk production was considerably reduced by the use of cabinet fodder. Both farms reported that the cows specially fed were noticeably finer in appearance than the others. Their coats were glossier and their eyes clearer.

Thus the agricultural revolution progresses. And, as the past few decades have seen tremendous strides in mechanics, so, according to the scientists, the next few decades will bring great changes through advances in the art of synthetics.

Why the Coal Seller of Luxembourg Sued the Woodchopper of Doorn

It All Started When Ex-Kaiser Wilhelm Objected to His Sister's Marriage to a Dishwasher.

PARIS.

THE intense aversion which Wilhelm Hohenzollern, prominent woodchopper of Doorn, and Alexander Zoubkoff, well-known coal seller of Luxembourg, entertain for each other has just flamed forth into active hostility again. Zoubkoff, a Russian, has asked the League of Nations to require Hohenzollern, a German, to pay him approximately $700,000. The claim is made to the League because Zoubkoff, although of Russian birth, is not a citizen of the Soviet Union or of any other nation; he's a man without a country. His aim is to have the League Court require Holland, one of its members, to make Hohenzollern pay the claim, since the latter has been a resident of Holland since he relinquished the position of Emperor of Germany and turned his energies to retirement and ax-swinging.

Princess Victoria Louise, sister of the former Kaiser, was the cause of the enmity between the two men. She married Zoubkoff against the wishes of her brother. She is dead now, but the feud has continued, and a direct result of the marriage of the royal dame and the Russian adventurer is the claim for $700,000.

The Princess was well laden with years when Alex came into her life. She was the widow of Prince Adolphe Schaumburg-Lippe, who died in 1916. For some years after her first husband's death she lived rather quietly with members of her husband's family and the Hohenzollerns. Then she succumbed to the post-war unrest and went in for sensation-hunting. Returning to Berlin from a stay in India, she became the subject of unfavorable comment in sedate circles because of her role of priestess in a cult devoted to physical pleasure.

Through this interest she became acquainted with Alex, whose enthusiasm for the cult speedily took him to a position of leadership in the ranks of its devotees. Alex, young and frolicsome, was considered by many women a romantic figure. He said his father was a Russian nobleman before the Czar was overthrown. Certain others of more prosaic temperament said his father was a cobbler. Alex had gained a livelihood by many means, including dish-washing in a restaurant and serving as a gigolo in a dance hall. It was said that a Paris midinette named Suzette had rescued him from a park bench and was receiving a good deal of his attention just prior to his marriage. The police of more than one European capital knew Alex.

There is no doubt that the Princess found Alex fascinating. They were frequently together. Excerpts from her diary, written in her castle near Bonn, which have become public, reflect her growing fondness:

Tuesday—Baron Zoubkoff came again tonight for dinner. What an interesting young man he is. He is tall, dark and very handsome. He seems to be very intelligent, and I shall continue to invite him to the palace. . . .

Thursday (midnight)—I have just returned from the opera. . . . There were several people whom I know. They do not know the Baron and I noticed that they were interested in him. . . . He is an ideal man to accompany a lady. He is attracting me a good deal, and I think he enjoys my company. He is very poor, but is not ashamed of his poverty. He related to me that he was wearing a borrowed suit of clothing at our first meeting. He was almost penniless. I admire his frankness.

FRIDAY—Today we have been on the River Rhine. . . How attentive Baron Zoubkoff is. . . .

Friday—He is here to tea today. How much happier I am when he is here. It is very dull and quiet in this large palace. Now, at the moment of writing, I can look through my window and see him shooting at the target. He is an excellent shot. (She had previously discovered that he was "an excellent dancer.")

Saturday—He was here this morning. We played tennis again. I am getting very fond of him, and am dreading the day of his departure.

Saturday—Today Baron Zoubkoff heard from his mother. She is very ill, so he is leaving here tomorrow. How I shall miss him. I shall go away to Knocke, in Belgium, where I can think things out.

Wednesday—Knocke is very nice and restful, but how I miss the Baron. I dread to think that one day he will leave Bonn. It will seem so desolate without him. He has become a part of my life, and I shall miss him dreadfully.

Saturday—I have returned from Knocke to my palace (at Bonn). How long this week has been, but he will be here today. . . . How excited I am at the thought of meeting him again. . . .

Monday—He came to tea and also stayed to dinner. He told me that he had missed me, and that he was glad to come back to the palace to see me. . . . I care for him a great deal, and I am sure that he cares for me. If he should propose to me some day, I wonder what my brother (the former Kaiser) would say?

Before there was occasion, however, to ask brother Wilhelm for his blessing, there was a hiatus in the affair, The Princess dropped out of sight for a couple of months, and when she returned to her palace many years seemed to have fallen from her. Berlin buzzed with the story that she had undergone a rejuvenating operation. Alex exclaimed, "She now has the figure of a woman of 30 and the heart of a girl of 20!"

Returning to the diary:

Tuesday— . . . Baron Zoubkoff has proposed. I have accepted. I wonder what my brother will say about the marriage. He will refuse his consent, I am sure, but I shall overstep all barriers. I will not sacrifice my own happiness and that of my fiance for the sake of worldly criticism. People will say there is too great a difference in our ages for complete happiness, but if two people really care for each other nothing else matters. Titles, money—everything—may go, but I will keep our happiness. My fiance cares for me, and I for him. I shall let my brother and sister know tomorrow.

Wednesday—As I expected, my brother has refused his consent. . . .

Friday—Though I regret not having secured the Kaiser's consent to my marriage, it was not really essential to have it, for when I married into the Schaumburg-Lippe family I passed out of the jurisdiction of the Kaiser. . . .

On November 19, 1927, Princess Victoria, granddaughter of the late Queen Victoria of England, became the wife of Alexander Zoubkoff, penniless Russian refugee. They were married at Bonn, first in a civil ceremony, a couple of days later with the rites of the Greek Orthodox Church. The Hohenzollern family did not attend. The blushing bride was 61 and the happy bridegroom was 27.

The new Mrs. Zoubkoff was a wealthy woman, of course. Her fortune included a large collection of jewels and heirlooms left her by her grandmother Victoria, and the castle at Bonn, which came to her from her first husband. But it soon developed that she was not wealthy enough to afford the festive Alex.

WITH his wife's purse and credit to draw on, the former dishwasher, dancer, deckhand, etc., etc., proceeded to go in heavily for personal entertainment. There were amours, drinking bouts, escapades, all expensive. The light-hearted fellow beat a page boy almost into insensibility, and as a consequence was ordered out of Germany. Belgium invited him to leave and stay away after he had caused an unpleasant scene in a Brussels hotel; it is understood he escorted a young woman of the cafes to the suite he and Victoria occupied and departed with the girl when his wife protested. For a considerable time Victoria put up with all this, even defended him. It was just youth and high spirits, she said; and the censorious should remember that he had been too poor before to sow the wild oats that all young men are entitled to. Her chief reaction to Alex's high jinks seems to have been to spend a lot of money on luxurious automobiles, race horses and the like.

In periods of inactivity, Alex amused himself by writing silly letters to the former Emperor of Germany, signing them, "Your loving brother-in-law, Sandy." If, as he suspected, Wilhelm was trying to break up the union, the irritation these notes caused the proud old man at Doorn can be imagined.

The Princess' fortune melted rapidly under the couple's lavish spending. It is said that when the wife would call a halt, she was deterred by her husband's threat to write a highly-seasoned movie scenario based on their courtship and marriage.

Victoria's cash and securities evaporated. She sold her jewels and heirlooms. She went into bankruptcy, and her home shrank to three rooms on the top floor of her castle. In bankruptcy court she admitted she was reduced to washing her own clothes. Finally she had to give up the castle entirely and take rooms in the little city of Luxembourg—after getting permission of the authorities of the grand duchy of that name for Alex to live there.

About this time Alex betook himself to Paris and got a job as an actor in a sketch written specially for him. There was a hitch at first when he insisted on being supplied with vodka during rehearsals, but he finally agreed to accept brandy instead "if given enough of it." Before rehearsals were over French authorities ordered Alex to leave the country. He then thought he might try the movies. "I ought to do something, you know," he said, "to earn a living for my wife, who is in dire straits."

A short time later Victoria gave up the struggle to find happiness in married life with Alex, left him and sued for divorce. She also offered him $2400 for the return of her letters. The gallant Alex held out for $9600. The divorce suit was set for hearing November 22, 1929.

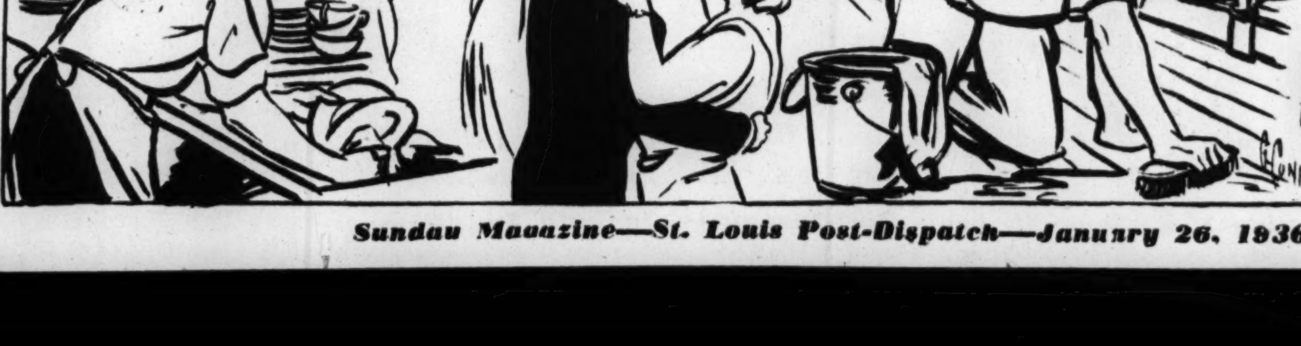
There was no hearing. On November 13 of that year Victoria died in a hospital at Bonn after an illness of a few days. Shortly before her death the ex-Kaiser phoned from Doorn to inquire if she wished him to visit her. She replied, "No, I don't want to see him."

A FEW members of the former German nobility attended the funeral at Cronberg. Alex was not there, having been arrested by Bonn police a few days before for reentering Germany, presumably to put in an appearance at the funeral.

Alex returned to Luxembourg and eventually went into the business of selling coal. The year after his wife's death it was reported that her relatives had retrieved her letters from him by paying more than $3000.

It is in connection with the divorce suit that never came to trial that Alex demands $700,000 of his brother-in-law. He says Wilhelm promised him the money if he would sign certain papers necessary to successful prosecution of the suit, that he signed and that he never got the money.

"Under the terms of our agreement," Alex has related, "the ex-Kaiser promised to turn over the 10,000,000 francs exactly eight days after I signed the papers. Three days after I put my name to them, my royal wife died and my brother-in-law refused to pay the debt. I have kept silent like a gentleman in the hope that he would acknowledge his obligation. But he has forced me to appeal to the League of Nations. An agreement is an agreement."



"Queen Elizabeth," 1911, with Sarah Bernhardt as the Queen. Lou Tellegen kneels before her.

The One-Reelers of the '90s Return to the Screen

By JACK ALEXANDER

A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

NEW YORK.

AN assistant librarian switched off the lights. A gray-haired pianist, who once played in a Broadway nickelodeon, moved his gnarled fingers over the keys and produced a tinny melody. From the rear, through the breathless darkness, came a series of embarrassed clickings as the operator, all thumbs as usual, fumbled with a balky projecting machine. Suddenly a quivering megaphone of brilliant light shot into being, its broad end stopping against a glary white screen which was alive with hundreds of darting flecks like nervous water bugs. Then an old-time picture jumped on the screen and an audience of New Yorkers was carried back into the prehistoric age of the modern movie. For two hours, the old pianist, his face lifted to the old familiar screen plays, pounded out his theme music; the audience, to whom the plays were privately exhibited, at first laughed, as if being shown some ridiculous old styles in clothes or automobiles, then sat silent in a rapt nostalgic mood, then began to realize that it was watching the early pictures from a new critical standpoint.

This striking throwback took place recently in the Museum of Modern Art, 11 West Fifty-third street, whose newly assembled film library, got together with the aid of the Rockefeller Foundation, is the first of its kind in the country. Begun less than a year ago, the library, with the co-operation of the motion picture industry, has made an impressive start on its plan to make cultural America conscious of the movies' development as an art form—the only new art form of modern times.

The sequence shown illustrated the growth of the film from mere episodes to the narrative plot and carried the observer from 1895 to 1911. Subsequent stages, bringing the history of the film up to the present day and attacking it from many critical angles, are in preparation.

The library has resurrected old films from vaults, where, apparently doomed to oblivion, they had already suffered from natural decay to no small extent. Eleven were donated by Harold Lloyd. Warner Brothers gave the same number. Samuel Goldwyn gave two and Twentieth Century-Fox came through with seven. Other collectors have given up reels, some gratis, some for a price. The work has just begun. The job of merely finding out where some of the more important films are stored will take years. Seemingly no one in America realized before that the record of an important art's development was wasting away. In England the Film Society of London began a similar work in 1925. Miss Iris Barry, a co-founder of the Film Society, is in charge of the Modern Museum's pioneer work.

Technical assistance has come from the film industry itself. Under the skilled hands of men loaned by Hollywood, old films that have all but perished chemically have been restored and preserved. Warehouses and safes have given up their secrets. Now colleges, museums and clubs may obtain the skillfully arranged sequences much as they have for years been able to obtain visual treatises on painting and sculpture.

Their almost incredible brevity was the first thing about the movie primitives that impressed the first group to whom the Modern Museum's first sequence was shown. This characteristic is quite natural since the first projected movies stemmed directly from Thomas Edison's kinetoscope, which was nothing more or less than the peep show machine found today in the arcades along New York's Forty-Second street. You drop in a coin and a spool of film begins to unroll as you peer through a window. Soon you are seeing "The Dempsey-Firpo Fight" or "Paris Models Feeling Frisky." When motion pictures were first flashed on a screen, they were simply projected kinetoscope pictures.

"The Execution of Mary Queen of Scots" belongs in this class. It is exactly 50 feet long and the grisly action is all over before you know it. The hapless Mary walks up to the block and kneels, bending her head over dutifully like an obedient roasting chicken. The headsman takes a realistic swipe with his axe and the head rolls off the lady's shoulders into the dust. The executioner picks it up, holds it aloft and that is the end of the film. The bloodless post-swipe state of the head and body is reassuring.

THIS grisly film, which opens the Modern Museum's first sequence, was produced as a kinetoscope in 1893 in the first motion picture studio built in America. This was the famous "Black Maria," on the grounds of Edison's laboratory at West Orange, N. J. "The Execution of Mary Queen of Scots" was retrieved from the peep show class in 1894 by Jean A. LeRoy, film pioneer and inventor, who succeeded in projecting it on a screen.

During this stage of the cinema's growth foreign companies contributed most of the trick and historical films gaped at by Americans. But in 1895 slapstick movie comedy was born in America in another fifty-footer called "Wash Day Troubles." This evanescent episode is half consumed before the one piece of decisive action is introduced. For fully 25 feet, a buxom woman is shown rubbing out clothes in a wooden tub in the yard near a back porch. Towards the end, an early model Jackie Coogan mischievously dumps over the tub.

THE youngster is not identified by historians. The woman is, by a bit of directorial economy, the wife of Edmund Kuhn, who produced the film. In the early years of the industry it was common for the players to remain anonymous. In "The Execution of Mary Queen of Scots," for instance, none of the cast is known.

Third in the sequence is one of the most important films of the series, "A Trip to the Moon," produced and directed by the French genius, George Melies, who also is in the cast. The picture was produced in 1902 and represented a stride toward the feature-length. It was all of 800 feet long. Melies, a supreme technician in magic and illusion, brought a Jules Verne imagination to the screen.

One of his contributions to the art was stop-motion photography which made magical transformations and disappearances look plausible. Melies also employed the now common close-up as early as 1896 and shot the first movie by artificial light. In a day when the average picture ran about three minutes, "A Trip to the Moon" created a sensation when it ran 10 minutes!

Melies plainly regarded the film as a series of living tableaux but he achieved a continuity by overprinting the end of each scene on the beginning of the next. As in most early narrative films, his characters moved horizontally as on a stage before an audience. His scenery was disposed likewise. Melies himself designed his beautifully painted backcloths and movable scenery, executed in an imitation bas-relief. The hundreds of cinemas he produced between 1896 and 1914 were distinguished not only by their novelty of treatment but by their wealth of story material. He unashamedly ransacked literature for his yarns, then embellished them with his own imagination.

Even today "A Trip to the Moon" has a gay, fantastic charm. Melies, who must have been, among other things, something of an Earl Carroll, garnished his frolicsome tails of a scientific projectile flight to the moon with turns by acrobats from the Follies Bergere and dancers from the Theater du Chatalet. The treatment is comic throughout. A handful of bearded scientists, after much pother, finally zoom heavenward in their metal capsule and strike the man in the moon squarely in the eye.

THEY clambered out of the projectile to be confronted by hordes of strange moon dwellers and outlandish scenery. The scientists are armed only with umbrellas, but find these enough. It seems that when you swat a moon dweller over the head with an umbrella he just explodes in a puff of powder. After knocking off a number of the inhabitants the scientists rocket earthward, to be greeted by chorines of the Theater du Chatalet.

Next in the sequence is the great-great-granddaddy of the Western, the gangster and the G-man thrillers—"The Great Train Robbery." Produced in 1903, this film was notable technically chiefly because it introduced plot into the American-made picture and also employed movement toward and away from the camera, as well as horizontal movement. In a subordinate position in the cast is none other than Broncho Billy Anderson, the greatest two-gun man, outside of Bill Hart, perhaps, that ever raised the hair of this correspondent and his contemporaries in the Mikado, Orpheum, Hamilton Airdome and Fairy theaters, along Easton avenue, in St. Louis. Anderson's favorite stunt was to toss an ace carelessly into the air, fire from the hip and knock out the club, heart, diamond or spade in the center. What a shot! It was considerably later than "The Great Train Robbery" that Broncho Billy came to Easton avenue, though.

The story of "The Great Train Robbery" is told falteringly and the continuity is crude but here already the feeling for inter-play and assembly of short shots is seen sprouting. David Wark Griffith, first of the important directors, was later to master this. But it was Edwin S. Porter, director of the robbery film (for the Edison company), who first hit upon the principle of film editing.

This picture is 800 feet long. It starts with a scene in a railroad telegrapher's office. The robbers, all wearing black shirts, black hats and black mustaches, enter, bind and gag the telegrapher and proceed to board a train, slug the express car clerk and make off with the loot on their horses. There is a pursuit (what Western didn't have a pursuit?) and a pitched battle. The robbers are laid low but their horses, which are directly in the

WHEN cooking is mentioned as a fine art the mind automatically interpolates "French." In general French cooking monopolizes the serious attention of gourmets. People may remark—whether through ignorance or experience—that they don't like French cooking ("It's too rich"), but usually this is equivalent to saying that they don't like eating, would just as lief dine out of cans and boxes or live on hash in a one-arm joint. The hold France has on dietary diversions is illustrated by the number of French words used to describe English gastronomic terms. Restaurant, chef, menu, table d'hote, gourmet, recipe—all these, in addition to the number of dishes having only French names, are tacit confessions of a national inferiority.

There are, however, other kinds of cooking. Russian, Swedish, Danish, German and even English specialties are sometimes described with reverence in conversation. Only American food is consistently slighted. If it is mentioned at all, it is usually mentioned last. Why this should be so is hard to see. Possibly because the finest American cooking is a private, not a public thing. Possibly because, as in Germany, the finest cooks are seldom restaurant cooks. Or because, when they are, they suffer from the same inferiority complex that colors most American arts. This would naturally be accentuated in an art where imitation is easy and the exotic always at a premium.

WHEN cooking is mentioned as a fine art the mind automatically interpolates "French." In general French cooking monopolizes the serious attention of gourmets. People may remark—whether through ignorance or experience—that they don't like French cooking ("It's too rich"), but usually this is equivalent to saying that they don't like eating, would just as lief dine out of cans and boxes or live on hash in a one-arm joint. The hold France has on dietary diversions is illustrated by the number of French words used to describe English gastronomic terms. Restaurant, chef, menu, table d'hote, gourmet, recipe—all these, in addition to the number of dishes having only French names, are tacit confessions of a national inferiority.

There are, however, other kinds of cooking. Russian, Swedish, Danish, German and even English specialties are sometimes described with reverence in conversation. Only American food is consistently slighted. If it is mentioned at all, it is usually mentioned last. Why this should be so is hard to see. Possibly because the finest American cooking is a private, not a public thing. Possibly because, as in Germany, the finest cooks are seldom restaurant cooks. Or because, when they are, they suffer from the same inferiority complex that colors most American arts. This would naturally be accentuated in an art where imitation is easy and the exotic always at a premium.

Be that as it may, there is such a thing as distinctively American cooking and there are gourmets not ashamed to mention it. That is how it happens that the new (1931) Waldorf-Astoria has a specialist in native dishes—even devotes a whole kitchen to the thing, whereas the famous Victorian one was slavishly European in its cuisine.

There are other restaurants that specialize in culinary Americana, but the good ones are usually local in their range, serving shore dinners in New England, Creole specialties in New Orleans and so on. Rebekah Sheerer Hufcut, the Waldorf's native expert, has made a study of dishes in every part of the country. When distinguished foreign visitors ask for a sample of the national diet, she has at her finger-tips the recipes for dishes representative of each section. When Premier Laval came to New York, for instance, his dinner featured an authentic Back Bay clam chowder, Yankee pot roast and a sweet potato pie known only to certain parts of the South. Mrs. Hufcut knows not only the sectional favorites, but which of them is likely to appeal to a particular celebrated guest. For a dinner party by Herbert Hoover she planned pumpkin pie. For the Harold Lloyds she scheduled a fruit pudding. When Joan Crawford and Franchot Tone came there she gave them beef stew with fresh vegetables; characteristically the vegetables are never treated with chemicals to heighten their colors; everything is perfectly natural.

"I let food stand on its own merits," says Mrs. Hufcut. "Let an onion be an onion, a beet a beet. God made it so. Why change it?"

IT ISN'T entirely an affectation to call Mrs. Hufcut's domain "The Home Kitchen." Ordinarily, restaurants which assume that title merely make themselves ridiculous by their watery versions of the full-flavored simplicities of plain cooking. Mrs. Hufcut and the Waldorf have taken it up because they feel private kitchens have produced the best in American cookery and because they want to imitate methods and results of the domestic kitchen. Nothing degenerates so easily into hash-house slop as a New England boiled dinner that has been condemned to the steam table.

The Home Kitchen has no steam tables. Everything has been done to make it function as if it were the kitchen in a private house. The cooks are women, not men. And although there are six of them and they prepare a good deal more food than the biggest mansion serves up for the most sumptuous private dinner parties, they are instructed to cook for each individual table. Guests must order several hours in advance, and they are encouraged to dine promptly.

The guiding spirit of this crusade for the recognition of a native cuisine comes by her calling as a matter of course. She is the descendant of several generations of gourmets, chefs and restaurateurs. Her grandfather started the first restaurant in Greensburg, Pennsylvania, a century ago, when the town became a railroad junction. In the days before the Pullman diner became the model of breath-taking efficiency it is today, this inn proved a welcome stop-over for travelers. It was famous for more than 50 years and still preserved its traditions when the future impresario of The Home Kitchen was a tow-headed chit enamored of Minnehaha cake—a delicacy stuffed with raisins, chopped figs and walnuts, and iced with lemon and sugar. Rebekah Sheerer, the future Mrs. Hufcut, learned how to make Minnehaha cake from her mother, a connoisseur of old-fashioned dishes. She was taught a great many other tricks of cookery as well. But her mother, who cooked at the old inn, didn't want her to be a cook. She hoped she would be a fine seamstress instead and gave her a pair of shears as her very first present. This device didn't have the desired effect. The little girl cut off all her hair before she ever learned to thread a needle. That was that. She had to become a cook.

By the time she was ready to consider a profession, however, one didn't become just a cook. In this new degenerate age one spoke of dietetics, balanced diet and (sanctimonious anomaly!) of domestic science. Rebekah Sheerer learned dietetics at Pratt Institute in Brooklyn and afterwards took a domestic science course at Barnard College, Columbia University. She became chief dietician for a chain of expensive restaurants in New York and got a reputation for her knowledge of native cooking. That is how the Waldorf happened to come to her when it was discovered that not all hotel guests have exclusively French palates.

Part of the nineteenth floor of the new hotel was turned over to Mrs. Hufcut to be converted into a commodious kitchen. She supervised the decoration, tried to make it look as much like a typical private kitchen as possible, considering its necessary size. Then she hired her half-dozen cooks and got down to business.

The repertoire is as various as the most jaded epicure could ask. Here is a miscellaneous bill of fare, including the localities from which the various dishes are derived.

Tomatoes Creole, Louisiana.
Stewed okra, Louisiana.
Baked stuffed shad, Baltimore.
Chicken pie, Caorlinas.
Chicken fricassee, Pittsburgh-Philadelphia pike.
Hot tamale, the Southwest.
Hasenpfeffer, Tony Faust's, St. Louis.
Chicken cake, Wisconsin.
Dandelion greens and hominy with corn bread, the Middle West.
Salt pork with green beans, Kentucky.
Sweet potatoes, Mississippi.
Cole slaw, Pennsylvania.
Boiled dinner, New England.
Codfish cakes, New England.
Johnny cake, Rhode Island.
Apple cake, Pennsylvania.
Brown bread, Boston.
Maple cream cake, Vermont.
Baked Indian pudding, Boston.
Cream pie, Boston or Washington (two kinds).

THOSE are just a few samples to indicate the possibilities. Each is prepared according to the most effective recipe Mrs. Hufcut has been able to discover. And she hasn't gone merely to historic restaurants for her recipes. Of course, she had a great many from her family. But her interest in more recipes is insatiable. She never stops exploring New York's restaurants when she goes out to lunch. On her vacations she tours the rural sections, visiting farm houses, inns, any place that looks as if it might hold a recipe.

Blonde, tall and attractive in a settled, plump-widow way, she has little difficulty drawing from flattered housewives the cherished secrets their grandmothers handed down to them as the way to a man's heart. Her criteria for a successful dish are its ability to stand on its savory merits without embellishment, its age and its local popularity. Her gastronomic adventures are beginning to tell on her; she is growing stout. This doesn't worry her, though.

"Can't be helped," she says in her abrupt, clipped way. "I have to taste everything that's cooked." Nothing from her kitchen is served until it has passed her critical review.

The 'JEWISH JANE ADDAMS' on HER SEVENTY-FIFTH BIRTHDAY

BALTIMORE.

ON DECEMBER 21, 1935, countless thousands of Jewish men and women, boys and girls, all the way from Palestine to Los Angeles, celebrated the seventy-fifth birthday of Henrietta Szold, variously known to her followers and ardent admirers as Zionism's First Lady, the Jewish Jane Addams, and the most prominent Jewish woman alive today.

A frail, modest, unobtrusive, gentle-eyed and gray-haired woman of phenomenal and unceasing energy, Miss Szold returned to Baltimore, the city of her birth, to be with her relatives on her birthday. When she landed in New York from a lengthy sojourn in the Holy Land, she was met by a committee of prominent Jewry headed by Mrs. David de Sola Pool, wife of the noted Sephardic rabbi. Throughout America the 300 chapters of the Hadassah, the Woman's Zionist Organization, which Miss Szold founded some years ago, prepared a series of meetings in her honor. And on her birthday, over a coast-to-coast hookup broadcast from Jerusalem, Dr. Chaim Weizmann, president of the World Zionist Organization, and Dr. Judah L. Magnes, president of the Hebrew University of Palestine, spoke of Miss Szold's lifelong devotion to justice, humanitarianism and her people.

Nor does the seventy-fifth birthday of Henrietta Szold mean that she has decided to retire from public life and let the younger generations of her race carry on. Far from it. Even now she is busy resettling young German-Jewish refugees in colonies in Palestine, and for this new and heroic work The Nation has placed her name on its honor roll for 1935. The only other woman on The Nation's honor roll is Helen Jerome, in consideration of her dramatization of Jane Austen's "Pride and Prejudice."

To give an outline of a long lifetime devoted to helping others is a difficult task. It can be done by listing the honors that have accrued to the benefactor, by quoting what other noted personalities have said of her work, or by telling of her personal philosophy and life. .In the case of Miss Szold, a little of each is necessary if one is to understand the full scope of her rich and idealistic life.

It was on her seventieth birthday that Henrietta Szold was made a Doctor of Hebrew Letters at the Jewish Institute of Religion in Palestine. When he conferred that honor upon her, Dr. Stephen S. Wise said: "Henrietta Szold, great among women, foremost among her Jewish sisters, daughter and disciple of a learned and noble teacher, Benjamin Szold; dedicated for many years to the cause of Jewish letters, and in the latest and greatest phase of her life, by a leadership of wisdom and consecration and by an example of uncompromising nobleness among immortal rebuilders of her people's life in the land of Israel; inspiring bringer of multitudes of Jewish women, Hadassah, to the altar of high service to their people and their people's homeland."

Since that time Miss Szold has gone on to other work, for it was in 1933, when she had her trunk packed and was ready to leave Palestine for a long rest, that Hitler came to power in Germany and precipitated a situation similar to that of the Jews under the Russian Tsar half a century before.

A WELCOMING board for German refugees was formed in Palestine; Miss Szold unpacked her trunks and became one of the heads of the board. She decided to exert her energies toward helping the children, formed the Youth Aliyah Movement and to date has helped to settle 1000 boys and girls from the ages of 13 to 17 in the colonies and training centers of Palestine. At the Zionist Congress in Luzerne, Switzerland, last August, it was announced that one of the children's colonies would bear Miss Szold's name.

Thus Henrietta Szold finds herself again busy with Jewish refugees. She says that the plight of these German Jews reminds her of nothing so much as the plight of the Russian Jews who escaped to America in the 1880s and 1890s. But in spite of the tragic stories which she hears all the time, Miss Szold is not one whit discouraged; she believes her name comes from the word "soldat," meaning soldier, and she intends to go on brave and unafraid as a soldier in the interests of justice, humanity and peace.

Henrietta Szold's desire to help the suffering and allay the misery of her people did not spring up out of thin air. Born on December 21, 1860, in Baltimore, she was the eldest of the five daughters of Rabbi and Mrs. Benjamin Szold. Rabbi Szold, who died in 1902, was born in Hungary; in 1859 he came to America and became the Rabbi of the Oheb Shalom Congregation in Baltimore, where he spent the rest of his life.

Rabbi Szold, according to the testimony of his friends and family, was more than a Rabbi; he was a rare type of man, gentle, cultured, sensitive and sympathetic. He was a writer, a Hebrew scholar and a pioneer in Zionism, anticipating Theodore Herzl, the father of the present Zionist movement; toward his children, Rabbi Szold acted in the Rousseau tradition, believing that they should be allowed full play for their individualism.

Henrietta, like all her sisters, won a gold medal at the Western Female High School in Baltimore. At the age of 18 she was teaching history and languages at the Misses' Adams, a fashionable school for girls in Baltimore, and giving instruction in Hebrew and general subjects privately.

She rejected the social opportunities that came her way and refused to join an exclusive club because it discriminated against members of her race. Though the Szold home was lively and friendly, hospitable and full of humor and action, Henrietta through her father became interested in the plight of the Russian Jewish immigrants then fleeing to our shores from the pogroms that the Tsar and his cossacks were inflicting upon them. A PLUGGER for the MERIT SYSTEM

Col. D. V. MacCormack.

WHEN the St. Louis chapter of the League of Women Voters held a rally (in which 75 other organizations participated) to launch a two-year campaign for general adoption of the merit system in all phases of government, the featured speaker of the evening was Colonel Daniel William MacCormack. Obviously this slender, rangy military man, whom Frances Perkins had picked as her Commissioner of Immigration, was not put on the program for his eloquence. He isn't a silver-tongued orator, by a long shot. But he has found his career as civil servant so adventurous and satisfying that merely exhibiting him would have dramatized the point the League was trying to get over. Even a matter-of-fact, middle-aged officer with reddish face and military moustache, heming and hawing, can be dramatic when he speaks of the thing around which he has built a varied and colorful life. This one's shop talk is so persuasive that when Senator Gerald P. Nye heard him on the radio last summer, he had the entire speech incorporated in the Congressional Record.

Colonel MacCormack represents a type less familiar in America, where civil service is regarded as a job for drudges, than in England, where it is a career for men like Captain Anthony Eden and his kind.

Although there is no place precisely designated for Americans of Colonel MacCormack's type, he has found his way into a career one might envisage merely seeing him, trim, weathered and competent, in the street. Since running away from school to get into the Philippine rebellion in '99, he has managed plants and a commissary department in Panama, handled transportation problems during the World War, acted on a League of Nations mission in Russia, served on an American mission to Persia, been Persia's plenipotentiary to the League, handled relief in a famine, organized receiverships, been a bank president. He has seen active service in battles and wouldn't mind doing so again if he were told to. He has been a secret agent. He is the kind of man who could always be trusted to do his duty without reasoning why. Primarily he represents the kind of mind that delights in organization and reorganization. Straightening out a mess—whether in military, departmental or financial affairs, is never an insuperable problem for him. He gives the impression of perfect imperturbability and will tell you himself that he is not a man of ideas, but one of action. Talking to him one becomes convinced that he has always kept opinion and theories at a safe distance.

The very lack of poetry that characterizes his views on any general subject makes him effective in a crisis and able to see the essential points in any problem without neglecting the details. When he received the appointment as Commissioner General of Immigration and Naturalization at the outset of the Roosevelt administration, he was brought to Washington merely to straighten up a departmental tangle. There were seven men with independent positions in that branch of the Department of Labor. Now there is only one and more is done than ever before. It is his penchant for systematizing that convinces him of the need for civil service reform and convinces those who hear him that he is perfectly correct in his conclusions.

At the same time he is not a human machine. His first important act as Commissioner was to get 1200 deportations stayed while he campaigned for a revision of present absurd laws. These laws have resulted in mandatory deportation in such cases as those of a Ukranian social worker whose train passed through Canada between two cities in the United States, a Canadian trained nurse who happened to run short of money while being treated for tuberculosis at a California hospital, a 9-year-old boy whose mother forgot to register him when he entered from Canada and whose father must be deported to Rumania while he is shipped off to Canada, a German sailor who took his wife's body to Germany in compliance with her deathbed request. . . . Seeing such cases stacked up by hundreds while alien criminals were able to avoid deportation without effort, Colonel MacCormack found himself forced to continue in office much longer than he had planned, even though it meant giving up profitable offices as a banker in New York. Barring accidents, he will stay in office until he gets his reforms legalized. The civil service reorganization, so far as his own office was concerned, was the easiest part of the job.

STRANGE to say, this man who is Commissioner of Immigration and a believer in the merit system, is himself an immigrant and a political appointee. He was born in Scotland and brought to America by his parents as an infant. His father, a Massachusetts rug manufacturer, hoped he would follow him into business. By the time he had been at school in Boston College, Gordon's College in Scotland and St. Laurent's in Montreal, he had made up his mind that whatever he did, he would not go into business. After one frustrated effort, he was allowed to volunteer at the age of 19 for service in the Philippine insurrection. He felt that "was still something that was glorious in a drab world." After two years of guerilla fighting and three hair's breadth escapes—"maybe an evidence that I was a sort of long-headed person; I don't know"—he had to work in a department store and a rubber company. Convinced that the building of the Panama Canal was the only really exciting thing going on in the peaceful days of the early 1900s, he took civil service examinations and went down there. After five or six years in various minor jobs, he became superintendent of plants and manager of the commissary department. Controlling an enormous supply system and stocking the colony in preparation for posible foreign invasion from both oceans, MacCormack found his "drab world" going through the "most interesting era posible to live in." When America entered the war he was called to New York to help organize the transport system.

In various capacities, as civilian and later as officer, he kept with that administrative job until the armistice, stayed in the army several years afterwards, still doing what might be called upper grade civil service, al-

ADVERTISED for a HUSBAND for HIS WIFE

And Then Took the First Mrs. Kolb as a Guest to the Engagement Party for Her Blonde Successor.

Mrs. Gertrude Kolb, wife No. 2.

Norbert Ulrich Kolb.

Mrs. Ella Kolb, wife No. 1.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

CHICAGO.

“WANTED: A congenial companion; by a widow, 35, with $20,000.” There was nothing unusual on the face of the advertisement, which appeared in Chicago's respectable German Abendpost three years ago this month. But there was something unusual about it; several things. For one, though perhaps the least remarkable, it was not inserted by the “widow.” In fact, she was not even a widow, and she was not particularly eager to become one—though it must be conceded, in the light of recent disclosures, that she must have considered the possibilities.

It had been inserted by Norbert Ulrich Kolb, stocky contractor in tuckpointing, who had not overstated in the least about the age or the $20,000, though he certainly jumped the gun a little in describing his wife of 11 years as “a widow.” He was doing, it seemed to him, the kindly thing. He wanted to marry a blonde, but before he did so, he would find a new man for Ella.

The ad was merely one unorthodox move in a set of fantastic circumstances which reached a denouement late last month, when Circuit Judge Harry M. Fisher threw out of court a $75,000 alienation suit, brought against Mrs. Gertrude Gabriel Kolb, the blonde second wife, by Mrs. Ella Kolb, who divorced the tuckpointer January 26, 1934, on grounds of cruelty.

Norbert Kolb is 42 years old, ash-blond, inclined to corpulence, with a small, fastidious mustache. He smiled complacently during the entire trial, changing his expression to a glare only when his first wife, Ella, testified against his second wife, Gertrude.

Ella, who admits 36, was less at ease. Just recovering from a nervous breakdown, she was thin and obviously confused. Her heavily-shadowed brown eyes constantly, and truculently, turned toward her successor.

Gertrude, the present wife, is 24, buxom as well as blonde. Her blue eyes smiled as she nestled beside her slinky caracul and silver fox wrap and denied all charges. She smiled again when Judge Fisher pronounced her, rather than Ella, the “victim of this strange comedy,” and declared that the case should never have come to court.

Before Kolb advertised for another man to take his “widow,” he had resorted to equally ingenious devices to win the love of Gertrude, it developed at the trial.

First, there was the day he met her, in January, 1932, in Springfield, Illinois.

Gertrude, then a willowy blonde of 20, was looking over cars in an automobile agency. So was the 39-year-old Kolb. So they met, but not as Miss Gabriel and Mr. Kolb, but as Miss Gabriel and “Tom Rourke,” an Irish garage man—and a lonseome bachelor.

“Did he speak then, as he does now, with a marked German accent?” John O. Wagner, attorney for Ella, asked Gertrude.

“Yes,” Gertrude replied demurely, “but I thought he was Irish just the same.”

Kolb, when asked why he assumed the name of “Rourke,” replied that “it was just the first to enter my mind.”

“I suppose,” he added thoughtfully, “that I could just as well have made it O'Rourke.”

He told Gertrude he worked at night, and consequently saw her only during the daytime. When he left the city he wrote frequently and lovingly, signing his name “Turkey.”

“Why Turkey?” he was asked.

“Oh,” he said, his full face red, “I told her I was a regular Irish turkey.” No definition of “Irish” turkey is of record.

Gertrude came to Chicago with her sister and visited often in the Kolb household. Ella was introduced as Kolb's sister.

“Why did I consent?” repeated Ella. “Well, Mr. Kolb just had such an awful temper.”

“Norbert told me Ella, his sister, wanted to see if I'd make him a suitable wife,” Gertrude testified, “and I thought that was reasonable.”

“Ella said she didn't like Gertrude, but that she'd still give me a divorce if I'd find her another man,” explained Norbert.

“All she wanted was another man,” announced Gertrude. “It seemed that anyone would do.”

So, with that solution in mind, Kolb ran the blind ad.

“There were 50 answers,” he testified.

“Ten,” corrected Ella.

Ella did not see the advertisement, she testified, because she cannot read German, but Kolb used to bring the replies home at night, and together they would mull over them.

Only two replies apparently were worth investigating and to see these two “congenial companions,” the lonely “widow” and her thoughtful husband repaired together.

Ella went not as Kolb's wife, but—as in her interviews with Gertrude—as a “sister.” Kolb was the solicitous brother, out to guard her interests, as well as the $20,000 he was to give her.

Neither prospect testified at the trial, but one, a Mr. Keller, stood up in the courtroom and was identified. Thin, spare and bald-headed—and now the possessor of a wife without benefit of advertisement—he told, in an affidavit, of their “look-me-over” meeting.

“I was reading the ads in the Abendpost when I saw where a widow wanted a man,” he recalled, “so I wrote a reply. Pretty soon I got a telephone call from a woman who said she wanted an appointment with me.

“So Saturday morning about 11 o'clock she came over to my place with a man she introduced as her brother. I took her and her brother out into the yard and through the house and told them that my wife had died and that I had three children and that I was looking for a woman.

“She told me that she was a widow, but I can't remember whether she said her husband was dead or divorced.

“We talked for about 10 or 15 minutes, and then she talked about meeting again. She asked me to call her again to make arrangements.”

Here he paused expressively.

“I did not call her again,” he concluded.

“When we got home,” Kolb testified, “Ella said, ‘That guy's too short for me. Besides, he's got a couple of kids. I don't think I'd like him.’ ”

“I just wasn't interested,” Ella said, “and then Norbert got nasty. Besides,” she added, “I never did get a chance to talk to him much. Norbert did all the talking. I just looked.”

ANOTHER man, a Mr. Newman, was brought to the Kolb home by “Brother” Norbert, but Mr. Newman, they felt, was interested not in the “widow,” but in her cash.

“He wanted her to invest $15,000 in a tavern,” Kolb testified, “so we turned him down.”

There was, Ella testified, still a third man whom they interviewed jointly, who, unlike Mr. Keller, did telephone again.

“But when I told him Mr. Kolb was my husband and not my brother, he said, ‘Why, that dirty dog!’—and hung up.” This quest also having failed to produce a husband for “Sister” Ella, the woman then joined a matrimonial agency, the Aristo Club, through which one lonely heart communes with another, Kolb said. This, however, produced nothing at all.

“He wanted me to get interested in someone else, but I guess I'm just a one-man woman,” was Ella's comment.

Kolb essayed another solution.

“I tell you, Ella,” he said, “after Gertrude and I get married, you come and live with us. That'll be all right.”

“No,” said Ella. “I'd better not.”

“You see,” she explained after the trial, “that kind of life would have been too fast for me. I'm a home-body woman, Norbert and that other woman like to dance and be fast. I guess I'm just old-fashioned.”

She was not too old-fashioned, however, as the testimony showed, to continue the strange triangle for some months more, and even to be present while her husband presented an engagement ring to “that other woman.”

This occurred on February 23, 1933—Gertrude's birthday—at an elaborate party arranged by Kolb at the 900 Restaurant in Chicago.

Ella's mother was there. So were her two sisters, and some of her friends. Gertrude's mother also was there. So were her father and her 10 brothers and sisters.

It was, in short, a festive occasion for all, planned so that Gertrude's family could meet Kolb and Ella's family meet Gertrude.

“I introduced Ella as my sister, of course,” Kolb testified. “I didn't want Gertrude's family to know I was married.”

There was much merriment, with a singing waiter as toastmaster, and finally came the great moment when Kolb placed a mammoth diamond on Gertrude's third finger.

“May our love never die!” he declaimed.

“It was just a toast,” he testified, “but I meant it.”

“Later,” he continued, “I went on home with Ella, and she didn't reprimand me any. She just said she didn't like Gertrude's family.”

In March, 1933, Ella and Kolb decided to separate, but before the separation Ella went to Gertrude.

“I said, ‘I'll give you $15,000 if you'll leave him alone,’ ” she testified. “ ‘You know you only want him for his money.’

“She said, ‘I have $50,000 in stocks and bonds myself.’

“Later she told him I had been there and he threatened to shoot me.”

Gertrude, put on the stand the following day in defense, denied all that.

In December, 1933, Kolb went to Reno, but even there, he could not forget Ella, according to her testimony.

He sent her letters. He sent her post cards, and, she said, he even sent a $75 diamond lavalliere for Christmas. But when she telephoned him one night that the apartment had been robbed and that she'd give him a divorce if he came home, he came.

“If we've lived together all these years, we can live together the rest of our lives,” she quoted him as saying.

Two weeks after his return, he had Gertrude out to a dinner that Ella had cooked.

Ella waited until January, 1934, to get her divorce, but she did not wait that long, Kolb testified, to take $19,000 from a joint safe deposit box. This she kept as her “widow's right,” but in addition insisted on $6500 more.

“Why did you make that demand?” Maurice Turner, attorney for Gertrude, asked Ella.

“WELL,” she said diffidently, “I didn't want the divorce. He knew he was doing me an injustice.”

“Would you have given him that divorce if he had refused the money?”

“No,” she said. “No.”

She proudly declared she had “taken him back” three times, and would do so again at a moment's notice.

“He was thoughtful,” she mused on the stand. “He hated to hurt me, so he wanted me to get interested in somebody else and we would always live together and be friends.”

At the end of a five-day hearing, without a jury, Judge Fisher declared the case “to be more of a comedy than a serious situation.”

“Kolb meets Gertrude as a single man,” he said. “There is nothing to indicate she enticed his affections. For several months she does not even know he is married.

“If a conspiracy existed here, certainly the wife (Ella) was one of the arch conspirators. The present wife is the only victim.”

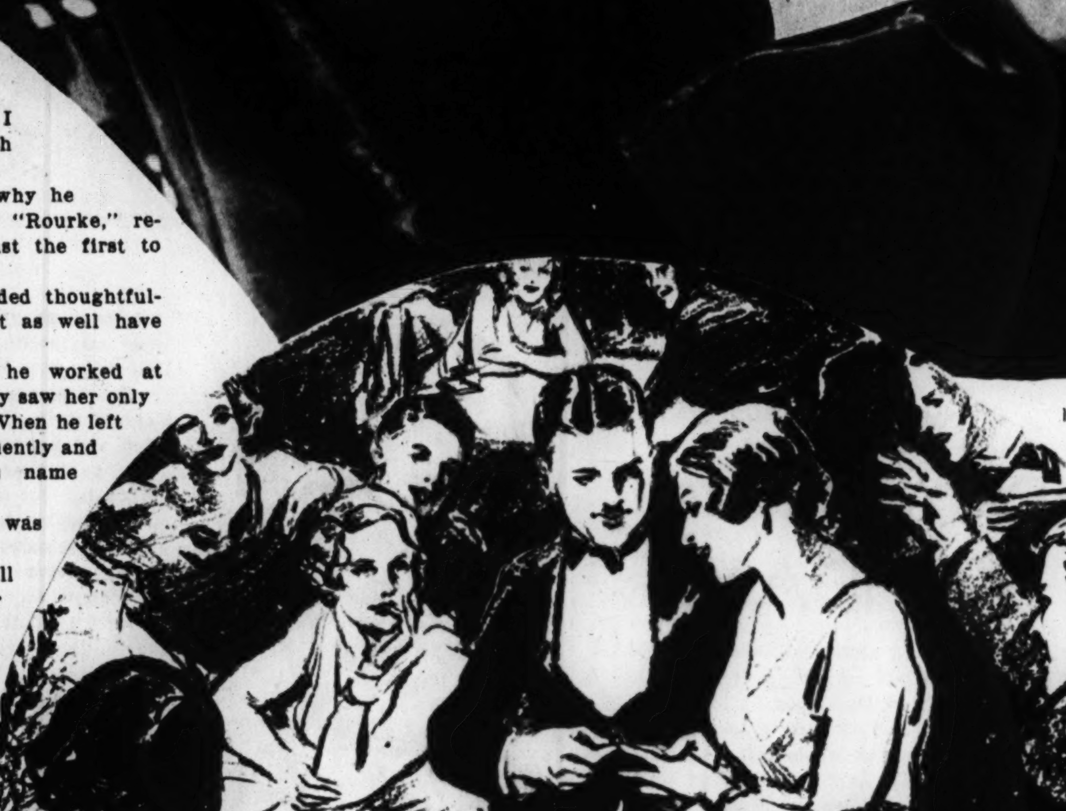
Ella and her attorney, Wagner, intend to appeal the case, but in the meantime Norbert and Gertrude are jubilant.

“I wouldn't have given her up for anything,” he said of Gertrude—and of Ella: “The love I had from her was so cold that I had to play solitaire from dinner time until I went to bed.”

And Ella herself sits sadly at the scene of what she says was once only connubial bliss. She has one companion. He is congenial, and quite talkative at times, but it took neither an advertisement nor a matrimonial agency to get him. His name is Dickie. He is a canary.

“Mr. Kolb gave him to me when he left,” she says without rancor. “He didn't want me to be lonesome.”

On her grand piano is a large picture of herself. On a nearby table, partially concealed, is one of Kolb. And in the middle of the living room's only book, carefully filed away, are the Rev. Clinton C. Cox's “Eight Rules for Marital Bliss”!



“Finally came the great moment when Kolb placed a mammoth diamond on Gertrude's third finger.

When the Hurricane Salvaged Coins of Charles IV

And How 15-Year-old Marion Grim Found Them on a Florida Beach.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

FORT LAUDERDALE, Florida.

TREASURE fever is running high again. Substantial citizens in trunks and sneakers, decorative young women in next to nothing, swarm on the sands off which slim, contemptuous Spaniards once sent burned and looted hulks to the bottom. But it's only a matter of days since substantial citizens in hundreds turned out with spades to dig for treasure, and Spanish gold is still a live topic beside the sunshades on the beach, over cocktails on the terrace, in the resort hotels and "cottages"—one room and kitchenette to 30 rooms and 12 servants—along 200 miles of coastline.

Curiously, it was an ill wind that set it off, a very ill wind. On the first three days of November a hurricane wandered, vagariously, northward out of the Caribbean, changing direction so frequently that ships and weather stations completely lost sight of it for many hours at a time. Far out at sea it swept northward as far as the Carolinas, and there was a sort of sardonic rejoicing among the resort towns further south. And then it snakily recurved, drove the tall Atlantic rollers crashing in as it passed Jacksonville and Daytona Beach again—300 miles at sea—and capriciously pounced on Miami.

That was Nov. 4. Next day hundreds turned out to see the ravished avenues of royal palms, the bedraggled bits of wreckage that had been moored pleasure craft, trim and fleet, now smashed on the dock; the ravines cut overnight in the dunes and brand new dunes that the storm had flung across Ocean Shore boulevard between Miami and Fort Lauderdale. A covey of youngsters, busy as sandpipers, chirped and chattered and ducked the spray as they searched the brown drift of seaweed, the shells and driftwood and miscellaneous junk, flung far up the beach by a surf that was still running unusually high.

One of these lads, looking for sea beans "for good luck," strange fish, brightly colored shells or other precious drifts, was Marion Grim, 15 years old, a student, like most of his comrades, in Fort Lauderdale High School. Spanish treasure was far from his mind. The last treasure excitement, in that immediate vicinity, had passed nearly two years ago.

Following the line of that rank brown litter down the beach—its odor, to the urchins, was the fragrance of smoke to a fire horse—Marion came on a dull, corroded disc, the size of a half-dollar, sunken in the yellow sand. Near it was another. And another.

Marion fished them out, flicked off the sand, tucked them in a pocket until he could find no more, and that pocket was full. He trotted on with the boys for more plunder, valueless, perhaps, but exciting.

Next day, looking over the loot, he came across the discs and tried to clean them up. He was beginning to suspect that they might be money—though silver or gold could not plausibly get in that condition. The dull incrustation was stubborn. But finally he got it off one coin.

It was a Spanish silver piece cast in the reign of Charles IV!

Eagerly he set to work on the others. Each was silver, each a Spanish coin, and each of about the date of the War of 1812—when Andrew Jackson, who had just had most amusing and momentous adventures with Englishmen and cotton bales at New Orleans, was busily chasing Spaniards out of Florida.

THAT was on November 6. On November 7 hundreds of persons were out with curious and formidable implements to dig for Spanish treasure. They found none. Though the storm had passed, squalls still were chasing each other across the outer reefs, and the surf was still charging in with a force that sent high tide up to the mark set on the morning of the storm itself. If there had been more coins where young Sims found his handful, high tide had buried them or washed them out again.

Spades were reluctantly returned to the garden. But the searchers are still sitting up nights to pore over old records, speculate on the source of the "Grim discovery" and to scheme ways to get whatever is left wherever those coins came from.

The Congressional Library, to which a photograph was sent with inquiry about their source and the probability of finding more, responded with a note on the Spanish treasure ships known to have sunk off this coast, beginning in 1595 with the Santa Margarita and a cargo of $6,000,000 in silver. Just 300 years later an American diver repairing a cable found the ship and treasure intact, 60 miles north of Fort Lauderdale.

HE CHARTERED a cutter to salvage it, but his ship was wrecked and he barely escaped with his life. These 40 years since then, the treasure has not been sighted—so far as anyone knows, though there are stories of secret midnight finds all up and down this coast.

Grim's coins were dated a century later than the wreck of the Santa Margarita. But, even then, buccaneers were raiding rich quarry, "wreckers" were exacting tribute from ships aground—or looting them off-hand—and ships were being lured to disaster by lights on shore behind the reefs. In 1818 Andrew Jackson took Pensacola, Spanish capital of West Florida. In 1821 the United States took over the whole State, and recorded history tells a little and suggests still more of the Spanish treasure lugged hastily on board ships for Havana, only to encounter disaster en route.

From one of these, most likely, came young Grim's coins, with heads of the Charleses and dates of 1808 to 1822. Similar finds are reported from time to time—a lump of molten silver and gold among charred timbers at Coconut Grove, two ingots of silver at the mouth of New River. Three treasure hunts are on the way now in Florida waters and the Spanish Main. There must be more where these coins came from . . . if anyone can find it.

His opinions about needed civil service reforms which would make it possible for ambitious young men to enter the service with hopes of a respectable and useful career are simple and well organized. He proposes, first, to make it harder to get into the service by tightening up and broadening the examinations; second, to make it easier to weed out incompetents by extending the probationary period for several years and discharging 40 per cent of all probationers, leaving only the most efficient; third, to subject the survivors to a rigorous test two years later, thus eliminating all who had failed to get a thorough grasp of their work; fourth, to give those who remained after this sifting process a contract with the Government, permitting them to retain office until they become superannuated, then to give them a decent pension for life. The object of all this is, of course, to put technically trained people into technical positions and to permit the best of them to rise to the top on a basis of sheer merit, without resorting to political methods.

Colonel MacCormack feels that all this would be very easy to do. America would have a municipal, national and foreign civil service as fine as England's, he says, "if we got the habit of insisting on high standards. If you once let things slip," he adds, "they'll keep on slipping." He doesn't think the politicians would mind losing their juiciest political plums if they could get the idea about "high standards." Thus far his optimistic attitude hasn't been borne out in fact.

line of fire, aren't hit. Neither are the deputy sheriffs. Virtue was virtue in them days. An honest man shot from the hip; the bullets always found their target.

The length jumped up to 2000 feet (two reels) in Pathe's production of "Faust," which came along in 1905. "Faust" brought a couple of innovations, too. Color, of a remarkably effective kind, is introduced here for the first time in the red garb of Mephisto. Sometimes the color jumps off the clothing for a second, but it always comes back where it belongs. It was, of course, done by hand. The other innovation is the use of visions to depict a character's thoughts; as when Marguerite is thinking, in her room, of her meeting with Faust, the meeting scene is reproduced on a large tapestry hanging behind her. The cast of this film is not of record.

Last in the sequence is the film which did more to give the new art prestige than any other. It is "Queen Elizabeth," starring the great Sarah Bernhardt. It was produced in 1911.

"This is my one chance of immortality," cried Mme. Bernhardt when the notion of becoming a film actress was first broached to her. Unfortunately, for her, her immortality will be one of a museum nature. Her painstakingly pantomimic acting, necessitated by the limitations of her medium, verges on the ridiculous. However, the mere lending of her immense prestige to the budding art form was a tremendous boost. Even the fact that "Queen Elizabeth" was merely a photographed play couldn't dim its lustre. The film, directed by Louis Mercanton and made in France, was acquired for American display by Adolph Zukor. He distributed it as the first of the "Famous Plays With Famous Players." This was the birth of the firm now known as Paramount. A posturing young actor named Lou Tellegen played opposite Mme. Bernhardt as Essex.

"Queen Elizabeth," stilted and artificial, drew more laughs from the preview audience than any other film on the program. Oddly, the funniest scene was the death scene. Mme. Bernhardt's high dive into a mess of pillows, after a fit of noble hysterics before her court, was done in the Ben Turpin manner. If this is irreverence—well, Mme. Bernhardt shouldn't have been so vain as to think she could attain earthly immortality.

What made the passage doubly ludicrous was the quaint custom of having the star take a curtain bow at the end of the film. If the Divine Sarah could have heard the spontaneous guffaws!

To recreate almost exactly the spirit of the old nickelodeon, the Modern Museum has dug into the files and resurrected the old nickelodeon music. Special scores have been prepared to go with the film sequences, written for piano. During the chase scene in "The Great Train Robbery" the score calls for the old "Ben Hur March," which was often used as "rescue" music. "Everybody Works But Father" is the musical background for "Wash Day Troubles." For the tenderer passages the scores call for "After the Ball," "She Has Seen Better Days," and others. And, naturally, "Narcissus" does its bit. The compilers of the special scores have found that while the nickelodeon piano players all over the country worked out their own accompaniments, they developed a general uniformity of style.

Other film sequences now in preparation will cover the rise of the full-length American film; the newsreels; the films which conspicuously affected behaviour, such as "A Fool There Was," with Theda Bara, which in 1914 introduced the new word "vamp," and the Irene and Vernon Castle film "The Whirl of Life," which stimulated the dancing craze, bobbed hair and jazz bands; the early French and Italian films and those showing the effect of the Swedish, German and Russian.

As the film library's catalogue puts it, its work "will be first and foremost to create a consciousness of tradition and history within the new art of the film."

formed night classes for immigrants, where she taught them how to read, write and speak English. She tried to make them feel more at home in the New World. Then in 1883 she decided to go to New York to organize help on a large scale for the Jewish refugees landing bewildered and penniless, at Ellis Island.

Miss Szold never, of course, lost her interest in the cultural side of life, and when the Jewish Publication Society was formed in Philadelphia in 1888 to publish books by and about Jews, mainly of historical nature, Miss Szold became a member of the board. Five years later, in 1893, she became executive secretary of the Jewish Publication Society, and she remained at that post, acting as the guiding spirit from 1893 to 1916.

During those years of editorship, Henrietta Szold "discovered" two great talents, Israel Zangwill, author of "Children of the Ghetto," and "The Melting Pot," and Sholem Asch, author of "Mottke, the Thief" and a host of other books and stories. Miss Szold saw to it that the Jewish Publication Society gave both of these great writers their first American publication. She herself translated many books from French, German and Hebrew, including "Jewish Ethics," by Lazarus; "Legends of the Jews," by Benjamin Ginsberg; "Hebrew Renaissance," by N. Slouchez. Under her leadership the Jewish Publication Society brought out Greatz's "History of the Jews." Miss Szold herself edited the American Jewish Year Book from 1904 to 1908, and she wrote many articles on a variety of topics.

ON PURIM day in 1912, Miss Szold addressed a group of young women in the basement of the old Temple Emanuel in New York City on the subject of Zionism, which has always been near and dear to her heart. It happened that Miss Szold had made her first trip to Palestine with her mother in 1909 and spent many months there; she had been deeply distressed by the sight of little children blinded by trachoma and trembling with malarial fever. From her years of observation and experience, Miss Szold did not see any benefits for the Jews by assimilation. She believed that the only salvation for the Jews lay in the building of Palestine and she spoke to that first group of women in New York in order to interest them in starting a movement which would undertake the formation of health centers and the spread of good sanitation and healthy physical conditions in the Holy Land.

Thus Miss Szold laid the basis for the Hadassah movement. Today the Hadassah movement has built non-sectarian health centers, hospitals, infant welfare stations, nurses' training schools, and is supervising school luncheons, rural nursing and rural sanitation. Through Miss Szold, Nathan and Lina Straus became interested in the Hadassah and in the Palestine health movement; they have contributed in an extremely generous manner and have erected a series of health centers in Palestine.

For 14 years, from 1912 to 1926, Miss Szold was president of the Hadassah. In 1927 she was given a post in the Palestine Zionist Executive, the only woman ever given such a position. Miss Szold held the portfolio of health and education for three years. She then became an executive of the Ha-Waad Ha-Leumi, or Jewish Council.

SHE believes that perhaps the greatest achievement of the Hadassah is the Rothschild-Hadassah University now being built as a medical center for research and graduate instruction for exiled scholars. Hadassah has petitioned the Palestine Government to name the road from the city walls to this temple of healing the Henrietta Szold boulevard. And every Hadassah chapter in the United States has decided to plant a row of trees along the boulevard.

Just before Miss Szold arrived in America for her birthday, she was named an honorary citizen by the city of Tel Aviv; it was the first time in the city's long history that such an honor had been conferred upon a woman. But the many who adore Miss Szold believe that even such an honor is insufficient because of her great native talents, her realistic mind, her uncompromising probity, her charm as a hostess and friend and her devotion to an ideal which allows her little, if any, strictly personal life.

"3 minutes of my time... and I forgot my troubles!"

There's no doubt about it—the three-minute way certainly makes a difference. Three minutes chewing FEEN-A-MINT, the delicious chewing-gum laxative—then good-bye constipation and the logy way it makes you feel. Have you been using racking "all-at-once" cathartics? Then you know what cramps and griping are. The three-minute way is easy, thorough, and oh so efficient! It's good for the entire family—and children love it.

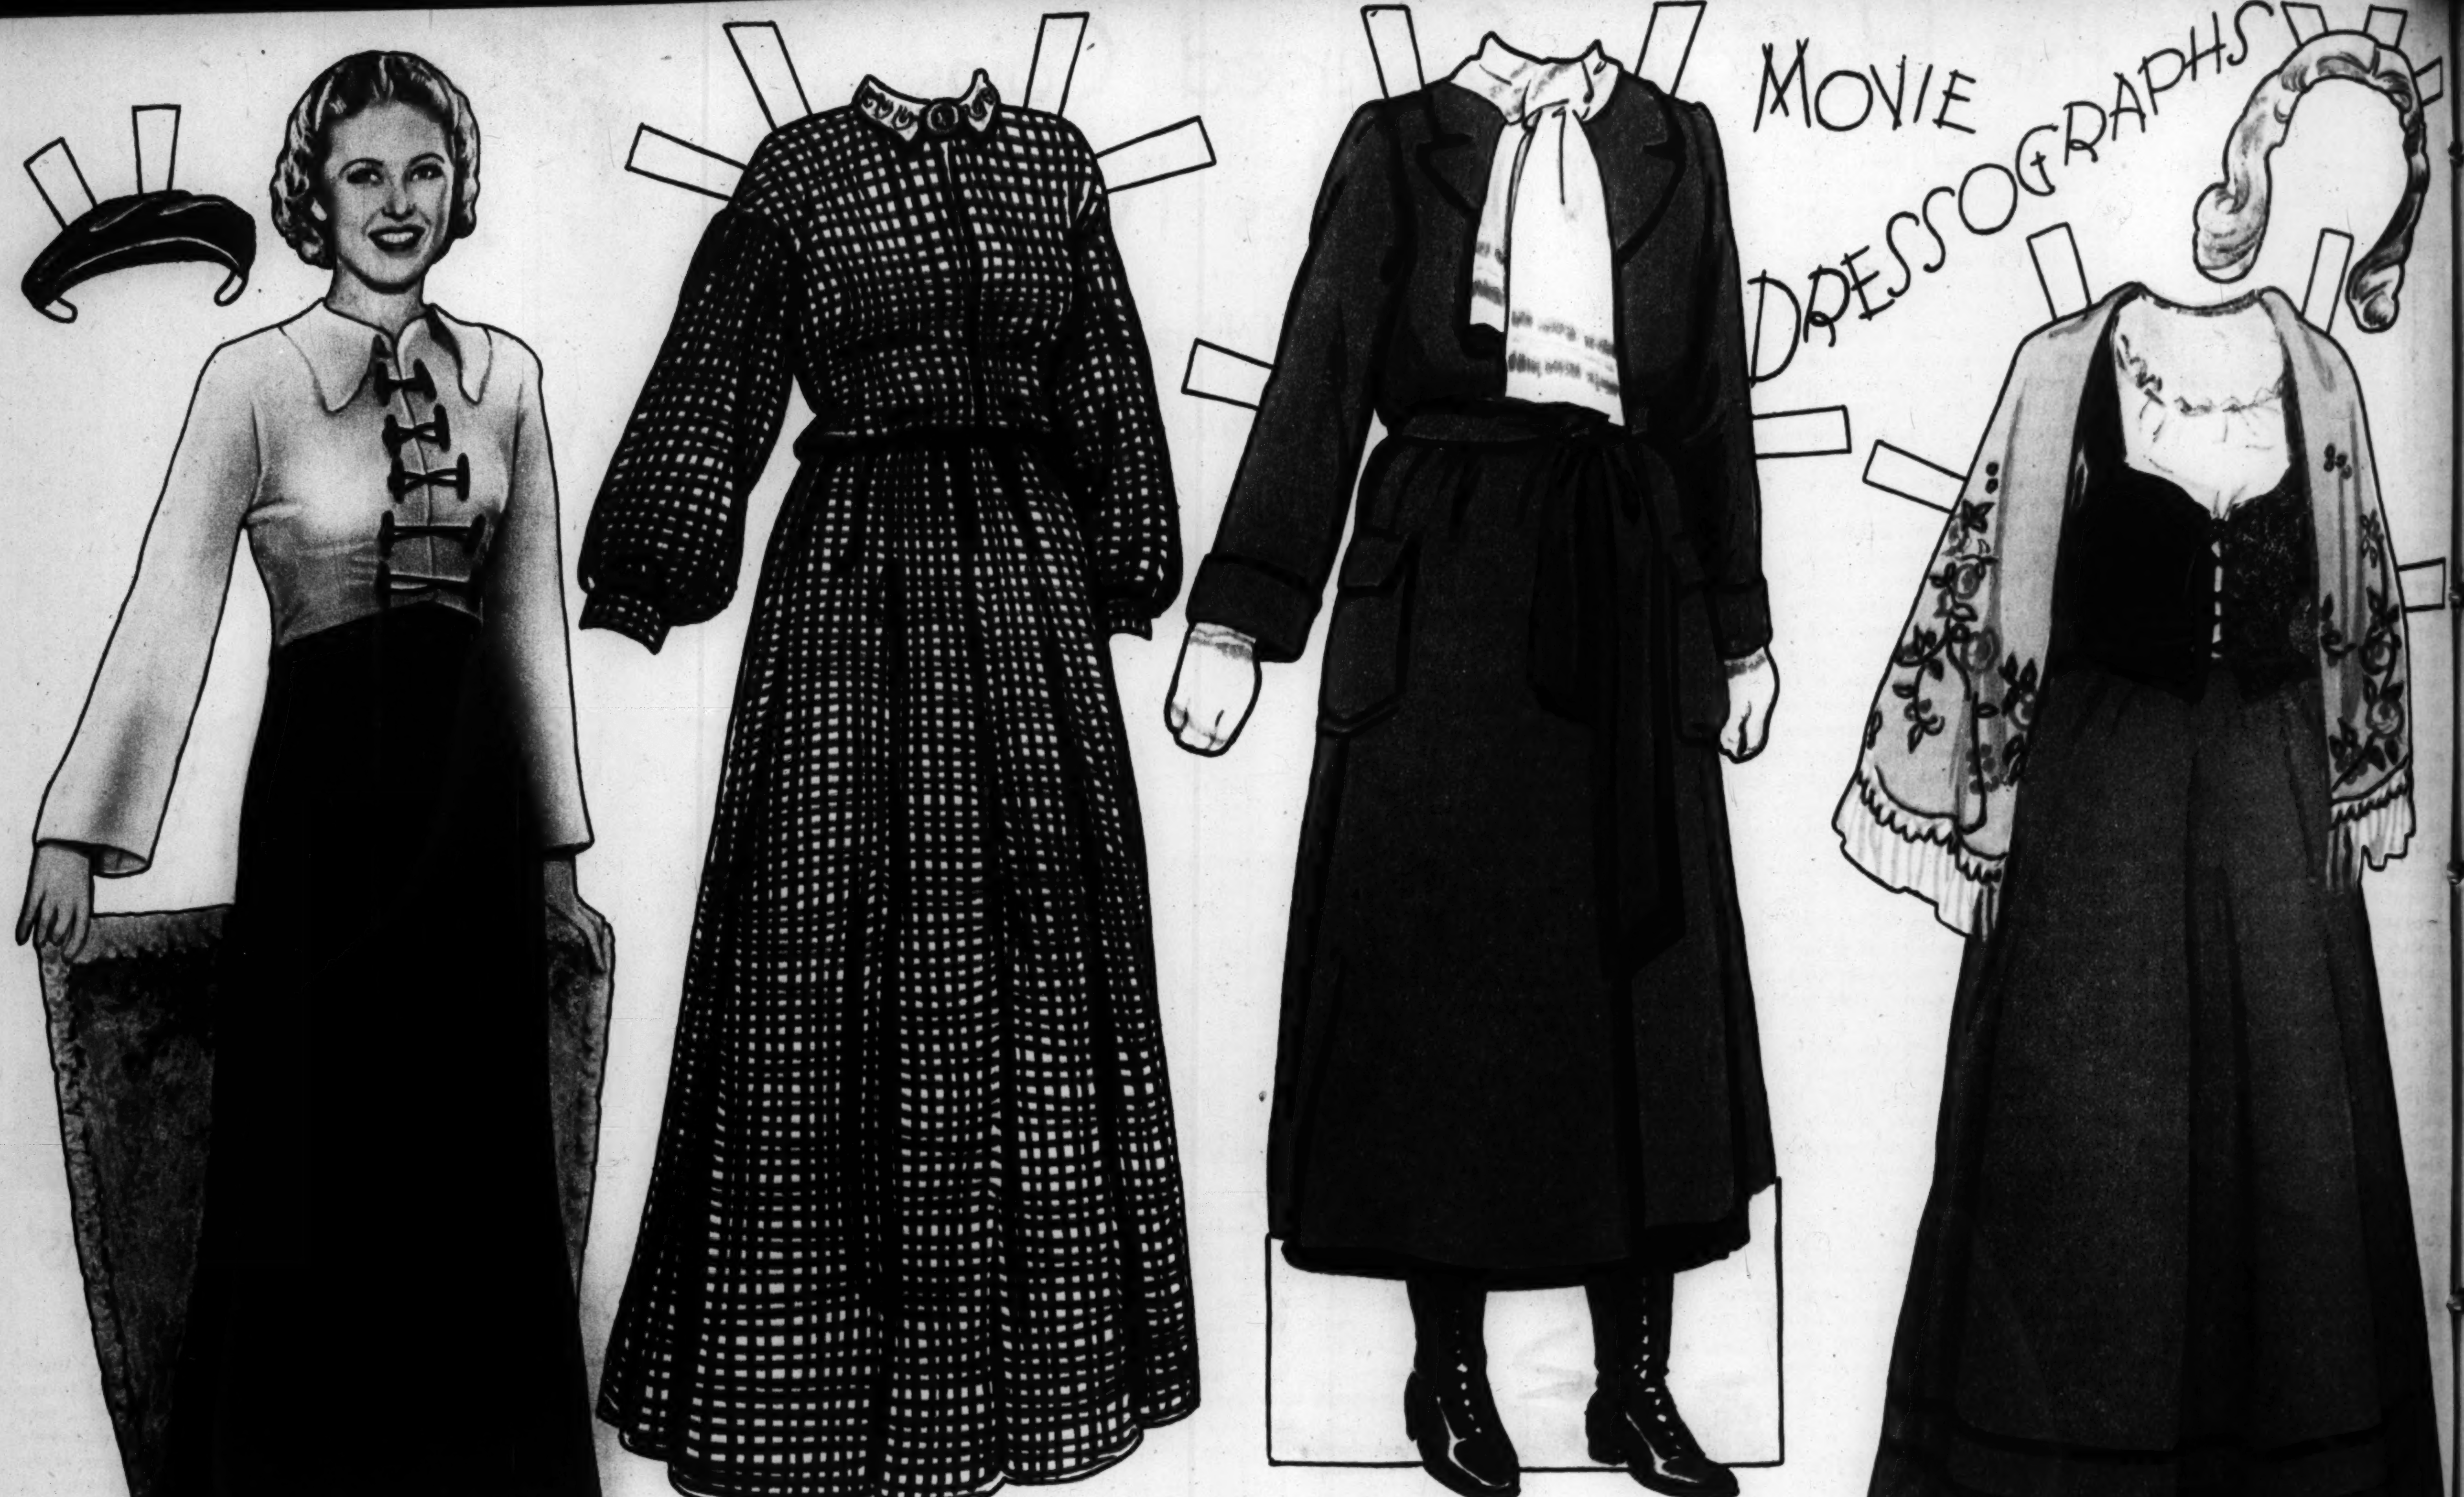
MOVIE DRESSOGRAPHS



JOSEPHINE HUTCHINSON

A different movie star will appear in this space every week. Accompanying each player will be three costumes this particular person wore in various roles played on the screen. Cut out the player and paste on cardboard. Then cut out the costumes. Now dress the star in the proper outfits, being careful to assemble each costume correctly.

The three sets of costumes shown here were worn by Josephine Hutchinson in these roles in the following movies: Madame Pasteur in "Enemy of Man"; Ann Prescott in "The Melody Lingers On", and Hester in "Oil for the Lamps of China."

HICKORY HOLLOW FOLKS

And the Things They Do

By WALTER QUERMANN

THE LOVERS REUNITED

THE CHARACTERS

O. HUM—An opossum whose heart has been pierced by one of Dan Cupid's darts.
SIESTA—O. Hum's sweetheart.
RED WILY—A very unhappy old fox.

O. Hum and Siesta have quarreled. Indeed, Siesta became so angry at O. Hum that she told him she never wanted to see him any more. But O. Hum decided that she would be mighty glad to see him if he did something for her that would make her neighbors jealous. So he hit upon a very dangerous plan. He would catch Red Wily, hitch him to a sled and then drive up to Siesta's house and ask her to go sleigh-riding with him. Through an ingenious ruse he managed to get Red into a cage and, after prodding him with a sharp stick for a while, got the miserable fox to agree to let O. Hum hitch him to a sled. Needless to say, the first bit of harness O. Hum put on the fox was a muzzle, and after that was accomplished, the rest was easy. And we see the happy opossum, his head up, feeling well pleased with himself, riding over to his lady love's as

THE PLAY BEGINS

O. HUM—Now you giddyap, Mr. Fox, and no foolishness. Remember, I still got this here stick. I'm taking my Number One girl riding this evening, and if you behave I might give you an extra bone when I put you in your stable tonight. (Red Wily smarts under the sting of these words. But he says nothing, and in a little while they are in front of Siesta's house. O. Hum calls to Siesta to come out. But she looks out of a window instead.)

O. HUM—Come on down, honey, I want you to go sleigh-riding with me. How do you like my rig?

SIESTA—(Surprised.) Is that Mr. Red Wily you've got pulling that sled?

O. HUM—Yes. Come on down and I'll show you how fast he can go.

SIESTA—Well, you just go show yourself. I wouldn't think of leaving this house with that mean old fox around.

O. HUM—(Pleading.) But honey—I've got him muzzled. He can't hurt you. Honest, he can't. Do you think he'd have pulled me over here if he had anything to say about it? (Siesta thinks this over and after a while agrees to go for a ride. She closes the window and puts on her Sunday best, and in a little while she and O. Hum are riding merrily along.)

SIESTA—Imagine making a fox pull you around. I hope everybody sees us. You must be awful brave to catch a fox. How did you do it?

O. HUM—Hm-m-m. It wasn't anything at all. I just used my brains. We opossums are much smarter than the fox folks, aren't we, Red? (But Red Wily says nothing. He's thinking hard all the time. Siesta had better be careful.)

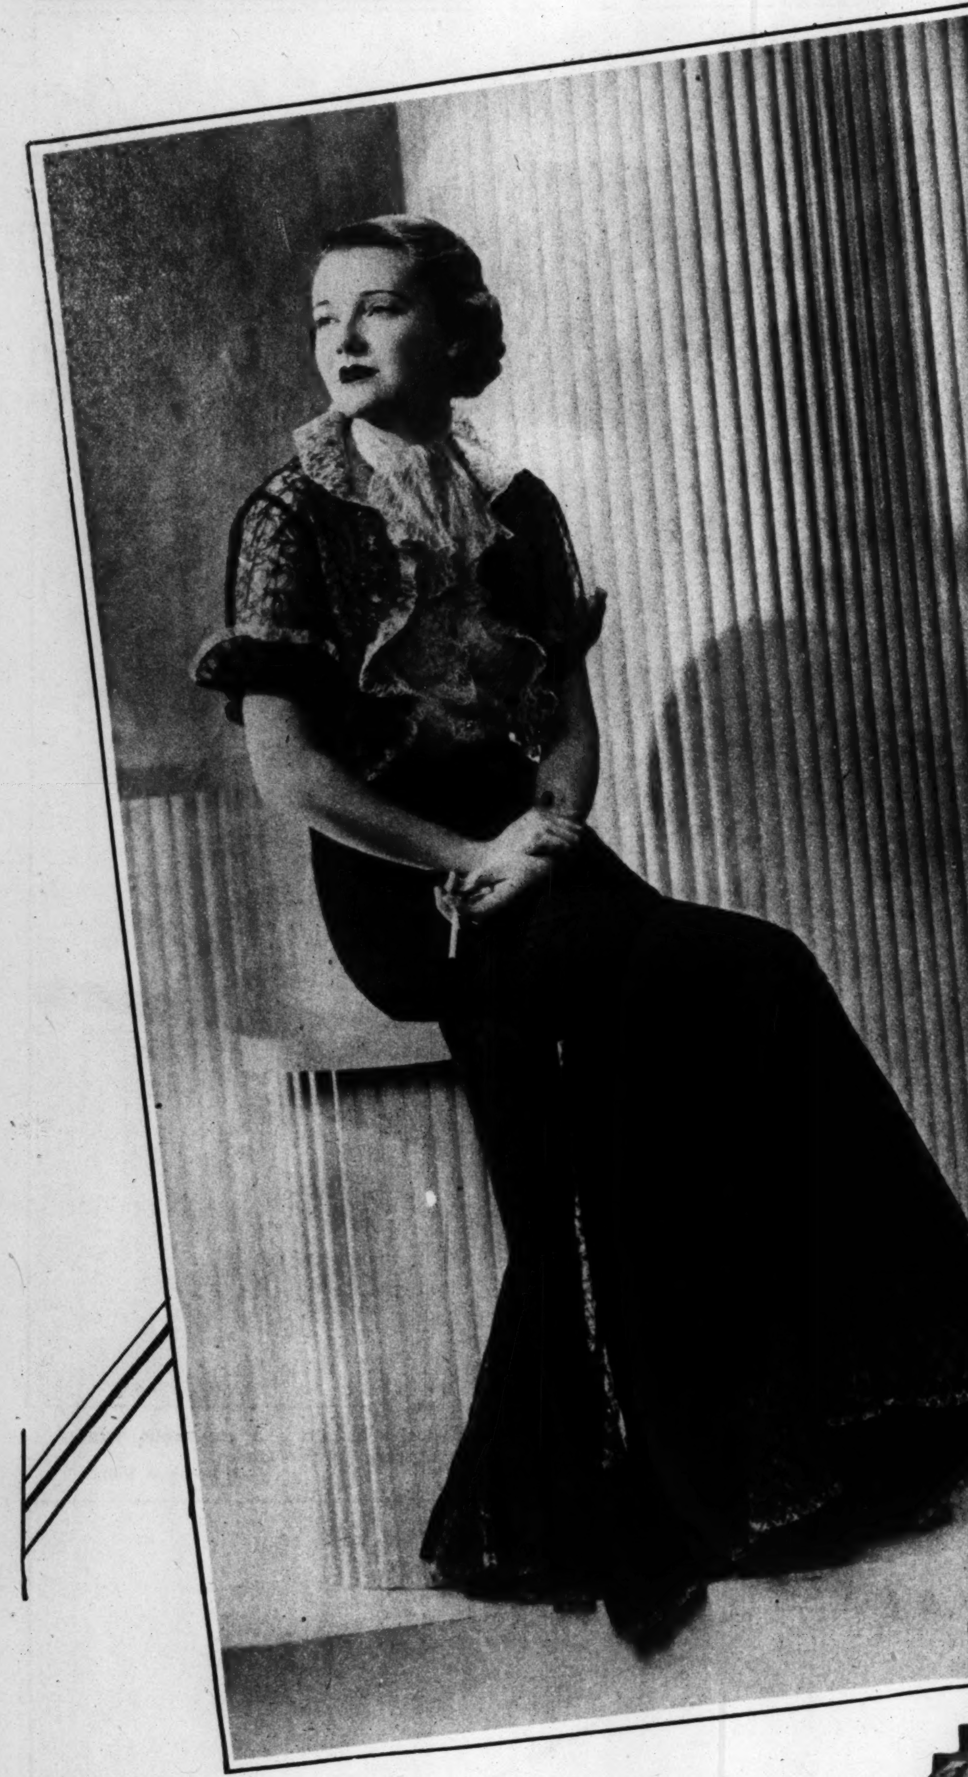
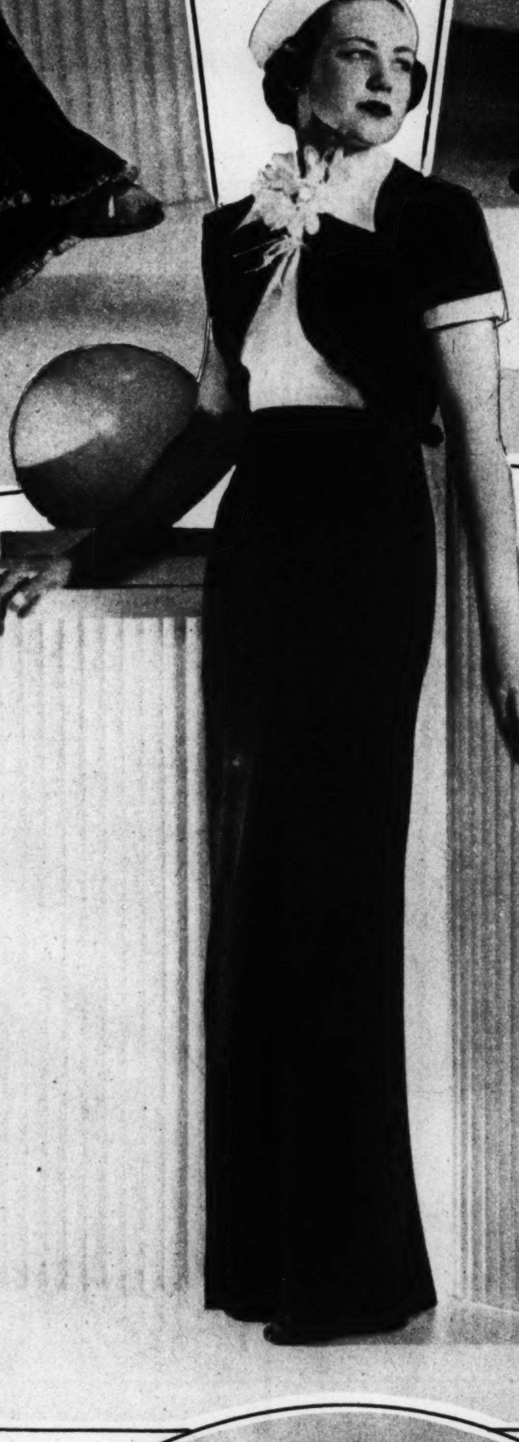
SIX STYLE SUGGESTIONS

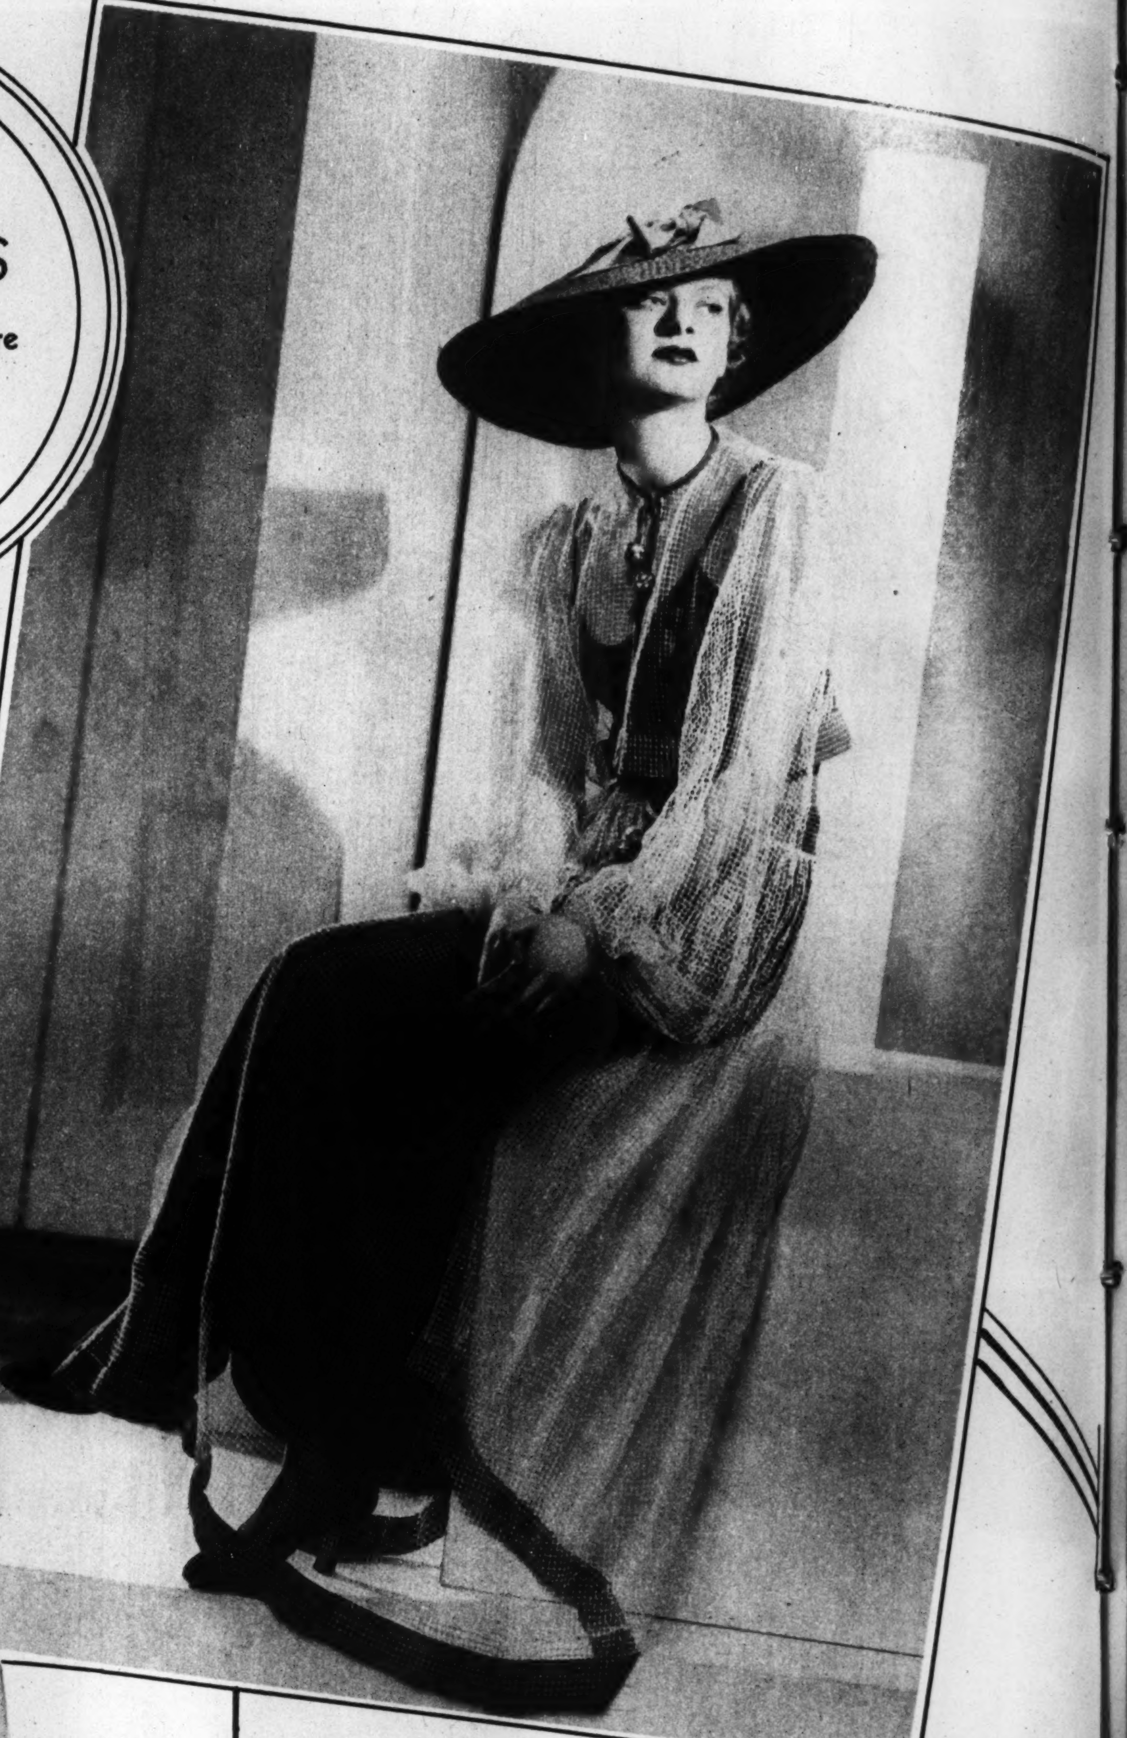
What New York Shops Are Showing for the Short Season



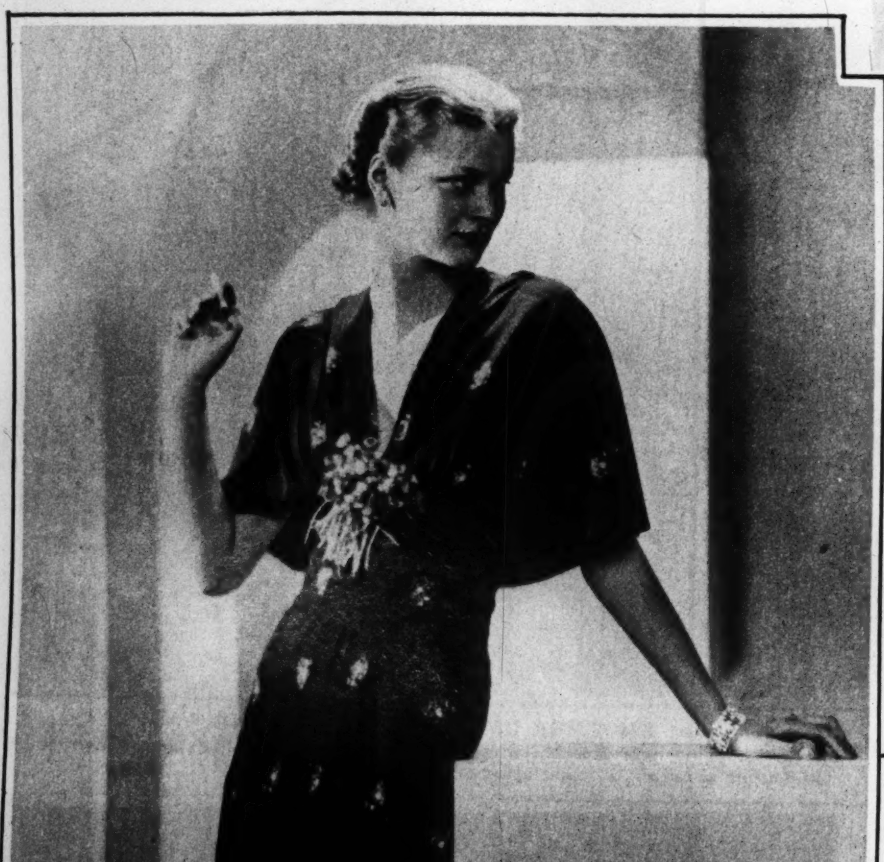
In this black and pink lace frock an Ascot scarf is used to temper the fluffy effect created by pleated ruffles with a touch of severity.



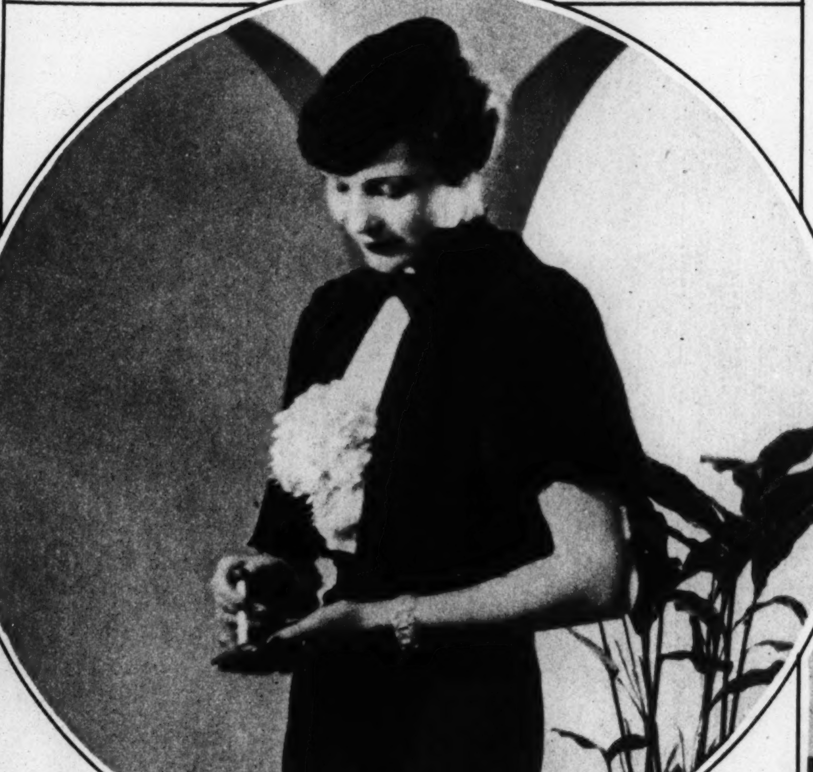
A one-piece dinner dress, designed to look something like a suit, employs white pique flowers and trimmings to emphasize the blackness of heavy black crepe.



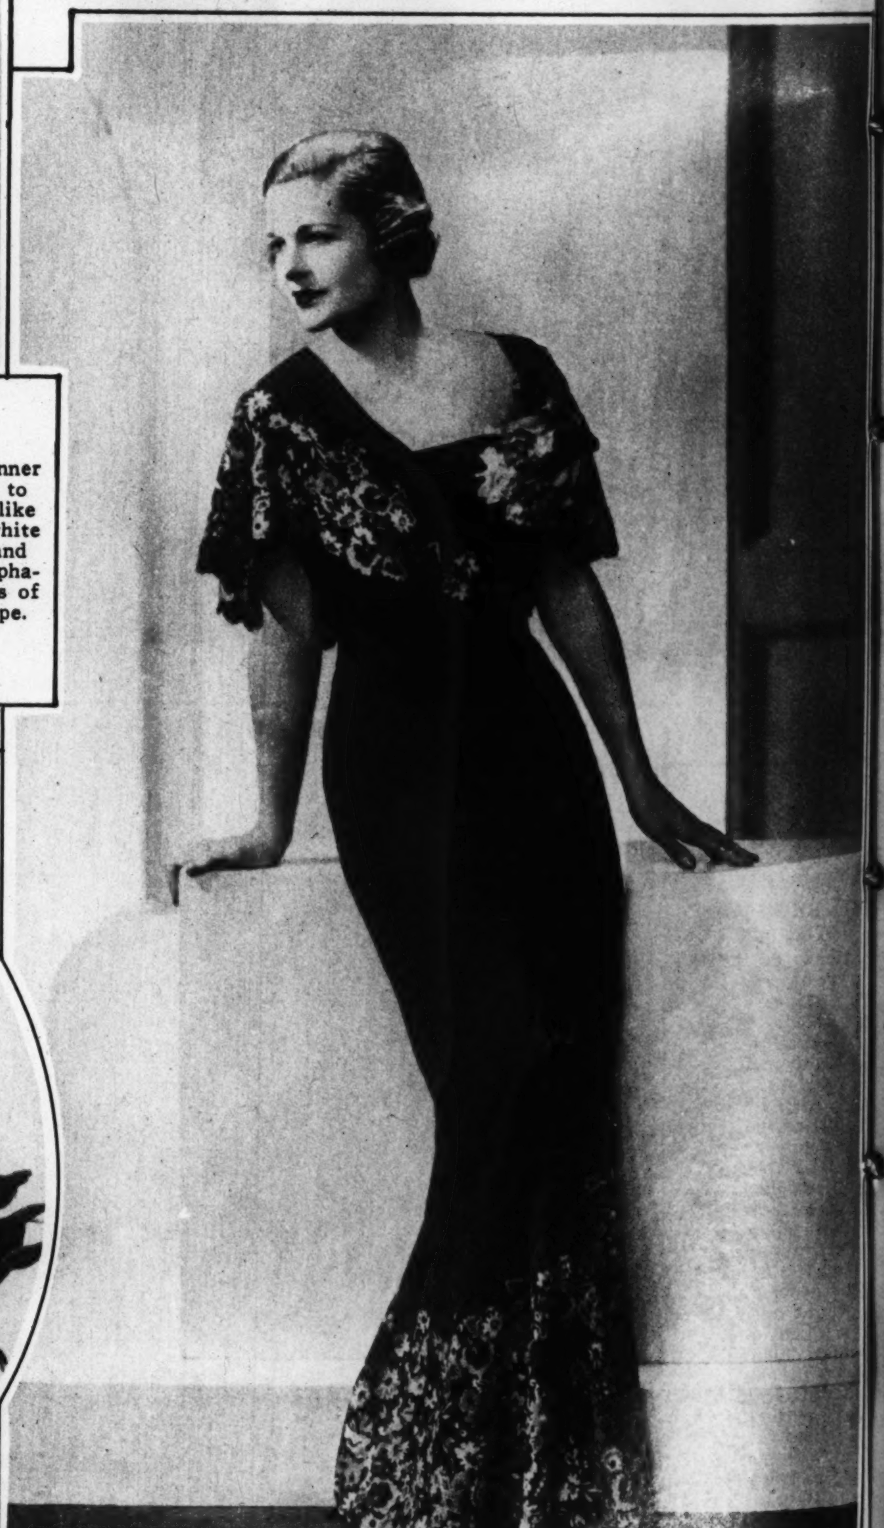
A novelty from Down East: Hand-knotted fish net in its natural color is here used as the material for a skirt and bolero jacket worn over a black satin slip.



Another new silhouette: This stresses the "apron front" and a cape-like bodice which is still, happily perhaps, debatable. Here, incidentally, is another example of a corsage patterned after the print design.



A fringe of fine accordion pleating is used on both the Eton jacket and the skirt of this navy silk crepe dinner suit.



After an old Spanish costume: A fixed scarf imitating the mantilla is the excuse for this very effective off-center neckline. Its brightly colored flower pattern is used again in the wide fringe of the skirt.

"Come on and RIDE!"
AIRFLOW CHRYSLER
56-3548

Special Invitation to

ST. LOUIS MOTORISTS

You've thought about it . . . wondered perhaps . . . Now Do It! Ride in a 1936 Airflow Chrysler.

There's no question about it . . . Airflow has set the trend for all future motor car design. Imitation is growing constantly and will continue.

If you plan to spend more than a thousand dollars for a car this year, you cannot afford not to know at first hand just how much an Airflow Chrysler will give you . . . and why it will protect your investment longest.

Surely and steadily, the Airflow Chrysler has won the favor of the most discriminating families in America. It has today the most enthusiastic owner group any car ever had. It awaits your inspection . . . refined, perfected . . . ready to prove to your complete satisfaction that its basic elements of design and engineering give performance, luxury and safety that is literally unmatched today.

We cordially invite you to see and drive an Airflow Chrysler.

★ YOU RIDE INSIDE THE FRAME

★ Long, strong steel girders run from end to end of the car . . . inseparably welded to the strong, rigid safety-steel body . . . surrounding you with an armor of protection on all sides.

★ DRAWING ROOM SPACIOUSNESS

★ Seats like divans front and rear . . . legroom, headroom, elbowroom to spare . . . deep, luxurious cushions . . . and the glorious Floating Ride that is an inherent part of Airflow design.

★ AT 45 MILES AN HOUR . . . A MIRACLE

★ At touring speeds, the Automatic Overdrive comes in like magic . . . cutting engine speeds one-third . . . giving up to 5 more miles from every gallon of gas . . . saving oil and wear and tear.

★ AIRFLOW CHRYSLER EIGHT $1345. AIRFLOW IMPERIAL $1475. Prices list at factory, Detroit. Special equipment extra. Automatic Overdrive standard on Imperial, available on Airflow Eight at slight additional cost. Ask for Chrysler Motors Commercial Credit 6% time payment plan.

THE IDEA! YOU SPENDING THE WHOLE EVENING TRYING TO TELL THAT COUPLE...COLLEGE GRADUATES, HOW TO PRONOUNCE A WORD LIKE OO-NK.
I STILL SAY ONE "O" IS SILENT.
NO SIR, IT'S OO-NK! THE DOUBLE "O" IS LIKE THE "U" IN MULE. OR THE MULE IN YOU!
ONE "O"! YOU START OFF LIKE SAYING "OH". IT'S OH-NK!
IT'S OOO-NK, AND...OH NEVER MIND TRYING TO FIND THE KEY. YOU LEFT THIS DOOR UNLOCKED, AS USUAL.
SUCH GIBBERISH. TRYING TO TELL EVERYBODY IT ISN'T OOO-NK.
IT'S OH-NK. OH-NK!
AND I KNOW IT'S...I CAN'T FIND THIS LIGHT SWITCH.
LET ME THERE.
OH DON'T BOTHER. I CAN...OH WHAT WAS THAT?
WHAT WAS WHAT? I DON'T HEAR.
SOMEONE. BREATHING LOUDLY. OH WHERE IS THAT SWITCH?
BREATHING? IT'S ME. FROM ANKLING UP AND DOWN ALL THOSE STAIRS.
LET ME OVER THERE. I CAN FIND THAT SWITCH IN TWO SHAKES OF A LAMB'S TAIL.
SHH! HEAR THAT? GEORGE, THERE'S SOMEONE IN THIS HOUSE.
YES I HEAR... SOMEONE WALKING.. SOFTLY. SNEAKING THIS WAY.
OH THE IDEA! AT A TIME LIKE THIS. NOT BEING ABLE TO FIND THAT SWITCH.
WAIT, DON'T TURN IT ON. I HEAR THIS BABY. HE'S TRYING TO SNEAK PAST ME. STEADY, JO.
GEORGE, YOU COME WITH ME RIGHT NOW OUT INTO THE HALL OR...
P-SS-T! I HEAR HIM...AH, I SEE HIM!
WHO'S THAT?
ME!

Of what 774 Illinois people did to help KEEP FROM CATCHING COLD

- To a doctor long noted for his work in practical research we put this question: Can Pepsodent Antiseptic prevent colds? We asked him to find the answer in his own way. To take as much time as he needed. Spend as much money as was necessary.

The result was the Illinois Test, in which the doctor worked for two full winters, with 774 people in all. . . . These people lived together, worked together, ate the same foods. But one-half of them gargled twice a day with Pepsodent Antiseptic. The other half did not.

THE DOCTOR'S REPORT

- Results leave no doubt that Pepsodent Antiseptic is remarkably effective in fighting colds. For the people who did not gargle with Pepsodent Antiseptic had 60% more colds than those who used Pepsodent Antiseptic.

Thus you see, that of the people who used Pepsodent Antiseptic relatively few caught cold, but those who did got rid of their colds in half . . . some even in one-third . . . the time required by those who did not use Pepsodent Antiseptic regularly.

OUR INVITATION TO YOU

"What mildness." "What delicate flavor." "What a difference in taste."

These remarks are typical of the praises being showered upon Camel's costlier tobaccos by new Camel smokers everywhere...smokers who saw our money-back offer to "try ten"... and took us at our word!

They tried ten...smoked twenty. And went on, from pack to pack, to explore a new delight...as they sensed the mildness...the coolness...the unrivaled flavor...of Camel's costlier, non-irritating tobaccos. They found they could smoke Camels steadily—that Camels never get on their nerves or tire their taste.

Attractive Trial Offer

We believe Camels represent the ideal cigarette. And, confident that you will like Camels too, we repeat our positive money-back offer. So accept our invitation—try Camels. Judge them critically. Compare them with others for mildness, for bouquet, for throat-ease, for good taste. Time flies—get a pack today. Join those who say "those costlier tobaccos certainly make a difference!"

GIRLS, USE LIFEBUOY ON YOUR FACE. FOR COMPLEXIONS IT'S AN ACE!

HAVE a complexion like a queen—smooth, clear, radiant! Change to Lifebuoy! It cleanses deeply, gently washes away pore-clogging impurities that dull the skin. "Patch" tests on the skins of hundreds of women show that Lifebuoy is actually 20 per cent milder than many so-called "beauty soaps."

Warning!

"B. O." (body odor) is more noticeable when rooms are overheated, clothing heavy. Bathe regularly with Lifebuoy. It deodorizes. Its own clean scent quickly vanishes as you rinse.

What does this illness mean to Red Light's athletic career—and to Brant's basketball team?

THEY'RE STILL TALKING

About Ad Wolgast's 40th Round Knockout of Battling Nelson

Wolgast recovers — blinded, bewildered by fatigue—but fighting viciously still by instinct. In the 37th round it is Nelson who crumbles to the canvas.

The champion appears near exhaustion. Moved by the sight of his principal beaten to a veritable pulp, one of Nelson's seconds attempts to toss a sponge into the ring at the beginning of the 38th round. Other seconds grab his arm.

The 40th round—and they're still going! Putting everything he has into one terrific swing, Wolgast lands squarely on the champion's jaw. Nelson goes down. The referee stops the fight—Wolgast is the new champion!

The late Ad Wolgast who won his lightweight title that night at Richmond, Cal., Feb. 22, 1910, in one of the fiercest ring battles ever fought.

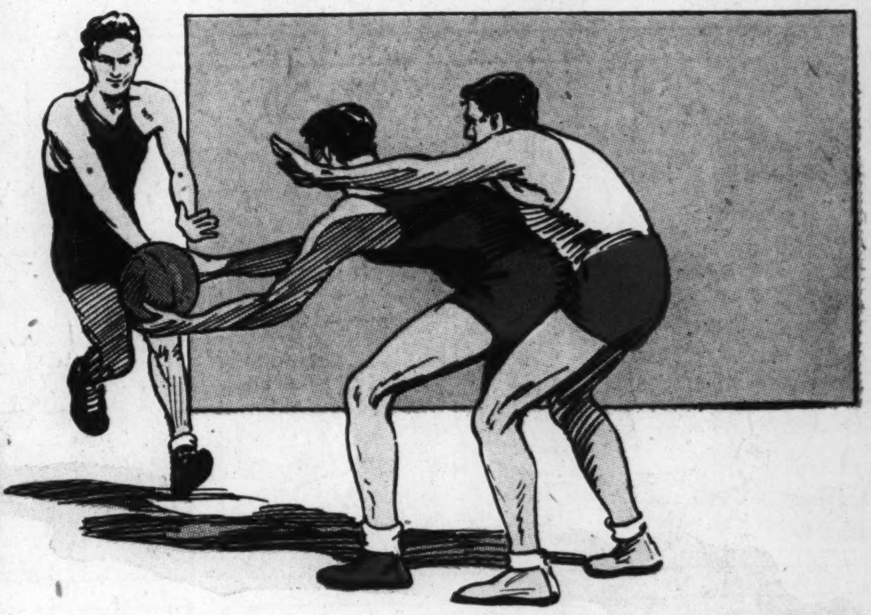
PIVOT POSITION



Usually chosen as center because of his size, the player in the pivot position takes up his stand beneath his basket when the opponent's defense is set.

Standing flat on his feet, he attempts to receive the ball from his teammates, at the same time keeping his guard behind him at all times.

LOVELY HANDS DESPITE 8,000 DISHWASHINGS

MARRIED JUNE 3RD 1928

AUGUST 17, 1928

OH, DEAR, THIS TERRIBLE DISHWASHING IS JUST RUINING MY HANDS!

LISTEN, DARLING, I'VE JUST DISCOVERED A NEW SOAP MADE SPECIALLY FOR WASHING DISHES...

IT'S CALLED SUPER SUDS. IT'S MADE IN TINY HOLLOW BEADS THAT DISSOLVE IN A FLASH—AND YOU GET THE RICHEST, LONGEST-LASTING SUDS! IT'S AMAZING HOW LOVELY IT KEEPS YOUR HANDS, TOO!

1936...8 YEARS LATER...HANDS STILL LOVELY

YOU WERE RIGHT ABOUT SUPER SUDS, ...I MUST HAVE WASHED DISHES 8,000 TIMES WITH IT... AND LOOK HOW LOVELY IT'S KEPT MY HANDS!

YES, AND YOUR DISHES ARE DONE IN HALF THE TIME, TOO, WITH SUPER SUDS!

HERE'S THE REASON WHY!

Super Suds is made in tiny hollow beads. That's why it dissolves instantly and completely—no harsh, undissolved particles to roughen, redden hands. Super Suds is the only soap made specially for washing dishes—to keep hands smooth and lovely.

DOUBLE YOUR MONEY BACK!

If, after using one package of Super Suds, you do not agree that Super Suds is in every way the finest soap you have ever used for washing dishes, return the empty box to Super Suds, Jersey City, N. J. and we will return twice what you paid. This offer expires June 30, 1936.

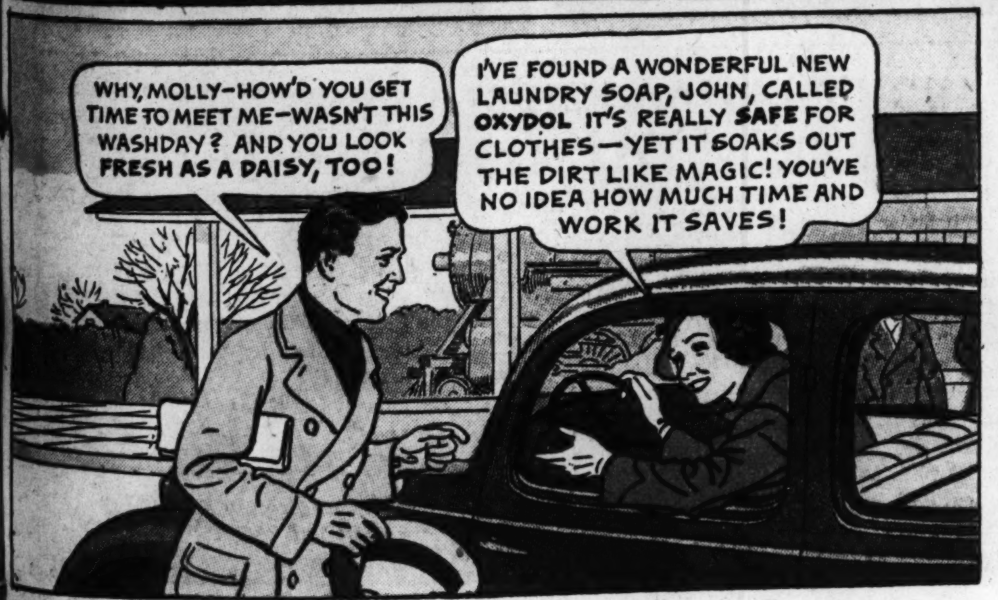
Molly's Monday Mountain
AND HOW IT BECAME A "MOLEHILL" THIS AMAZING NEW WAY
OH DEAR! I'LL NEVER GET THIS WASH DONE!
GOODNESS—ETHEL BROWN'S GOT THAT WHOLE WASH OF HERS DONE ALREADY—HOW DOES SHE DO IT!
WHY, MOLLY! YOU STILL SCRUBBING CLOTHES IN THIS NEW DAY OF "NO-SCRUB" GRANULATED SOAPS?
SO THAT'S HOW YOU GET THROUGH SO FAST. NO THANKS, ETHEL—THOSE "NO-SCRUB" SOAPS ARE TOO HARSH FOR ME THEY FADE THINGS AND—
BUT THIS "NO-SCRUB" SOAP IS PERFECTLY SAFE—IT'S MADE BY THE IVORY SOAP PEOPLE AND CALLED OXYDOL.
-YOU SAY IT GETS CLOTHES WHITER IN 15 MINUTES' SOAKING THAN OTHER SOAPS DO WITH SCRUBBING AND BOILING? I WON'T BELIEVE IT TILL I SEE IT!
OXYDOL
ETHEL, IT'S A MIRACLE. JUST 15 MINUTES' SOAKING, AND THESE SHEETS ARE WHITER THAN EVER!
AND IF YOU'RE WORRIED ABOUT COLORED THINGS—LOOK AT THIS PRINT DRESS. I'VE WASHED IT SCORES OF TIMES IN OXYDOL—ISN'T IT FRESH AND BRIGHT?
JUST THINK! IT'S ONLY 11 O'CLOCK AND I'M ALL THROUGH!
AND LOOK HERE—IT SHOWS HOW CLOTHES LAST TWICE AS LONG WHEN YOU USE OXYDOL AND DON'T SCRUB.
TESTS SHOW HOW OXYDOL GETS CLOTHES CLEAN WITHOUT USUAL "HARSH" EFFECT
1 Photomicrograph of brand-new sheet washed 84 times with ordinary soap. Note fraying in weave due to scrubbing, boiling, and "harsh" action.
2 Photomicrograph of brand-new sheet washed 84 times the scrubless way in Oxydol. Note that weave is not frayed one bit.



WHY, MOLLY—HOW'D YOU GET TIME TO MEET ME—WASN'T THIS WASHDAY? AND YOU LOOK FRESH AS A DAISY, TOO!
I'VE FOUND A WONDERFUL NEW LAUNDRY SOAP, JOHN, CALLED OXYDOL IT'S REALLY SAFE FOR CLOTHES—YET IT SOAKS OUT THE DIRT LIKE MAGIC! YOU'VE NO IDEA HOW MUCH TIME AND WORK IT SAVES!

MILLIONS SWITCHING TO THIS NEW, SAFE "NO-SCRUB" SOAP

This amazing laundry soap invention, OXYDOL, comes to you from the makers of gentle Ivory. It is the result of a patented process which makes mild, gentle soap much faster acting—a formula which makes it 2 to 4 times whiter washing. You just soak clothes 15 minutes to the tubful . . . no scrubbing, no boiling . . . and white clothes wash so white it will amaze you. Even the "grimiest" spots come clean with a gentle rub. Yet every washable color stays brilliant—fresh. Even sheer cotton prints, after 100 consecutive washings, showed no perceptible sign of fading. By comparison, old type no-scrub soaps seem harsh, hard on colors, and unfit for hands.

You'll be amazed, too, how economical OXYDOL is. One package often does twice the work—lasts twice as long—as old-fashioned bars, flakes or chips.

"I REALLY COULDN'T BELIEVE MY EYES"

I really couldn't believe my eyes, when I soaked my dirty clothes in OXYDOL suds for the first time and found out how the dirt soaked out of them. It used to be a case of boiling and scrubbing and rubbing to get clothes clean. But now I soak the clothes, and while they're soaking, I do my other housework. OXYDOL has certainly made washing easy for me. And it takes much less time to get my washing out on the line, and it always looks so clean and white and smells so fresh. OXYDOL is certainly a time-saver and labor-saver for me, and I hope others can benefit from using it as much as I have.

HEY, YOU! COME HERE. ARE YOU ALONE?
Y-YES. SIR!
MY HORSE HURT HIS LEG!, WHAR'S YER BARN?
I-I'LL SHOW YOU, MISTER!
WAAL—DON'T JUST STAND THAR! RUSTLE ME SOME GRUB!
COME TO THE HOUSE AND HAVE A SEAT!
HEY, MISTER, YOU'RE SITTING IN SOME CACTUS!
WELL, IF IT'S RUINED, IT SERVES YOU RIGHT—THAT'S NO PLACE TO PLANT CACTUS! NOW GIT ME SOME FOOD!
HEY, THERE'S A COUGAR IN THE KITCHEN—THE DOOR MUSTA BEEN OPEN!
WHAR IS HE?
NOW, DON'T THINK UP ANY MORE EXCUSES FOR NOT GITTIN' ME SOME GRUB! AN' SOMETHIN' TO DRINK, TOO!
GOSH, INSTEAD OF WATER, I GAVE HIM KEROSENE!
I DON'T KNOW WHAT THIS IS—BUT FILL IT UP AGAIN—AND THIS TIME, DON'T DILUTE IT!
MISTER, WHAT'S YOUR NAME?
THEY CALL ME "SANDSTORM DAWSON" UP IN DRY GULCH!

DON'T LET ADOLESCENT PIMPLES MAKE YOU HIDE AWAY!

BETWEEN the ages 13 and 25, important glands develop. This causes disturbances throughout the body. Waste poisons in the blood irritate the skin—making it break out in pimples.

In treating these adolescent pimples doctors prescribe Fleischmann's Yeast. This fresh yeast clears the blood of the skin irritants that cause pimples. With their cause removed, the pimples disappear.

Eat Fleischmann's Yeast 3 times a day, before meals, plain, or in a little water—until your skin is entirely clear. Many cases of pimples clear up within a week or two. Bad cases sometimes take a month or more. Start today!
